YPD patrol officers get 3-year pact with 1% raise

Conciliator sides with city; union chief displeased

By DAVID SKOLNICK
skolnick@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

A state conciliator settled a contract between the city and its police patrol-officers union, giving members a 1 percent pay increase and a $150 lump-sum payment. The union president criticized the city's negotiating tactics.

The three-year contract is retro-active to Dec. 1, 2015, the day after the previous deal expired.

The union initially sought 3 percent annual raises for the life of the contract during nonbinding fact-finding negotiations earlier this year.

But when presenting its case to state conciliator Robert G. Stein of Kent, who made a binding decision, the Youngstown chapter of the Ohio Patrolmen's Benevolent Association backed off and instead asked for a 1 percent raise during the first year of the contract, no raise in the second year and a 1 percent raise in the final year.

The union's proposal came with some strings, including increasing the starting annual wage for officers from $30,754 to $32,097 starting in 2017 and reducing the number of years an officer needs to get to the top of the pay scale from 12 to nine. The annual salary for those at the top of the pay scale for patrol officers right now is $55,751.

The city offered a 1 percent raise and the $150 payment.

Stein agreed with the city, writing that the facts surrounding Youngstown's "finances are sobering. The city, according to evidence, has serious structural economic difficulties impacting both the expenditure and revenue side of the ledger, causing expenditures to continue to exceed revenue. It

GREENSBORO, N.C. BATTERED BY SORDID new accusations of sexual misbehavior, Donald Trump fought back in ever-more-remarkable fashion Friday, acting out one woman's allegation onstage and suggesting another was not attractive enough to merit his attention. He defiantly denied a week's worth of accu-

The New York businessman said his staff wanted him to avoid the topic altogether but that he couldn't resist defending himself. He blamed the growing story on his Democratic opponent Hillary Clinton and an international media conspiracy, describing his female accusers as "sick" people

International trade agreements and their impact on Ohio's economy was a contentious topic in Friday's debate between Republican U.S. Sen. Rob Portman and his Democratic challenger, former Ohio Gov. Ted Strickland.

The wide-ranging, one-hour, midday debate was televised live from the downtown Youngstown studio of 21 WFMJ-TV and co-sponsored by The Vindicator.

"The record of NAFTA has been mixed. I think it has resulted in some job loss and some job gain," Portman said of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Judge, police officials discuss handling cases of domestic violence

By JOE GORMAN

BOARDMAN

When someone asks for a civil-protection order in Mahoning County Domestic Relations Court to help escape an abusive relationship, Valerie Flanigan said she does not have time to find out why the order is needed – so she boils the request down to a simple question.

Flanigan, who began working for the court in January thanks to a grant to help victims of domestic violence, said victims need to think of what they expect to happen once they receive their order.

"I ask them: 'What does your life look like when you leave the courtroom today?'" Flanigan said.

Flanigan was part of a panel of court staff seeking fame or money. “The only thing I can say is hopefully, hopefully, our patriotic movement will overcome this terrible deception,” he declared. Trump assailed The New York Times in particular, noting its connection to Mexican billionaire Carlos Slim, who is a major shareholder in the media company.

Spokesman Arturo Elias Ayub later said Slim doesn't know Trump at all “and is not the least bit interested in his personal life.”

Trump's running mate, Indiana Gov. Mike Pence, promised the campaign would soon release evidence against the women that would show Trump's innocence.

“It's coming in, frankly, probably in a matter of hours,” Pence said Friday morning on NBC's “Today Show.” He added, “It's astonishing to see the enormous coverage of these, of these really unfounded allegations, unestablished allegations, compared to an avalanche of emails coming out of Hillary Clinton's years as secretary of state.”

Indeed, Friday marked another day on which WikiLeaks released thousands of emails that had been stolen from Clinton campaign chairman John Podesta's personal account. The new batch showed that Hillary Clinton's campaign asked former President Bill Clinton to cancel a speech to an investment firm last year because of concerns that the Clintons might appear to be too cozy with Wall Street just as she was about to announce her candidacy.

Clinton aides say in the emails that Hillary Clinton did not want her husband to cancel the speech but was eventually convinced. The Clintons' paid speeches have been an issue throughout the campaign, particularly lucrative speeches to Wall Street.

The Clinton campaign, citing information it says is from the FBI, says the hacks are being investigated as part of a broader attack on Democratic Party leaders that may involve Russia.

Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton speaks to volunteers at a campaign office Friday in Seattle.

Clinton herself spoke Friday of a need for national healing.

“I take no satisfaction in seeing what Trump does and says because it hurts – it hurts me, and it hurts our country,” she said in a speech at a fundraiser.

Polls suggest Trump has fallen further behind Clinton nationally and in most battleground states. Early in-person voting is underway in 20 states, including Ohio, where President Barack Obama railed against Trump a day after first lady Michelle Obama declared in a passionate speech, “Enough is enough.”

The Obamas both seized on Trump's words, captured in a video released last week, bragging about kissing and groping women without their permission. The 70-year-old billionaire has apologized, but also repeatedly dismissed his comments as “locker room talk.”

“You don't have to be a husband or a father to know that that kind of language, those kinds of thoughts, those kinds of actions are unacceptable. They're not right. You just have to be a decent human being,” President Obama charged in Columbus.

Two more women, meanwhile, come forward Friday with allegations against Trump.

A former contestant from NBC's “The Apprentice,” said Friday that the former reality television star became sexually aggressive at a Beverly Hills hotel in 2007. Summer Zervos, appearing at a Friday news conference with attorney Gloria Allred, said Trump kissed her open-mouthed and touched her breasts in a private room.

And in a story published online Friday, Kristin Anderson told The Washington Post that she was sitting on a couch with friends at a New York nightclub in the early 1990s when a hand reached up her skirt and touched her through her underwear.

Anderson, then in her early 20s, said she pushed the hand away, turned around and recognized Trump as the man who had groped her.

Trump mocked Anderson's claim onstage as he campaigned in North Carolina, pausing to reach out his hand to touch an imaginary woman as his accuser described. “I just heard this one. It's like, it's like unbelievable,” he said.

Even before the mounting allegations, there was evidence that Trump's troubles were hurting the Republican Party's ability to raise money.

The Republican National Committee has raised about 25 percent less over the past three months than it did over the same period four years ago, when Mitt Romney was atop the ticket.

The RNC said Friday it raised $39.4 million last month, compared to $48.4 million in September 2012. It says it has raised $262.3 million since January 2015, about $20 million more than it had by this time in 2012.

Friday's accusations against Trump are in line with similar allegations by women in articles by The New York Times and the Palm Beach Post. Separately, a People magazine reporter offered a first-person account accusing Trump of attacking her in 2005.

the new CFO.

Gart was formerly the senior vice president of finance and CFO at Tribune Media Services.

These departures follow on the recent exits of Lisa Beasley, Aasia Lashay Bull-ock and Scott Morehead, performers in Second City's current e.t.c. Stage revue “A Red Line Runs Through It,” as reported Tuesday, Peter Kim has also left that show.

Monet ‘Grainstack’ painting heads to auction in November

NEW YORK

A painting from Claude Monet's acclaimed “Grainstack” series is heading to auction next month, and Christie's says it could realize around $45 million.

The 1891 painting, shimmering with hues of reds, pinks, blues and yellow, depicts a close-up of a single cone-shaped stack after harvest.

Monet's “Grainstack” series – 25 in all – was painted just steps from his home outside a farmer's field in the French village of Giverny.

The one at Christie's Nov. 16 impressionist and modern art evening sale is one of a few still in private hands.

The auction record for a Monet is $80.4 million set in 2008.

The event will take place at 4 p.m. today at the southwest corner of Fifth and Lincoln avenues on the west side of campus.

Youngstown man charged in threat

BOARDMAN
A Youngstown man was taken into custody by the U.S. Marshals Task Force at his home Thursday afternoon after purportedly threatening his estranged girlfriend and a township police officer.

Michael Esposito III, 34, of Youngstown-Poland Road, is in Mahoning County jail on charges of stalking, telephone harassment, intimidation of a police officer, criminal trespassing and domestic violence.

The woman called police in the morning, saying he was stalking her at the Boardman-Poland Road restaurant where she works. He was reportedly pounding on the windows demanding to be let inside. The restaurant denied him access, and shortly after his leaving, started getting calls from a private number. When the officer answered the phone, Esposito demanded to talk to the woman. After citing him for criminal trespassing, the man stated he would punch the officer.

Man arraigned on 16th OVI charge

CAMPBELL
A man was arraigned Friday in Campbell Municipal Court on his 16th charge of operating a vehicle while impaired. David Black, 56, of Youngstown also faces charges for failure to stop at a stop sign and violating open-container law.

A judge set Black's bond at $4,000. He will appear Friday for a preliminary hearing.

Campbell police stopped Black on Wednesday afternoon at Jackson Street and Murray Avenue. Police reported Black smelled of alcohol and had slurred speech. He had an open container of beer in his car, failed a series of field-sobriety tests and declined to take a blood-alcohol-content test, a police report states.

Police charged Black with a third-degree felony charge of OVI due to his 15 previous OVI charges through various agencies.

Carving session readies gourds for Mill Creek event

PUMPKIN PREPARATION

BOARDMAN
STEPHANIE MCCUNE, 11, of Canfield, has been carving pumpkins at Fellows Riverside Gardens every autumn since she was a little girl. This year is no exception. Stephanie was at a pumpkin-carving session at the Gardens on Friday, preparing one of the gourds that will line the Gardens' paths for Mill Creek MetroParks' annual Pumpkin Walk at Twilight on Sunday.

The event runs from 5:30 to 8 p.m., and in addition to the pumpkin displays, will feature live polka music, pumpkin-carving demonstrations, children's activities and free cider and apples. Groups of people crowded the Gardens on Friday for pumpkin carving, which also takes place today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Stephanie was joined Friday by younger brothers Ray, 9, and Peyton, 5; grandmother Ruth McCune; baby-sitter Audra Smith of Youngstown; and Smith's grandson, Connor Smith, 11. The group was delighted to be out at the Gardens to continue the yearly tradition. "I love this park, and I love to carve," exclaimed Stephanie. Next to her, Connor and Peyton happily carved their pumpkins to look like a character from the "Minecraft" video game. Ray went with a sports theme for his pumpkin, carving the initials "LBJ" – LeBron James – into his. "We all enjoy coming out to the park. We enjoy getting out and

Road, police levies on ballot in Austintown

By AMANDA TONOLI

AUSTINTOWN
Township trustees are asking voters to approve two new 1-mill levies for road and police services on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Both levies will generate the same amount of $614,966 annually, and owners of a $100,000 home will pay an additional $35 per levy per year. While the road levy will be a five-year levy, the police levy will be continuous.

Austintown has four continuous police levies generating $4.3 million annually and two five-year road levies generating $1.1 million each year.

Trustee Chairman Ken Carano said the point of the new levies stems simply from just a financial need. "All I can ask for is for people to understand to service them, we have to raise extra funds simply because we have lost so much of the funding from state and federal government," he said.

Trustee Jim Davis said the $1.2 million loss is causing trustees and administrators to balance their smaller budget "on the backs of the taxpayers."

Township Administrator Mike Dockry explained the

CANFIELD Canfield community leaders excitedly announced that Canfield is the best place to retire statewide. The announcement came at a Good Morning Canfield event Friday at the Canfield Branch of the Public Library of Youngstown and Mahoning County, 43 W. Main Street. According to “10 Best Places to Retire in Ohio,” published on insidermonkey.com Sept. 5 by Jasmin Cilas, the Canfield community is No. 1 based on the cost of living, which is 7 percent cheaper than the U.S. average; physicians per capita, or 311 doctors to 100,000 residents; and a crime rate that is 70 percent lower than the state average. Another statistic aiding the story’s report is the low cost of living – 5 percent lower than the state average. “It is cheap, has a good health care system with low crime rates and lots of the elderly population. ... The city has a growing community and presents a desirable place for both retirees and families,” Cilas said in her story. Specific ratings can be found at www.insidermonkey.com/blog/10-best-places-to-retire-in-ohio-472330/?singlepage=1 and www.areavibes.com/canfield-oh/livability/. Other items discussed at the event were an overview of various ongoing road projects, and those planned for the future, as well as businesses making their way into the community including a new GetGo, Starbucks and Chipotle on the corner of U.S. Route 224 and Raccoon Road. Both Mayor Bernie Kosar Sr. and Canfield city Manager Joe Warino said they were happy with the positive feel to Good Morning Canfield.

“It’s nice to have a bunch of good news announced for Canfield,” Warino said. Kosar said such semiannual events are a local phenomenon. “Good Morning and Good Evening Canfield are special because they are headquartered in our special community, and not many others do something like this,” he said.

about,” said Audra Smith. “We like to continue it [the pumpkin-carving tradition] so that the memory will last a lifetime.”

The Sudetic/Yazbek clan is another that never misses out on the annual event.

“It’s our tradition. The boys just enjoy it,” said Darlene Sudetic of Youngstown, who was there with her grandsons, Jaxtin and JJ. Also taking part in the fun were the boys’ other grandparents, Ginny and Joe Yazbek; their mother, Mamie Yazbek; and cousin, Dominic Yazbek.

Also carving a pumpkin with his grandson was Mario Silvestri. He and 6-year-old Michael Silvestri were there for the first time this year.

“Grandma called us up and said there’s a pumpkin carving ... so we came,” said Silvestri.

It’s these kind of family experiences that the event, now in its 12th year, is meant to foster.

“It’s a fun way to do something as a family, and it doesn’t cost you a dime,” said Lynn Zocolo, horticulture educator at the Gardens.

The Pumpkin Walk began in 2004 with just over 300 carved pumpkins weighing in at 5,000 pounds. Now it features roughly 700 pumpkins, weighing approximately 20,000 pounds total.

“It’s grown to be something bigger and better, and it was really our goal to make sure it was always family-oriented,” Zocolo said.

The walk is a chance to enjoy the beauty of the pumpkin-lined paths of the Gardens, as well as for those who carved pumpkins to find their masterpiece.

The event is sponsored by Friends of Fellows Riverside Gardens, as well as 21 WFMJ-TV and WBCB, The Valley’s CW. For more information, visit www.millcreekmetroparks.org.

NAFTA countries. Most of them go to Canada, so it is a big help for a lot of companies,” Portman observed.

“Are you willing to get down on your knees and ask the people of this Valley to forgive you for sending their jobs to China and Mexico,” Strickland asked Portman rhetorically.

“NAFTA is a big problem, and the people of this Valley, probably better than anywhere, perhaps in Ohio or the country, understand the effects of our trade deals,” Strickland added.

“He has participated in sending our jobs out of this country,” Strickland said of Portman, who was trade ambassador under President George W. Bush and voted for NAFTA as a congressman.

“We need to have agreements that open up markets for our workers, for our farmers. We don’t do enough of that,” Portman said.

“America does not export as much as we should compared to other countries,” he said, adding that NAFTA needs to be updated to make it more favorable to the United States.

“Ted Strickland’s got to answer to those people who are going to lose their jobs because of the lost exports because he refuses to support any trade enhancement agreement to open up new markets for our products,” Portman said.

Portman said 9 out of 10 of the 350,000 Ohio jobs lost while Strickland was governor went to other states, not other countries.

While Strickland was governor, exports increased nationally, but declined in Ohio, Portman said.

Declining exports meant fewer jobs and lower wages and benefits, the senator added.

Another major clash between the senator and his challenger was in response to a question from Cassandra Peterson of Youngstown, who asked where the candidates stand on raising the minimum wage.

“I support raising the minimum wage,” Portman said, adding that he favors indexing it to inflation.

“Let’s take the politics out of it, so you don’t have these big stair steps that create all this job loss,” Portman said. Strickland estimated Portman earns about $334 per hour from his Senate salary and investments.

“And yet, there was a bill in the Senate to raise the minimum wage to $10.10 an hour, and he voted against it,” Strickland observed.

“I think, when a person works hard, they ought not to have to live in poverty,” the former governor said.

“I want to raise the minimum wage,” he added. Portman retorted that the $10.10-an-hour proposal would have caused a loss of 500,000 jobs, according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office.

Noting that only Florida and California lost more jobs than Ohio while Strickland was governor, Vindicator politics writer David Skolnick asked Strickland why Ohio lagged so far behind the rest of the country under his leadership.

“We did lose a lot of jobs, and we lost more jobs than some states because of the nature of our economy. We’re a heavily manufacturing state,” Strickland explained.

“Job-killing trade deals,” were especially detrimental to Ohio, he said.

“The recession hit in ’08 and ’09. By the time I left office, Ohio had the fastest growing economy in the Midwest and the fifth fastest growing economy in America,” Strickland said.

“We took a big hit during the recession. ... People lost jobs and homes. A lot of people lost hope,” he said, adding that he didn’t cause the recession and the job and home losses.

“I worked hard to keep our state in a stable position,” he said.

With programs such as the federal stimulus, “We were able to invest in communities like Youngstown and other communities across the state, so that I gave [Gov.] John Kasich a recovering economy,” Strickland said.

“He left John Kasich an $8 billion record deficit. He took the rainy-day fund from $1 billion down to 89 cents,” Portman retorted.

Strickland said the allegation that he left an $8 billion deficit is “absolutely not true. I was constitutionally required to balance the budget, and I balanced the budget.”

“Sen. Portman, we did have a national recession. It was caused by Washington and Wall Street. You were the budget director for [President] George W. Bush in the two or three years leading up to that recession, and you need to accept responsibility for that job loss as well,” Strickland said.

In post-debate news releases, the Ohio Democratic Party and the Strickland campaign called Strickland the victor; and the Portman campaign called its candidate the winner.

The Ohio Democratic Party called Portman “a lap dog for the wealthy special interests that are spending tens of millions of dollars to prop up his campaign.” The Portman campaign said Ohio voters have a clear choice between “Rob’s pro-growth policies for higher wages and more jobs or a return to Retread Ted Strickland’s failed policies of higher taxes, burdensome regulations and bigger government.”

When they arrived for the debate, the candidates were greeted by pro-Portman pickets in front of the TV station, who faced pro-Strickland pickets on the city hall side of Boardman Street.

Their voices echoing in the canyon of downtown buildings, the pro-Portman pickets chanted “Rob for jobs,” and “Put Ted to bed,” and the pro-Strickland pickets shouted back: “Do your job.”

Mulgrew is Lepore-Hagan’s former sister-in-law and Tim Hagan’s ex-wife. She used her familiarity with the region to appeal to women voters.

“I know something about working women in Ohio ... they will not be victimized by misogyny, by brutes, by violence and by ugliness,” Mulgrew said.

Schilling began by admitting she was new to political activism, explaining her exposure to the issues her show portrays – the loss of personal liberty and the unique struggles of those on either side of the bars at a women’s prison – made her realize she’d taken her own civil liberties for granted.

Pepper challenged the notion that Ohio, and specifically Mahoning County, is “Trump County,” arguing that Ohio was still a bellwether state despite some arguments – such as New York Times reporter Jonathan Martin’s – that Ohio is fading in election-year importance.

“We won it for President Obama in 2008 and 2012,” Pepper said. “Bill and Chelsea Clinton have both visited Youngstown, President Obama and Hillary Clinton were in Ohio today, and there have been constant visits around the state this election season, so I think Ohio is obviously still critically important, which is why events like these to mobilize voters matter for us and the nation.”

Schilling, Mulgrew and the Democratic politicians continue their campaign events today at the University of Toledo and Bowling Green State University.

loss came in three parts to all townships and cities in Ohio: a local government fund cut, the accelerated phase-out of the Tangible Personal Property tax in 2009 and the elimination of the estate tax in 2013.

“As a result, there is less money not only to support the road department but also to support the police department,” he said. “Passage of both levies will allow the township to continue to serve our residents with the services they have come to expect from the road and police departments.”

Trustee Rick Stauffer agreed.

“I don’t think anyone hates levies more than we do, but we see them as absolutely something we need to do in order to do the basics of what we do, like paving roads and keeping people safe,” he said. “We strive to do the best we can for the sake of our township, but many of our line items need more support.”

Davis said the support is what it all comes down to.

“We’ve been very fortunate with our police department in success with prostitution cases, specialized programs combatting drug and heroin problems. And these specialized programs are not going to be able to continue without this funding and voter support,” he said. “We feel it is imperative to be able to continue to fund these programs so we can fight crime in the community and provide the services we provide now.”

Madison Anthony, 8, a second-grader at Hubbard Elementary School, is all smiles as she uses a drill with assistance by Dale Bernardi, one of the adult volunteers at Safety Day for Kids. BETTER SAFE THAN SORRY

Children learn safety tips at church event

By LINDA M. LINONIS

LIBERTY The adage “better safe than sorry” applied to Safety Day for Kids at Church Hill United Methodist Church.

Sharon Wathen, coordinator, said the community outreach event resulted from a brainstorming session at the church. The activity was Friday, when school wasn’t in session because of North Eastern Ohio Education Association Day.

Wathen said Safety Day provided a fun learning experience for children in kindergarten through fourth grade from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., ending in lunch, and an activity to fill part of the day for working parents.

The 40-year church member said this is the third such event sponsored by the church, which has a backpack program at E.J. Blott Elementary School. The church also is involved in Blott Kids Holiday Program and provides clothing, toys, games and books to children in need. Wathen added that the church also just started Liberty Community Food Pantry on the first Friday of the month.

Safety Day topics were auto, golf, tool and infant/toddler. “Every year we have a different sport,” Wathen said. The goal of the day is to impart safety tips to children. Though they won’t remember them all, the experience is beneficial, she said.

Michael Seawood, a second-grader at E.J. Blott Elementary School in Liberty, gets instruction about swinging a golf club from Bill Weber, a member of Church Hill United Methodist Church. The church sponsored a safety program for children, and the sports activity reminded children to be careful when they are swinging a club while playing miniature or regular golf.

The event attracted 27 children. Volunteers from the church and community numbered 12 youths and 30 adults. Children were grouped according to age, then rotated among the four safety stations. Each child received a tote bag with handouts on the four topics and some goodies.

Barb Gulgas was among adult volunteers for golf. She said the emphasis was “being aware of your surroundings” when preparing to hit the ball or being a spectator. She said the tips apply to miniature and regular golf.

In the tool-safety room, church member Dale Bernardi said he and fellow volunteers relayed that tools aren’t toys. He noted children wore safety glasses and hard hats. “We give them some experience on handling a tool,” he said.

Madison Anthony, 8, a second-grader at Hubbard Elementary School, said she liked learning about using a drill. “It was fun,” she said.

Children also used hammers to pound nails, learned the names of different screws and how to use them.

In infant and toddler safety, topics concerning toys, poison prevention and emergency situations were addressed. Stephanie Dougherty, a church member, Austintown teacher and mother of two boys, 21 and 3 months, led the session.

One emphasis was calling 911 in an emergency. Dougherty had younger children practice pressing number buttons on a house phone. Though some cellphones have passwords, Dougherty showed children where to press emergency, which requires no password.

“You don’t call to play,” Dougherty told children. She talked with them about giving their name, address and what the emergency was, citing examples such as “my mom fell down the steps.” Speaking slowly and clearly also was emphasized.

At the auto-safety site, Jackie Cowles, a nurse with Akron Children’s Hospital, talked with children about using seat belts, booster seats for those from 40 to 110 pounds and convertible seats for younger children from 20 to 60 pounds. She also noted children must be 13 to ride in the front seat.

Children also were shown where the emergency release in the trunk was located. Liberty Police Department also participated. Alexander Smith, a church member and sound technician, went over meanings of street signs that were displayed.

Amber Schimpf, 12, and Brooklyn Youngblood, 11, were youth volunteers. Both said they liked helping younger kids learn new things.

MAHONING COUNTY

Agencies to receive $48K in grant money

Staff report
YOUNGSTOWN Two area emergency-response agencies will be receiving a major financial boost that promises to allow them to improve their response capabilities.

Nearly $48,000 in U.S. Department of Homeland Security grant money will go to the county’s Hazardous-Materials Response Agency and the Youngstown Police Department’s bomb squad, said Dennis O’Hara, the Mahoning County Emergency Management Agency’s director.

The funds will provide equipment to allow both agencies to improve their ability to respond to chemical spills, ordnance removal and other duties and crises, O’Hara said during Friday’s county commissioners meeting.

Specifically, the HazMat team will receive fully encapsulated, self-contained life suits to replace those that are likely between 5 and 10 years old.

In addition, the money will be used for a new meter that will increase the team’s detection capabilities in identifying various chemicals, he explained.

The team is made up of firefighters and emergency medical technicians who respond to chemical spills, contain toxic-gas leaks, assist law-enforcement personnel in dealing with methamphetamine labs and handle other related emergencies.

Also, the bomb squad’s capabilities for ordnance removal, detonation and disposal that are in line with current technology will be enhanced, O’Hara said.

The equipment could arrive as soon as early next year, the EMA director said.

The next meeting is set for 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Coitsville Township Government Center, 3711 McCartney Road.

Former cop charged in fatal traffic stop appears in court

Associated Press

CINCINNATI

A white former police officer charged with killing an unarmed black man during a traffic stop over a missing front license plate returned to court briefly Friday for a pretrial hearing.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge Megan Shanahan met in chambers with attorneys for both sides to discuss jury selection and other issues in Ray Tensing’s case, scheduled for trial Oct. 25. Tensing, 26, has pleaded not guilty to charges of murder and voluntary manslaughter in the shooting of Sam DuBose.

Tensing pulled the 43-year-old DuBose over near the University of Cincinnati campus for a missing front license plate July 19, 2015.

Much of the trial is expected to revolve around bodycam video that showed the encounter that ended with Tensing shooting DuBose in the head. Tensing’s attorney, Stewart Mathews, has said his client feared being dragged under the car as DuBose tried to drive away.

The People's Paper

Prepare yourself for Ohio quakes

COLUMBUS While the presidential campaign disintegrates into a series of lewd accusations from both sides of the political aisle, let us turn our attention again to other things.

For example, earthquakes.

They happen here in Ohio more often than you probably realize, and you need to be ready to respond when the ground starts shaking.

So says the Ohio Emergency Management Agency, which is encouraging businesses, schools and others to participate in this month's "International Earthquake Drill," code name "Shake-Out," on Thursday at 10:20 a.m. (That's the third Thursday of the month. If you miss it this year, mark it on the calendar for 2017.)

"Ohio may not experience earthquakes of significant magnitudes, but we do have them," Sima Merick, Ohio EMA executive director, said in a released statement announcing the event. "Or you may travel to another state or country that has a history of sizable earthquakes. Know what to do in the event of any disaster – whether it's an earthquake, tornado or fire."

The agency's website (www.ready.ohio.gov) has all sorts of interesting and useful information about how to handle emergency events, including terrorist attacks, winter storms and floods.

There's an entire section there, too, on earthquakes.

YOUNGSTOWN QUAKE

Folks in the Youngstown area know all about the ground shaking after a series of seismic events a couple of years ago tied to the state's growing shale oil and gas industry. Those events and others like them helped prompt state officials to require seismic readings as part of drilling activities.

There also have been earthquakes elsewhere in the state. Last year, EMA counted more than half a dozen in Ohio. This year, there have been at least three in the state in Guernsey, Gallia and Ottawa counties registering 2.3 to 2.6 in magnitude.

Granted, most seismic events of that sort aren't going to lead to widespread death and destruction, but you should be ready to respond to earthquakes regardless.

Because, as the EMA website notes, "Earthquakes can strike suddenly, without warning, and can occur any time of the year, day or night."

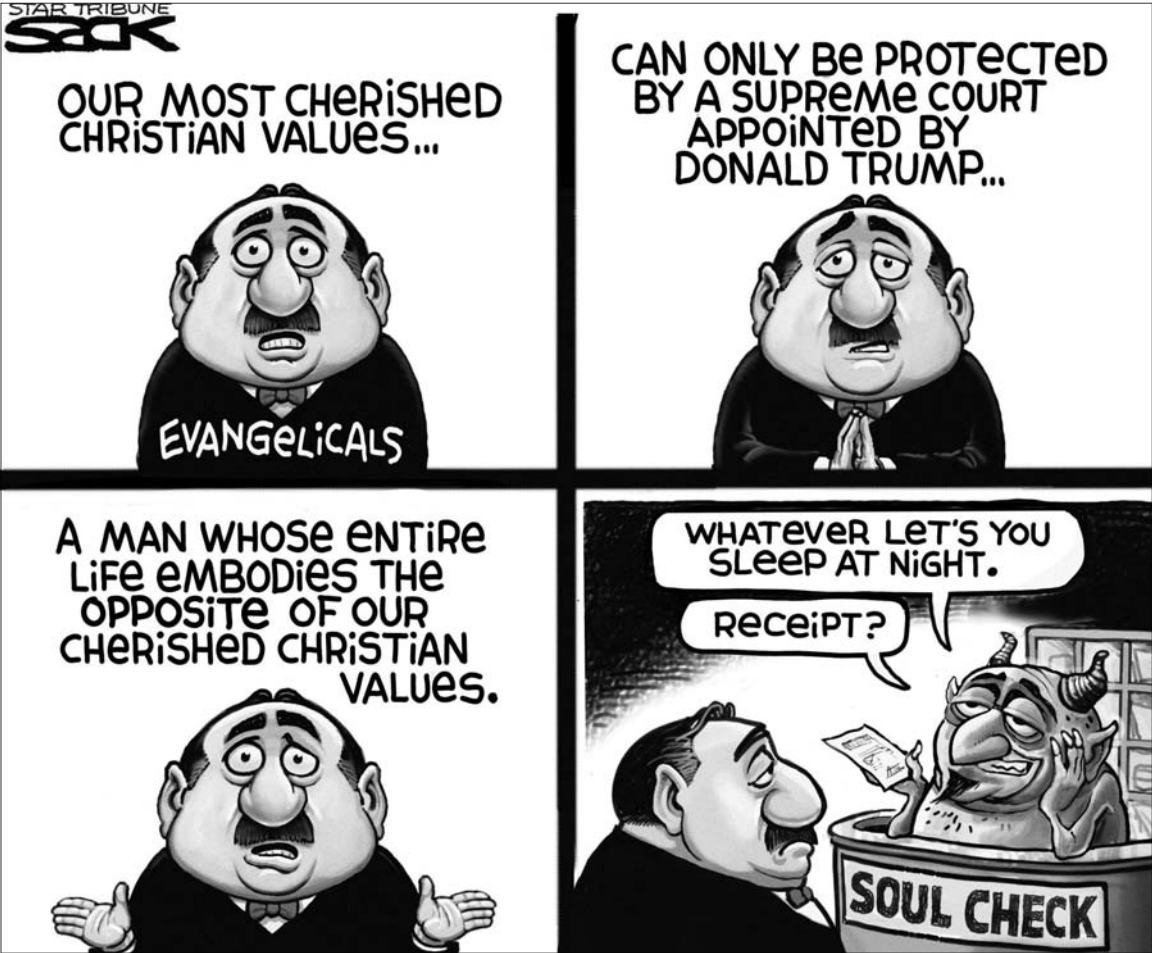

As part of the ShakeOut event this month, state officials are encouraging a "Drop, Cover and Hold On" approach to quakes:

- ♦ "DROP where you are, onto your hands and knees. This position protects you from being knocked down and allows you to stay low and crawl to shelter, if it's nearby."
- ♦ "COVER your head and neck with one arm and hand. If a sturdy table or desk is nearby, crawl underneath it for shelter. If no shelter is nearby, crawl next to an interior wall, away from windows."
- ♦ "HOLD ON until shaking stops. Under a shelter: hold onto it with one hand and be ready to move with your shelter if it shifts."

You can register online for the earthquake drill at www.shakeout.org <<http://www.shakeout.org>>. Nearly 3 million people in the central part of the country, the region that includes Ohio for counting purposes, have already done so. There's more information on that website, including video guides for how to stay safe during quakes.

You may also be tempted to try the "Drop, Cover and Hold On" method as we get closer to Nov. 8. That might not be a bad idea.

Bill Clinton is not on the ballot, but his womanizing looms large

By HEIDI STEVENS
Chicago Tribune

Fine, let's talk about Bill Clinton.

Since the first time I typed the word "Hillary" next to the word "Clinton" in a column, my inbox and Twitter feed have been filled with queries as to why I'm not writing about her husband's White House exploits. I would quote a few of the missives, but they're never printable.

When I answer – and occasionally I do – I say something along the lines of, "Because it's not 1998, and because Bill isn't running for president."

Both are true, but they're not enough. So here goes:

I'm furious with Bill Clinton, if you want to know the truth.

I'm furious that his late-'90s affair with Monica Lewinsky, which already sucked up close to $40 million and an inordinate amount of our attention, is the first thing some people think of when they see his wife – an ardent champion of women's and children's rights since the '80s, a two-term U.S. senator, a secretary of state and the first woman to be nominated for president by a major party.

I'm furious that his reputation for womanizing has given cover for people trying to explain away Donald Trump's highly offensive, dangerous talk of forcing himself on women.

I'm furious that Trump himself had Bill Clinton's name at the ready when he released his first response to the "Access Hollywood" tape Friday.

I'm furious, as a feminist, that I find myself wondering how to explain Clinton's behavior – behavior I abhor – because I like his wife and I want her to be our next president. In some ways, their marriage is theirs to work through. But, let's be honest, it's also not.

We have a pretty detailed account of what happened with Lewinsky, thanks to Ken Starr and that $40 million. But we'll likely never know exactly what happened with the other women who've accused Bill Clinton of harassing them and worse. Juanita Broadrick signed an affidavit calling her earlier sexual assault allegation against Bill Clinton "untrue." But she later recanted that affidavit.

As for whether Hillary Clinton threatened Broadrick, I have yet to see compelling evidence. As Slate columnist Michelle Goldberg wrote Sunday:

"Even after Broadrick went public with the rape charges, she initially denied that anyone tried to silence her. 'Did Bill Clinton or anyone near him ever threaten you, try to intimidate you, do anything to keep you silent?' Dateline's Lisa Myers asked her in 1999. 'No,' Broadrick replied."

A few months later, Goldberg wrote, Broadrick told the Drudge Report that Hillary Clinton had approached Broadrick at a fundraiser and "took my hand and said 'I am so happy to meet you. I want you to know that we appreciate everything you do for Bill.'"

"Broadrick interpreted this as a threat," Goldberg wrote, "but it sounds like the kind of thing a candidate's wife at a political event would say to all his supporters. Even in her rendering of Hillary's words, there is nothing outwardly sinister in them."

Broadrick, as you know, appeared alongside Trump on Facebook Live Sunday night, along with Kathleen Willey, Paula Jones and Kathy Shelton – women who've accused Bill Clinton of inappropriate sexual behavior.

MAKING SKIN CRAWL

And that makes me the most furious of all.

Because Trump – who has a long, well-documented history of harassing women, cheating on his wives and now, as we know, forcing himself on women – somehow convinced these four women that he was their safe space. And that makes my skin crawl.

What Trump said on that "Access Hollywood" bus was not, as he labeled it, "locker room talk." It was the entitled musings of a predator.

If he had been talking about forcing himself on children – grabbing their private parts, forcibly kissing them – we would be filled with rage. If he had been talking about forcing himself on men – taking them shopping and then making his move – we would be filled with rage.

Women's bodies are entitled to every bit as much protection

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I can't stop thinking about this. It has shaken me to my core in a way that I couldn't have predicted. So while I would love nothing more than pretend that this isn't happening and come out here and do my normal campaign speech, it would be dishonest and disingenuous to just move onto the next thing like this was all a bad dream. This is not something we can ignore."

MICHELLE OBAMA, on GOP presidential nominee Donald Trump's boast on a 2005 tape about his fame allowing him to "do anything to women."

Our VOICE

Restore calm after storm to the victims of Matthew

ON ANY NUMBER OF SCALES, Hurricane Matthew weighed in as a hulking monster as it pounced through the Caribbean region and southeastern United States with hellacious fury last week.

In meteorological record books, Matthew distinguished itself as the first Category 5 Atlantic hurricane since Hurricane Felix in 2007.

In sheer devastation, early estimates of its destruction hover in excess of $5 billion, making it the costliest hurricane since Sandy wreaked havoc on the East Coast in 2012.

In human terms, Matthew's howling winds and torrential downpours claimed the lives of about 1,300 people. That includes at least 43 deaths in the United States and more than 1,200 in Haiti, as of Friday.

Beyond the numbers, however, lies a large swath of intangible pain and immeasurable suffering stretching from the impoverished villages of Haiti to the beaches of Florida and North Carolina.

Even though the scoundrel Matthew has weakened and disappeared from the radar, for many the long process of rebuilding homes, lives and communities has only just begun.

For them, particularly those in still flood-ravaged North Carolina and wind-torn Haiti, danger continues to loom large, and full recovery seems light years away.

Amid the ruins of disaster, however, many rightfully give thanks. A quirk of Mother Nature fortuitously steered the forceful heart of Matthew away from land in the U.S., minimizing a death toll that could have risen to levels surpassing Katrina in 2005.

Many also are thankful for the abundant and relatively accurate warnings and mandatory evacuations that served to lessen Matthew's toll.

And amid the devastation, the indomitable and indefatigable human spirit has triumphed. Many resilient residents refuse to let Matthew win the day. Many of their neighbors – near and far from the epicenters of devastation – have been offering a helping hand or a generous donation to help make victims' lives whole again.

HELP FROM THE VALLEY

It is this sense of expanded community that has motivated helping agencies and individuals throughout the nation. From the Mahoning Valley, for example, a team of disaster relief professionals from SERVPRO have traveled to North Carolina to provide fire and water clean-up services as well as mold removal.

On a larger scale, relief teams from American Red Cross chapters across the country have traveled to the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida to assist victims. They've also sent teams to the hardest hit and most remote areas of Haiti, where disaster has been way of life for far too long. Matthew piled on more devastation on top of the destructive earthquake in 2010 that killed 230,000 people, a post-quake cholera epidemic that claimed more than 7,000 lives and a prolonged drought in recent years that destroyed many Haitians' only source of income, their farmland.

As they and others continue to recover, we applaud and support relief efforts by reputable organizations such as the Red Cross and Salvation Army. Unlike some fly-by-night organizations, donors can rest assured that their donations of money or supplies will reach their intended destinations.

As such, we urge Valley residents who are able to lend a hand to the thousands desperately seeking restoration of normalcy and calm after the storm.

Send out the clowns

Toledo Blade: What's with the current clown panic? Is it really happening? Is it something we need to worry about, with all the other horror and junk we must process daily? Or is this one more hyped up scare – another thing to be paranoid about in a nation that needs to lighten up, let go of a few phobias, and have more self-confidence?

Well, it's real. The scary clowns have been cited in 24 states. There have been a few arrests.

The school system in New Haven, Conn., has banned clown wear. And reports about people with their faces painted and dressed in clown costumes chasing joggers or trying to lure children into wooded areas are abundant and unnerving.

But there have been no serious injuries, thus far.

So don't dress up as a clown and go out on the town. You might incite public panic or frighten the horses.

targeting Somalis

WICHITA, KAN.

Three members of a Kansas militia group were charged Friday with plotting to bomb an apartment complex that's home to Somali immigrants in the western Kansas meatpacking town of Garden City, a thwarted attack prosecutors say was planned for the day after the November election.

The arrests were the culmination of an eight-month FBI investigation that took agents "deep into a hidden culture of hatred and violence," Acting U.S. Attorney Tom Beall said.

A complaint unsealed Friday charges Curtis Wayne Allen, 49; Patrick Eugene Stein, 47; and Gavin Wayne Wright, 49, with conspiring to use a weapon of mass destruction.

The ACLU is looking into complaints from north Louisiana parents who say their teenage children were held after school and strip-searched when a student reported the loss of $42.

Melinda Ponder says her 15-year-old daughter was ordered to strip down to her bra and panties in the classroom at Caldwell High School in Columbia, 30 miles south of Monroe. Ponder said boys were taken to a bathroom where they were told to drop their pants.

Ponder said her husband filed an online complaint with the American Civil Liberties Union of Louisiana.

Nations reach deal

KIGALI, RWANDA

Environmental groups say nations have reached a deal to limit the use of greenhouse gases far more powerful than carbon dioxide as part of efforts to fight climate change.

At issue are hydrofluorocarbons, or HFCs, which are used in air conditioners and refrigerators. Observers say the agreement, set to be announced early Saturday, would cap the use of HFCs beginning in 2019, led by developing countries. Developing countries including China would start taking action in 2024.

Russia seeks to

MOSCOW

Russia's foreign minister sought Friday to lower expectations before another round of international talks on Syria as fighting continued in the besieged city of Aleppo.

Sergey Lavrov is set to meet with U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry and counterparts from several other nations in Lausanne, Switzerland today. The meeting will be the first face-to-face contact between the two men since Washington suspended bilateral diplomatic contact with Moscow earlier this month.

A U.S.-Russia-brokered cease-fire last month collapsed in less than a week amid renewed fighting for Aleppo, where Russian warplanes are backing the Syrian army offensive.

Newtown families'

HARTFORD, CONN.

A judge on Friday dismissed a wrongful-death lawsuit by Newtown families against the maker of the rifle used in the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting massacre, citing an embattled federal law that shields gun manufacturers from most lawsuits over criminal use of their products.

State Superior Court Judge Barbara Bellis granted a motion by Remington Arms to strike the lawsuit by the families of nine children and adults killed and a teacher who survived the Dec. 14, 2012, school attack.

YOUNG ADULTS LACK RETIREMENT PLAN

Associated Press

NEW YORK

Young Americans with even just $1 saved for retirement are ahead of the pack.

Forty-eight percent of all Americans age 18 to 30 have zero in retirement savings and no access to a traditional pension, according to a GenForward poll by the Black Youth Project at the University of Chicago with the Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research.

The youngest in that group are more likely to still be in school, but the trend also holds for those in their late 20s. More than 4 in 10 of those age 25 to 30 have nothing for retirement.

These same Americans are part of a generation whose future retirements, if they happen at all, will be more dependent on their personal savings. That's because traditional pensions are becoming more and more rare. Only 7 percent of those surveyed say they're in line to get the coveted benefit, which promises to pay a set amount monthly after retirement.

Plus, young Americans are likely to get less in Social Security benefits than their parents or grandparents. The age to receive full Social Security benefits is climbing, up to 67 from 66. And most young Americans don't have much faith in the Social Security system to begin with. Only 5 percent say they're very confident in it, and 28 percent say they're somewhat confident.

Despite all that, a majority of young Americans still say they are confident that they'll have enough to retire when they want to. African Americans, Asian Americans and white Americans have similar levels of confidence, between 53 percent and 56 percent. Latinos are an exception. Only 43 percent say they're very or somewhat confident.

"I feel pretty good about our future," says Shavonne Henry, a 26-year-old who lives in Vancouver, Wash., with her 25-year-old husband and children. They have some saved up in a 401(k) through her husband's work and a rolled-over 401(k) account from her old job.

More employers are looking to give their workers, young and old, a nudge to start saving for retirement by automatically enrolling them in 401(k) plans.

There is no magic answer for how much a person needs to have saved for retirement.

Two people with identical ages and incomes could need very different amounts, depending on how long they expect to work, how much they want to spend in retirement and other variables.

Caring for the opioid epidemic's
youngest victims

Tribune News Service

HUNTINGTON, W.VA.

Before hospitals in the rest of the country started seeing a surge in the number of infants born with severe drug withdrawal symptoms, this town of 50,000 was already facing a crisis.

In 2010, babies born to mothers using heroin were filling so many beds in the newborn intensive care unit at the city's main hospital that little space was left for babies with other life-threatening conditions.

The nurses who cared for these agitated and often inconsolable infants knew there was a better and less costly way to help newborns through the painful, weeks-long process of drug withdrawal.

By 2012, they had created a separate newborn therapy unit just for babies in withdrawal. Because their treatment didn't require the same high-tech equipment needed in an intensive care unit, it was about half the cost of neonatal intensive care, said Dr. Sean Loudin, who heads the new unit at Cabell Huntington Hospital.

The next step was to create an infant recovery center outside the hospital where newborns could be taken as soon as it was safe to leave the hospital, usually within two weeks. Not only would it free up beds for other newborns who need intensive care, it also would be tailored to the needs of infants in drug withdrawal, and their parents.

The facility, known as Lily's Place, opened Oct. 1, 2014, in a one-story building that had been a podiatry practice in downtown Huntington. The city, West Virginia's second-largest, is at the center of the country's opioid epidemic, with an overdose death rate nearly 10 times the national average.

Staffed by the same doctor and team of nurses who treat drug-exposed babies in the hospital, plus a social worker, administrative staff and additional nurses and assistants, Lily's Place is a transitional care center where parents can visit their babies throughout the day and occasionally stay overnight before taking them home.

Outage causes flight delays

Associated Press

Passengers on United Airlines reported long delays after the latest in a long line of technology problems at the nation's biggest carriers.

United said early Friday that it had fixed the overnight issue, yet hours later the airline still could not explain what went wrong or even how many flights were canceled or delayed.

United responded on Twitter to passengers who experienced delays or problems with the airline's website. The airline tweeted that it was having problems with its weight-reporting system.

Some passengers traveling late Thursday and early Friday took to social media to complain about delays.

United spokeswoman Maddie King said that overnight the airline "experienced a system issue causing some flights delays." She said the problem was fixed by 4 a.m. Eastern time.

New Medicare rule
changes it up for doctors

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Changing the way it does business, Medicare on Friday unveiled a far-reaching overhaul of how it pays doctors and other clinicians.

The goal is to reward quality, penalize poor performance, and avoid paying piecemeal for services. Whether it succeeds or fails, it's one of the biggest changes in Medicare's 50-year history.

The complex regulation is nearly 2,400 pages long and will take years to fully implement. It's meant to carry out bipartisan legislation passed by Congress and signed by President Barack Obama last year.

The concept of paying for quality has broad support, but the details have been a concern for some clinicians, who worry that the new system will force small practices and old-fashioned solo doctors to join big groups. Patients may soon start hearing about the changes from their physicians, but it's still too early to discern the impacts.

The Obama administration sought to calm concerns Friday. "Transforming something of this size is something we have focused on with great care," said

Andy Slavitt, head of the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

Officials said they considered more than 4,000 formal comments and held meetings around the country attended by more than 100,000 people before issuing the final rule. It eases some timelines the administration initially proposed, and gives doctors more pathways for complying.

The American Medical Association said its first look suggests that the administration "has been responsive" to many concerns that doctors raised.

In Congress, staffers were poring over the details. Rep. Tom Price, R-Ga., who worries that Medicare's new direction could damage the doctor-patient relationship, said he's going to give the regulation "careful scrutiny." Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of a panel that oversees Medicare, called it an "important step forward," but said the administration needs to keep listening to concerns.

MACRA, the Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act, creates two new payment systems, or tracks, for clinicians. It affects more than 600,000 doctors, nurse practitioners, physician assistants and therapists.

The bond shared between a quarterback and his offensive line is always a special one. The one between Youngstown State quarterback Ricky Davis and his offensive line is no exception.

The line has done a solid job of protecting Davis so far this year, even though Davis often decides to leave the protection of the pocket in search of yards. YSU's offensive line has given up only six sacks for 26 yards. On the flip side, the YSU defense has sacked quarterbacks 19 times for 127 yards.

"I was proud of the offensive line," Davis said about last week's 20-6 win at Illinois State. "I'm taking them out to eat and I'm paying for all of them. They're pretty excited about that, the quarterback taking them out to eat."

Davis and six of the offensive linemen dined at Buffalo Wild Wings in Boardman on Thursday. The lineman reportorially downed 140 wings, the solace for Davis being that it was at least wing night so the wings weren't full price.

The offensive line has the task of trying to slow down Northern Iowa defensive end Karter Schult who has 13 tackles for loss this year and 7.5 sacks. That's better than YSU's defensive end duo of Derek Rivers (seven sacks) and Avery Moss (five sacks).

But Davis' trust in his offensive line means he's not sweating Schult.

"I have a lot of faith in the offensive line that I can focus on the secondary if we're dropping back to pass," Davis said. "I can stay poised in the pocket and trust that my offensive line will get it done and I have faith that they will."

The line also has done a solid job of moving the offense forward in addition to limiting losses. The Penguins are averaging 5.3 yards per carry and the Penguins are averaging

It's fortunate for the Cardinal Mooney Cardinals that Antonio Page is a persistent young man.

Page came close to getting a hand on a couple of point-after kicks following touchdowns by the Warren G. Harding Raiders. Given another opportunity after a Harding score late in the game cut Mooney's lead to one point, Page made sure the mission was accomplished.

Coming off the defense's right side, the speedy Page made a diving block of Dominic Vanwinkle's kick to preserve the Cardinals' lead with 1:02 remaining in the fourth quarter. Darrell Jackson recovered the ensuing onside kick, and Mooney ran out the clock on a 35-34 win in a non-conference game Friday night at Mollenkopf Stadium.

"A couple of other times I came close," said Page, who ran for 129 yards and a pair of touchdowns from the quarterback position. "I got caught on my leg. That time I got through to get it."

The block capped a wild game that saw the underdog Cardinals (5-2) score two touchdowns in the first three minutes of play on the way to opening a 35-21 halftime lead. The Raiders (7-1), who lost for the first time after seven wins, rallied for a pair of second-half touchdowns, including a 23-yard pass from Riding a five-game losing streak into Friday night, the only thing Boardman has left to play for is pride.

The Spartans did just that on their senior night with a 21-14 double-overtime win against Ursuline.

Spartans' running back Koby Adu-Poku scored the go-ahead touchdown from nine yards out and their defense held the Irish to a three-and-out.

"Play for Pride. That's all (coach Joe Ignazio) kept saying all week." Boardman senior running back Koby Adu-Poku said. "We came in, senior night, all we had to play for was pride. It was a lot of our last games here and we played our hearts out."

Ignazio stressed playing for pride following a 46-16 beatdown from Warren Harding last week.

"They really bought into it," Ignazio said. "It showed in our physicality and the kids really brought it all game tonight. "We talked about making a commitment for the seniors and for all of us tonight. These kids do a really great job playing for the pride of program year after year with the tough schedules that we face. It's good to know that they'll keep fighting to the end for us."

Adu-Poku helped Boardman control the ball for large chunks of the game. He tallied 35 carries for 129 yards and two touchdowns.

The Youngstown State volleyball team struggled to get going offensively on Friday at Beeghly Center in a three-set loss to UIC. The set scores were 25-19, 25-22, 25-19.

The Penguins had 30 kills and 32 attack errors. The Flames had 10 blocks, but 22 of YSU's errors came without the block being a factor. UIC hit just .124.

Lori Vanbeek led Youngstown State with 11 kills, and Sam Brown was next with six. Brown posted a match-best 13 digs, and Sarah Varcolla was part of four of YSU's eight blocks.

YSU's first lead of the match came in the third set, and the Penguins led for the final time at 13-12. UIC scored the next six points behind Grace Murphy's serve, and YSU had four attack errors in that stretch. An Aleah Hughes kill cut the deficit to 19-17, but that's as close as the Penguins got.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Lamar Jackson provided a cushion with a 2-yard touchdown run with 1:32 remaining and No. 7 Louisville held off Duke 24-14 on Friday night.

The Cardinals caught a break after Evan O'Hara's 46-yard field goal missed wide left as Duke's Breon Borders was called for roughing the kicker. The penalty moved the ball to the 14 and Jackson did the rest with a 12-yard run followed by the short score that Louisville (5-1, 3-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) sorely needed.

Jackson accounted for 325 yards of offense and two touchdowns, hitting Jaylen Smith with a 5-yard scoring pass on the opening drive. Jeremy Smith added an 80-yard TD run in the third quarter, and O'Hara kicked a 22-yard field goal as the Cardinals came off the bye and earned the program's 500th victory.

Duke (3-4, 0-3) remained winless in ACC play but gave Louisville more than it expected.

J.R. Smith signs $57M extension with Cavs

CLEVELAND

A person with direct knowledge of the negotiations says free agent guard J.R. Smith has agreed to a contract offer to return to the defending NBA champion Cavaliers.

Smith has been waiting out of training camp with the Cavs but now has a deal in place, said the person who spoke to The Associated Press on Friday night on condition of anonymity because the package has not been finalized.

ESPN.com reported Smith will sign a four-year, $57 million deal. The 31-year-old Smith was a major contributor last season when the Cavs rallied in the finals to beat Golden State. He averaged 12.4 points and shot 40 percent on 3-pointers in 77 games.

Smith made two huge 3-pointers early in the second half as the Cavs completed an historic comeback after being down 3-1 in the series.

The sides had been in a stalemate over the amount and length of a contract.

Browns players continue to drop

Starting guard Joel Bitonio latest added to IR; McCown still out

Associated Press

CLEVELAND

The Browns are dropping like, well, the Browns.

Decimated by injuries since the season opener, Cleveland placed starting left guard Joel Bitonio on injured reserve Friday. They also ruled out quarterback Josh McCown for this week's game at Tennessee as he continues to recover from a broken left collarbone.

Bitonio's loss is another blow to the winless Browns (0-5), who have already started three quarterbacks, played five this season, and had no luck.

Rookie quarterback Cody Kessler will start against the Titans, one week after he sustained an injury to his chest and ribs in a loss to New England. McCown returned to practice for the first time since getting hurt on Sept. 18, but the 37-year-old isn't ready to play. With McCown still sidelined, rookie Kevin Hogan, promoted from the practice squad earlier this week, will back up Kessler.

Browns coach Hue Jackson said McCown needs more time to heal.

"He is getting there," Jackson said Friday. "He is doing some things really well, but we are going to err on the side of caution with our guys before we stick them out there. I want to make sure they are really healed up and ready to go. Just talking to our medical staff, it is the best thing to do for another week."

Already banged up, the Browns could be without top cornerback Joe Haden on Sunday. Haden has a new groin injury—he missed one game earlier this season—and has been limited in practice. Jackson said Haden got hurt "just running" in practice.

SPRINT CUP

KANSAS CITY, KAN.

Joe Gibbs Racing made another big statement in qualifying at Kansas Speedway on Friday.

The dominant Sprint Cup team this season, JGR swept the top three spots for the second race in the round of 12 of the Chase. Matt Kenseth will start on the pole after his lap of 192.089 mph, Kyle Busch will start alongside him and Carl Edwards will start right behind them in third.

Throw in Martin Truex Jr., whose Furniture Row team has an alliance with the Gibbs boys, and there will be quite a Toyota presence leading the field to the green flag Sunday.

"Our cars are pretty fast this weekend but anything could happen, as we saw last weekend," said Kenseth, who won at Kansas the last time he sat on the pole in 2013. "We have to go 400 miles on Sunday. Hopefully we can stay up front and be in the mix."

Most of the Chase contenders were in the mix in the final round of qualifying.

Joey Logano will try to win the Kansas race for the third straight time for the sixth spot, while Denny Hamlin gave JGR another strong qualifying effort with seventh. Brad Keselowski will start eighth, Kevin Harvick will start 11th and Austin Dillon will roll off in 12th.

"We have a decent starting spot. We'll get a good stall from there," Logano said. "Our team's got confidence, for sure. We had a very fast car last weekend at Charlotte."

The winner last week, Jimmie Johnson, struggled with a tight car in qualifying and will start 21st on Sunday. Chase Elliott will start 13th and Kurt Busch will start 15th as they try to take the pressure off the crapshoot known

SUNDAY
◆ Cleveland Browns vs. Tennessee Titans at Nissan Stadium in Nashville. Kickoff at 1 p.m. TV/radio: CBS; WBBW-AM 1240, WYFM-FM 102.9

Hogan will be listed as Cleveland's No. 2 quarterback, but wide receiver Terrelle Pryor, the former Ohio State and Oakland QB, could line up behind center as he did in Week 3 when he took 14 snaps against Miami.

If Hogan has to play, Jackson said he has confidence in the former Stanford standout drafted in the fifth round by Kansas City before being waived and claimed by Cleveland.

"Obviously, he has practiced and been in meetings," Jackson said. "He has always been in meetings and real engaged, but I think he understands obviously there is potential he could go out there and play. That is a different dynamic for a player when you think through it all, and for me, as well. Last week, that was not the case. He was in street clothes. This week he will be dressed up, and he will be out there just in case

“[I]like how well-rounded we are,” Davis said. “If we struggle running the ball, we can throw and if we struggle throwing the ball, we can run. The offensive line has been very consistent. We’re moving the ball and getting it done.”

Even though the offense has been sputtering at times like it did during the first half of the Illinois State game, Davis said the offense has been receiving a lot of confidence due to how well the defense has been picking them up when need be.

“It’s nice knowing that if we go three and out we have the confidence that we’ll be right back out there as soon as possible.
[The defense] was so excited for us to score those points in the fourth quarter [at Illinois State] and we were excited for them because they were dominant as always.”

LONG FLOWING LOCKS

If you’ve noticed Davis’ hair poking farther out of the back of his helmet week by week, you’re not alone. Davis said the hair won’t be cut until the end of the season.

“I’ll cut it right after the season,” Davis said. “I’m afraid to cut it midway.
People ask me that all the time. Coach [Bo] Pelini
hates it, everyone hates it, my dad hates it, it’s gotten to the point where I hate it.
I can’t wait to cut it.”

Pelini had a friendly warning for Davis if it gets too long.

“Look at my hair and look at his hair, you think I would like it?” Pelini said jokingly. “If it gets too long I’ll just get some hedge clippers and I’ll take care of it myself.”

Run games key when Wisconsin, OSU meet

Associated Press

MADISON, WIS.

Wisconsin linebacker T.J. Watt would like a unique birthday gift this year.

A win over Ohio State might be more cherished than any present.

The second-ranked Buckeyes will visit Camp Randall Stadium tonight in a Big Ten showdown, when the eighth-ranked Badgers hope they can make Watt’s weekend extra special.

“A Big Ten game in prime time, I know they’re going to be juiced up,” Ohio State quarterback J.T. Barrett said.

Just like on Oct. 16, 2010, when Wisconsin handed then-No. 1 Ohio State its first loss of the season, 31-18. It was Watt’s birthday weekend, and he was sitting in the stands as a spectator watching older brother J.J. Watt get two sacks for the Badgers.

“A lot of people say it was the loudest they have ever heard the stadium,” T.J. Watt said.

Watt is following in the pass-rushing footsteps of his older brother and Houston Texans star, though he hasn’t needed much advice.

“Just kind of lets me do my own thing right now,” the younger Watt said.

Whatever he’s doing is working since Watt has 5½ sacks in Wisconsin’s five games.

The Buckeyes (5-0, 2-0) will be the biggest test yet for the defensive-minded Badgers (4-1, 1-1).

Ohio State is ranked fifth in total offense (537.6 yards per game) and third in scoring offense (53.2 points). The Buckeyes run for 323.6 yards per game, third-best in the country.

Wisconsin is allowing just 90.4 yards per game, the sixth-best run defense in the nation.

This could be an old-fashioned Big Ten brawl in the trenches.

“It’ll come down to whether or not we can run the ball, protect, and if we can stop their run game,” Ohio State offensive lineman Pat Elflein said. “Those are always fun games to play in.”

Other things to watch tonight:

BUCKEYES PASS

Ohio State hopes to get its passing game going again after it sputtered in last week’s 38-17 win over Indiana. Barrett was just 9 of 21 for 93 yards, with one touchdown and an interception. Coach Urban Meyer cited communication, in part, as an issue. Barrett was focused this week on getting all 11 players on the offense in sync for every play.

TUCK AND RUN

If he gets into trouble though, Barrett can tuck the ball away and run. He had 137 yards and a score on a career-high 26 carries, which might be too many for the team’s best player. But Barrett is a unique run-pass threat who should cause fits for the Badgers.

Wisconsin coach Paul Chryst likened Barrett’s importance to the Buckeyes to that of a point guard on a basketball team. “Everything goes through him, and he’s got poise,” Chryst said.

ON THE LINEBACKERS

Wisconsin will be without top outside linebacker Vince Biegel again because of a foot injury. But replacement Garrett Dooley played well in his place, opposite Watt, in Wisconsin’s 14-7 loss to Michigan two weeks ago. Inside linebackers Jack Cichy and T.J. Edwards are also playing well, and the defensive line has shown that it can control the line of scrimmage. The Badgers remain strong defensively even at less than full strength.

CLEMENT TIME?

Senior running back Corey Clement is Wisconsin’s best breakaway threat, though he’s waiting for his breakout game this year. Clement did have 111 yards on 21 carries against Akron before getting hurt. He’s averaging 3.9 yards a carry, 2 yards less than his career average. To have a chance at an upset, the Badgers will need to play ball-control, as well as get big plays out of Clement and the running game to take pressure off freshman quarterback Alex Hornibrook.

NIGHT OUT

Barrett thinks the Wisconsin tradition of playing the song “Jump Around” between the third and fourth quarters is “pretty cool.” Wait until he sees it in person. A juiced-up student section leads the celebration, when fans in the creaky stadium sway to the hip-hop anthem. Ohio State is used to playing in hostile road environments, though Camp Randall at night should be a unique experience.

“It’s going to be loud,” Meyer said. “It’s going to be really loud.”

Kluber, Cleveland’s solid and stoic ace, pitched 6 1/3 spotless innings before manager Terry Francona turned things over to the Indians’ best weapon — their bullpen. Andrew Miller made the Blue Jays look silly, striking out five of the six batters he faced, and closer Cody Allen got the save with a perfect ninth as the Indians extended their longest postseason winning streak since 1920.

The Blue Jays wasted some early scoring chances — they had six runners in the first three innings — against Kluber and their frustration only grew as the night went on. Toronto slugger Jose Bautista struck out three times and Edwin Encarnacion lost his cool when he was fanned

Buzzacco powers Raiders to rout of Rebels

By ERIC FORTUNE

NORTH LIMA

The South Range High School football team couldn't have asked for a better send-off for the Raiders' last regular-season game at Memorial Field.

Offensive fireworks filled the Raiders' home since 1955 as junior quarterback Aniello Buzzacco engineered five touchdowns in Friday's 49-0 rout of Crestview.

Buzzacco's stat line read 159 yards passing, four touchdowns and 138 yards rushing, one touchdown.

"He's really coming into his own," South Range head coach Dan Yeagley said. "My goodness, he had forever to throw."

"That hasn't happened a whole lot this year," Yeagley said. "Our offensive line did a great job, especially against their defense.

"Their defense is very, very good. Jordan Murphy is a great defensive end. We were able to block him which gave us a lot of time to throw."

The Raiders will move into a new stadium next year on state Route 46 so they will no longer have to make the trek from their school to their old stomping grounds.

"We have our turf field in," Yeagley said. "The finances are there to start the stadium project. That's our goal to get over there."

"There is a lot of tradition here," Yeagley said. "We've played a lot of games here. I've played here. I've coached here. Some of my staff have played here, but it's time to love on and start new traditions."

Still, there is some tradition still to wrap up this season.

The Raiders (7-1, 2-1 Inter-Tri County Red Tier) have been one of the more successful teams in the Mahoning Valley. It showed against the Rebels.

South Range out-gained the Crestview 430 to 114 in total yards and time of possession was 35:51 to 12:09.

It took the Raiders just five plays to build a 21-0 lead midway through the opening quarter.

two of those touchdowns, finding Ethan Dominguez on 10- and 35-yard touchdown passes.

His 62-yard run to start the game was the start of a spectacular night for the signal caller who took over a couple of weeks ago for Seth Morrow after a shoulder injury.

The longest scoring drive for the Raiders consisted of seven plays when Nathan Daniszewski's 9-yard run made it 28-0 after one quarter.

The lead grew to 42-0 late half-time after Buzzacco's 53-yard pass to Mathias Combs and a 31-yard run.

The Rebels (3-5, 1-2) were without the services of head coach Paul Cusick, who was under the weather.

It was a rough night for Crestview with just 114 total yards of offense with a 2.2 average per running play.

"Our kids played really hard," Yeagley said. "They really did. I want to wish Coach Cusick a fast recovery."

"The kids played awesome, they really did," Yeagley said. "We came out and got a couple of quick scores on them. Then we just kept on rolling."

"This was a special night. Whenever you have senior night, the kids are playing for their parents and they are playing for the people in the community. It's their last home game and our last game here as we plan to move on. Luckily, our kids responded emotionally."

Boardman's Neil Bevacqua swoops down to recover the loose ball on a bad snap before Ursuline's Jared Fabry can get to it during Friday's game at Spartan Stadium in Boardman. The Spartans needed double overtime to defeat the Irish, 21-14.

the game went on that's just how it happened. We let the game flow. I was talking to the coaches on the sideline all game and this is just what happened. I just never asked for a play off and kept getting the ball."

Ignazio took no issue with leaning on Adu-Poku.

"That's our most successful thing that we do. That's what we built our game plan around," Ignazio said. "Koby's phenomenal. All our guys are. It's good to see the seniors go out with a home win. To win this for special kids like Koby. That's why you get into coaching."

Boardman really dominated the game on the ground, running the ball in total 47 times for 152 yards.

"You just have to tackle the opponent. At times it feels like we're going for big hits and not form tackles," Ursuline coach Larry Kempe said. "These are good players. They'll bounce off attempted big hits."

Ursuline ran the ball with much less success. They ran the ball 30 times for only 74 yards.

Dakota Hobbs finished the game as the Irish's leading rusher and receiver. He had 10 carries for 59 yards. He also had six receptions for 110 yards and two touchdowns, including one for 34 yards, and the 32-yard touchdown with under a minute to go in regulation. Defensively, he also had an interception during the overtime period.

"We run snaps from the wildcat from time to time. Just to give them a different look, add some speed out there. It's something we do," Kempe said. The Irish ran eight plays the second half out of the wildcat, with seven of the snaps going to Hobbs. On plays where he was snapped the ball, he ran seven times for 34 yards.

"Hobbs is a good skilled kid," Ignazio said. "We just got to get him down and tackle him in space. We just limited him enough to give us a chance to win the game."

Ursuline made a lot of early mistakes. Less than a minute into the game, a high snap into the end zone while the Irish had the ball lead to a Spartan touchdown. An offsidess penalty on a 4th and four gave Boardman quarterback Lynn Bowden to Marlin Richardson late in the fourth quarter.

Raiders coach Steve Arnold would have gone for two points, but Bowden, easily the area's premier offensive talent, was out of breath. Arnold made the decision to go with Vanwinkle, who easily converted his first four conversion kicks.

"We would have gone for it [two], but Lynn had run five or six times," Arnold said. "We had a two-point play we were going to use, but he was gassed. We didn't want to take a chance."

The Cardinals went with a three-headed, power-running attack. In addition to Page, Jaylen Hewlett gained 124 yards on 19 carries, including a 51-yard touchdown run. Ray Anderson, wearing a lineman's No. 98, powered his way to 50 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries.

"Give credit to the backs, but it all comes down to the O-line," Hewlett said. "If the line can't block, the backs can't do anything."

The Cardinals needed just two plays after the opening kick to take a 7-0 lead. Anderson rammed 9 yards to the Mooney 41, setting up Hewlett's 51-yard run.

Mooney was back in business when Brent Weaver fell on a fumble by Richardson on the ensuing kick. Starting from the Raiders' 25, the Cardinals scored four plays later on an 8-yard run by Page.

It then became a back-and-forth game. Desemen Douglas ran 18 yards for Harding's first touchdown. Mooney answered with a 2-yard scoring run by Page to extend the lead to 21-7.

Bowden connected with Jalen Hooks on a 66-yard touchdown pass three plays later to cut the Mooney lead to 21-14. The Raiders tied the score at 21 when Bowden, who ran for 197 yards and passed for 105, zipped 43 yards for a touchdown with 2:38 remaining in the first half.

That set up a sequence that ultimately proved decisive for the Cardinals, who might have been thinking about running out the clock in the first half. Instead, Page broke free on a 54-yard run to the Harding 12, setting up an 8-yard scoring run by Anderson with 1:34 remaining in the half.

Bowden lost possession setting up to throw a receiver screen pass on Harding's next possession. Hewlett scooped up the ball and ran 30 yards for a touchdown and a 14-point Mooney lead at the half.

"Our player Vinny Santisi tackled him, and I thought he dove on the ball," Hewlett said. "It popped out. I picked it up and ran for a touchdown."

Although the Cardinals were held scoreless in the second half, the two late scores were huge momentum gains that led to a couple time-consuming possessions.

"We knew we had a chance to do it," Cardinals coach P.J. Fecko said. "You take the opening drive. That was the long run for the touchdown. We knew they had so many people up there that as soon as you cracked it, it was going to be devastating. There were a few instances when we were fortunate enough to crack it, and thankfully there were plenty of drives where we grounded it out and kept their offense off the field."

The Raiders opened the third quarter with a 56-yard kick return by Richardson to the Cardinals' 24. Bowden scored on a 2-yard run four plays later.

STRUTHERS

White Division) rushed for 301 yards while Struthers (7-1, 3-1) ran for 259 yards.

Regal Reese led the Wildcats with 102 yards on 22 rushes and a touchdown while Musolino gained 73 yards on 14 carries and a touchdown of his own. Hubbard's Rafael Morales rushed 24 times for 155 yards.

Musolino was quick to credit his offensive line.

“Those guys are big and they create holes,” Musolino said. “We didn’t really need to throw the ball tonight.”

The statistic Hubbard head coach Brian Hoffman will likely be pointing a finger at is three turnovers. Thirteen of the Wildcats’ 20 points came on drives resulting in turnovers.

“Turnovers hurt us,” Hoffman said. “We gave them good field position and a team like that is going to capitalize on them.”

Struthers scored first when Nick Adams scored from 5 yards out in the first quarter. A David Hernandez fumble gave the Wildcats the ball at the Eagle 40 yard line. Musolino eventually scored on a 11-yard run to make it 14-0.

Hubbard got a big boost late in the first half when O’Hara ran it in from 3 yards to get the Eagles within seven with 1:34 before halftime.

Struthers scored their final touchdown early in the third when Reese scored from 4 yards away after a Hubbard interception.

The Eagles came back with a 53-yard sweep run by Davion Daniels and had opportunities in the fourth quarter. But they were stuffed twice on fourth down, three if you count the interception on the final Hail Mary throw.

“We had some situations where we were marching down and then we would sustain a loss and that would put us behind the sticks,” Hoffman said. “We had chances to march it in but we didn’t capitalize.”

The win is the third road win in a row for Struthers after wins at Poland and Campbell. Kuntz said the main reason his team was able to go 3-0 during this stretch is the work the team put in prior to Week 1.

“I think we got these three wins down the stretch in the offseason when nobody was watching,” Kuntz said. “I really think that’s the difference in games like this.”

Struthers, was sitting third in Division IV Region 13 before the win and could be looking at a home playoff game in Week 11, Hubbard came into the week in fifth place in the same region and will have work to do down the stretch against Poland and East.

Hubbard’s Rafael Morales (5) tries to break through Struthers defenders Nick Adams (2) and Trent Stocker (5) in the first quarter of Friday’s game at Hubbard Memorial Stadium. The Wildcats held off the Eagles to win 20-14 and improve to 7-1.

Chinese nationals who defrauded Goodyear get prison

AKRON

Federal authorities say two Chinese nationals who defrauded Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. out of $1.5 million in a kickback scheme have each been sentenced in Ohio to more than two years in prison.

Authorities say Xin Franco Fan and Rex Xu Yu earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit wire fraud and honest services wire fraud. They were sentenced Thursday in Akron to 27 months in prison and ordered to repay the $1.5 million.

Hershey CEO plans to retire in 2017

NEW YORK

Hershey says CEO John Bilbrey plans to retire from the chocolate company next year.

The news comes less than two months after Oreo cookie maker Mondelez ended talks to buy Hershey, in a deal that would have brought together some of the world's best known chocolate and snack brands. Hershey makes Reese's peanut butter cups, Kisses and other chocolates and candies.

Bilbrey will retire July 1 and stay on as a non-executive chairman.

Yellen: Slow recovery confounds some economists

WASHINGTON

Federal Reserve Chair Janet Yellen said Friday that the slow recovery from the Great Recession has surprised economists, confounding long-held beliefs about growth and inflation.

Her remarks could help explain why the Fed has been reluctant to raise U.S. interest rates.

Yellen said sluggish worldwide growth would likely keep global interest rates low, making it harder for central banks to combat the next recession with rate cuts.

US retail sales up

WASHINGTON

U.S. shoppers stepped up their spending in September, with sharply higher sales at auto dealers, restaurants and gas stations. But the government's retail sales report released Friday also contained some evidence that spending might be slowing.

For much of this year, consumers have spent at a solid pace as income gains have accelerated and the job market has improved. Last month's overall retail sales gain was a decent seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent. Much of it, though, was due to higher oil prices, which increased how much people spent at gas stations.

US budget deficit increases to $587B

WASHINGTON

The government ran a $587 billion budget deficit for the just-completed fiscal year, a 34 percent spike over last year after significant improvement from the record deficits of President Barack Obama's first years in office.

Friday's deficit news, while sobering, does not appear bad enough to jolt a gridlocked Washington into action to stem the flow of red ink. It came in an annual report by the Treasury Department and the White House budget office.

Gas industry challenges new drilling rules in Pennsylvania

Associated Press

The natural gas industry in Pennsylvania is challenging new state regulations that govern surface development of shale gas wells, saying they threaten jobs and investment by adding up to $2 million to the cost of drilling a well.

Energy companies in the Marcellus Shale, the nation's largest natural-gas field, filed suit against the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and the state's Environmental Quality Board over rules that took effect last week, calling them financially burdensome, vague and unlawful.

"The provisions we are challenging impose immediate harm to our industry because they affect our ability to operate and remain competitive," David Spigelmyer, president of the Marcellus Shale Coalition, said Friday in a conference call with reporters.

The suit, filed Thursday, marks the first time the powerful trade group has taken the state to court over drilling rules. It seeks to block enforcement pending a ruling on their legality.

Neil Shader, spokesman for the Department of Environmental Protection, said the challenged regulations are "common-sense protections" that resulted from an "unprecedented amount of public comment and involvement."

The regulations had been under development since 2011 and are the first major rewrite since energy companies began exploring the Marcellus Shale several years ago.

They impose more stringent requirements on wells drilled near schools, parks, forests and other public resources, strengthen standards for replacing or restoring water supplies polluted by drilling, and impact a range of surface activities, including waste processing, freshwater impoundments, pipelines and spill cleanup.

Gov. John Kasich said about Wells Fargo, "This company has lost the right to do business with the state of Ohio."

Wells Fargo scandal

OHIO SUSPENDS BUSINESS WITH BANK

Associated Press

Ohio's Republican Gov. John Kasich announced Friday that he was suspending Wells Fargo from doing business with state agencies, and excluding the bank from participating in any state bond offerings.

Kasich's announcement follows similar moves by the state treasurers of California and Illinois and the cities of Seattle and Chicago, which said earlier this month they were banning Wells Fargo from doing business. The San Francisco-based bank has been under fire after allegations came to light that Wells employees may have opened up to 2 million customer accounts fraudulently in order to meet sales goals.

While the scandal has drawn bipartisan outrage, particularly from members of Congress, Kasich is the first state-level Republican to announce actions against Wells Fargo.

"While Wells Fargo only does limited retail banking in Ohio, it does regularly seek state bond business so I have instructed my administration to seek services from other banks instead," Kasich said in a statement. "This company has lost the right to do business with the state of Ohio because its actions have cost it the public's confidence."

Wells Fargo said it will work to regain business with Ohio. "Wells Fargo manages its business with the state of Ohio in business lines that are separated from our retail bank," the company said in a statement.

The ban applies to any financial services contracts that state agencies under the governor's authority may have with Wells Fargo, as well as any future state bond offerings that Ohio may make.

PNC returned $800 million of capital to shareholders, or 85 percent of third quarter net income attributable to diluted common shares, through repurchases of 5.9 million common shares for $500 million and dividends on common shares of $300 million.

On Oct. 4 the PNC board of directors declared a quarterly cash dividend on common stock of 55 cents per share effective with the Nov. 5 payment date.

Salvaged by a big walleye

Anglers know some days on the lake are better than others and some days are a jumbled mix of highs and lows.

Last weekend, I had one of those off days that was salvaged by a brief encounter that totally made up for the scratchy results my efforts produced over my previous four hours on the water.

Despite my anticipation of catching a boatload of chunky largemouth and smallmouth bass, it had not been a great morning when I fired up the Merc for a short dash across Shenango Reservoir to a spot I'd saved for high noon. It's a small bay festooned with anchored Christmas trees and a steep concrete launch ramp.

I switched off the outboard and glided in toward the ramp on the electric motor, cocked a cast and fired my crankbait to a spot from which I could pull the wiggling lure down the length of the concrete pad. Four or five turns into the retrieve I was rewarded with an all-out load on the line. My 7-foot stick bowed into a big arc.

For a moment, I gained nothing. It felt like my line was tied to a rock, but the rock was bucking. Finally I gained on the battle and worked the still-unseen fish nearly to the surface.

I was pretty sure I wasn't battling a bass because the fish never broke water. Expecting to see a big old catfish or hybrid striped bass, I was stunned when I identified the creature. It was a walleye. But not an ordinary walleye.

With no net on deck, I had to kneel to hand-land the behemoth. It was a struggle just to pull the walleye's head up where I could survey for a good place to grip. My crankbait was deep in the fish's mouth, but we all learned long ago that it's not cool to put a lip grip on a walleye thanks to their needle-sharp teeth.

My experience with lots of Mosquito's northern pike and West Branch's muskies came in handy as I slipped two fingers under the gill cover, being careful to avoid damaging the feathery red tissue that enables fish to pull oxygen from the water.

I freed the lure from the walleye's mouth and dropped the fish into the livewell to buy time to set up my scale. I carry a very accurate electronic Brecknell scale, the same model used by boat judges in Major League Fishing competition. The digital read-out settled on 7 pounds 6 ounces.

It was the biggest walleye I've ever caught. And it was quite a surprise on an otherwise slow day of fishing. I snapped a photo to with the successful lure and a measuring board alongside the lunker walleye to show perspective.

After a morning of fishing that resulted in only a few bass, that big walleye had made my day. It's the kind of experience everyone should enjoy, so I released the fish to give another lucky angler a thrill some day.

ERIE WALLEYE FALL BRAWL SIGN-UP
Ranger and Mercury walleye pro Sammy Cappelli of Poland reminds area anglers that sign-up for the annual Lake Erie Walleye Fall Brawl is underway.

The big derby is for anglers fishing the Ohio waters of Lake Erie. It starts Oct. 21 and continues to Dec. 4. The official weigh station is at Erie Outfitters, 5404 Lake Road, Sheffield Lake. Anglers are gathering today at Erie Outfitters from 1 to 3 p.m. for sign-up and competition information, food, drinks and raffles.

Anglers can register in person at Erie Outfitters, online or by mail. The registration deadline is 11:59 p.m. Oct. 19.

Cappelli said he and hundreds of others will fish to see who catches the heaviest Erie walleyes this autumn. "It's a super competition and Frank Murphy does a great job putting it all together with fantastic sponsors and great prizes," he said.

For additional information and online registration, visit www.lakeeriefishingderby.com.

Chilly temperatures and shorter days mean it's time to fill the bird feeders, so let me review the best foods to offer backyard birds

Sunflower Seeds (best feeder: tubes). Black-oil sunflower seeds are the single-best and most economical food for wild birds. These small, thin-shelled seeds are easy to open, rich in fat and protein and inexpensive. Virtually every seed-eating bird that visits backyard feeders eats black-oil seeds. A feeding station can be stocked solely with black-oil sunflower seeds, and birds will visit daily.

Striped sunflower seeds are larger and have thicker shells than oil seeds. They are favorites of cardinals, jays and woodpeckers, and can be cast on the ground or presented in tube- or hopper-style feeders.

Hulled sunflower seeds, which also are called sunflower kernels or sunflower chips, are the best food for most birds because they are 100 percent food—no waste, no mess, no germination. The extra step of removing the shells, however, increases the cost, so they are not cheap. Also, hulled sunflower seeds spoil quickly when wet, so they should be placed in a feeder that is weatherproof.

Nyer (best feeder: finch tube) is the tiny, black, oil-rich seed that's often erroneously called "thistle." Finches love it, and doves and many native sparrows clean up what spills beneath finch feeders. Because it's imported from Africa and Asia, it's expensive.

Millet (best feeder: platform or hopper). Several varieties of millet include white proso, red, golden, German and Japanese. All are eaten by a variety of ground-feeding sparrows, game birds and waterfowl, but white proso millet is preferred. One of millet's best qualities is that its seed coat is hard enough to resist weathering, but not too hard for birds to crack.

Corn (best feeder: tray or hopper). Crows and game birds love whole corn. At backyard feeders whole corn also attracts jays and doves. Unfortunately, it's also a favorite of pigeons, grackles and squirrels.

Cracked corn appeals to many backyard birds, but it carries some serious disadvantages. It's dusty, it spoils quickly when wet, and it attracts some undesirable birds. Pigeons, starlings, house sparrows, cowbirds and grackles quickly find feeders filled with cracked corn, so use it sparingly if these birds are a problem.

Pumpkin seeds (best feeder: tray) compare favorably to sunflower seeds in popularity with many birds. After carving jack-o-lanterns for Halloween, dry pumpkin seeds and offer them as occasional treats.

Nuts (best feeder: squirrel-proof tube). Walnuts, pecans, acorns and almonds are natural, nutritious, high-energy foods for woodpeckers, jays, chickadees, titmice and nut-lard (no substitutes here), 1 cup white flour, and ½ cup sugar. Melt lard and peanut butter over low heat, then stir in remaining ingredients. Pour into square freezer containers about an 1½ inches thick. Chill in the freezer for about 20 minutes, then cut to size, separate blocks with wax paper, and store in freezer.

Live food. Finally, for a treat birds cannot resist, offer live mealworms, the larval stage of harmless darkling beetles, on a shallow tray. Woodpeckers, chickadees, titmice, nuthatches and even cardinals love them.

Mealworms are most economically purchased from online sources such as www.grubco.com. Better yet, buy a few thousand mealworms, then raise your own.

Nancy Grace ends HLN network run

NEW YORK

Nancy Grace has said goodnight for the final time after 12 years of discussing true crime stories from a prosecutor's point of view on TV. Grace ended her HLN program Thursday night.

She signed off by highlighting some of her most popular moments on the program, including her coverage of the Casey Anthony trial, before thanking her fans and saying, “It's not goodbye, it's just good night, friend.”

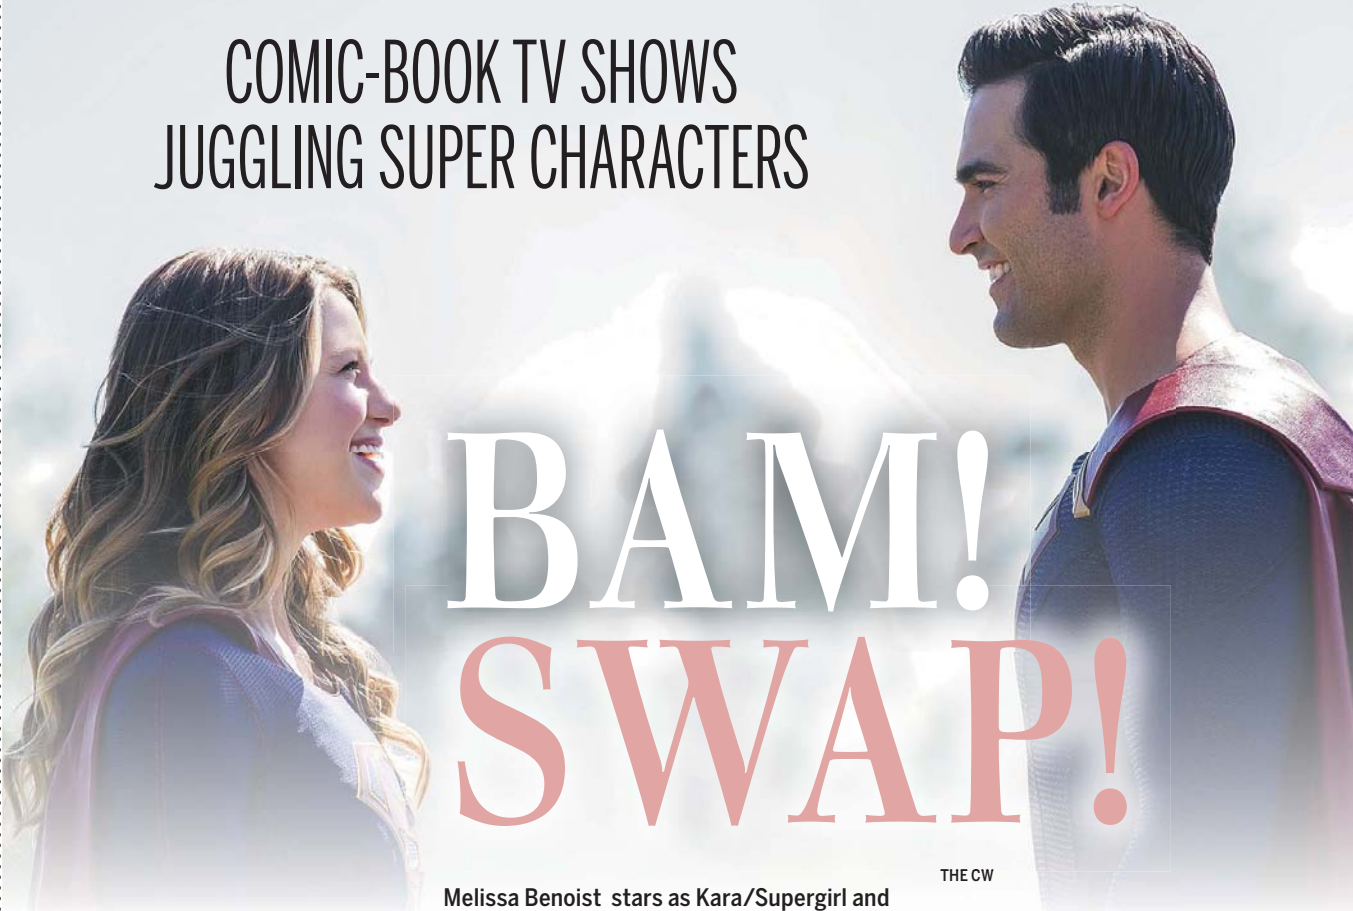

The former Atlanta prosecutor's interest in law was sparked in college when her fiancé was murdered.

Grace hasn't offered any specifics on her plans.

She began her television career on Court TV before moving to HLN in 2005.

COMIC-BOOK TV SHOWS JUGGLING SUPER CHARACTERS

The only constant in comic books is there is no consistency. Major characters such as Superman have been killed and then brought back to life. Thor is now a woman. Original stories have been revamped.

Network television shows based on comic books are no different. Because there have been so many changes, here's a capsule look at what has been going on that should help you keep your characters straight.

♦ “Arrow,” 8 p.m. Wednesdays, CW Network: The end of last season left the Green Arrow (Stephen Amell) without his support team. Both John Diggle (David Ramsey) and Thea Queen (Willa Holland) have given up their superhero ways, and Black Canary (Katie Cassidy) was killed.

“We do look at this season as a bit of going back to our roots. And when we come into the season, Oliver will still be out there fighting crime on his own. He will also have taken up the mantle of the city's mayor. So we're going to be exploring both him as a hero, both in a very kind of traditional sense as the mayor, and also as the Green Arrow,” says Wendy Mericle, “Arrow” executive producer.

Help will come in the form of Wild Dog (Rick Gonzalez), a vigilante introduced in his own comic book in 1987. In the seventh episode, Vigilante will join the battle. The version joining the show will be the one created by Marv Wolfman and George Perez in 1983 for “Teen Titans” annual No. 2.

♦ “DC's Legends of Tomorrow,” 8 p.m. Thursdays, CW Network: The first season ended with Hawkman (Falk Hentschel) and Hawkgirl (Ciara Renee) flying off into the sunset. The team had already lost Captain Cold (Wentworth Miller), who sacrificed himself for the group.

Also, Rex Tyler (Patrick J. Adams), better known as Hourman, arrives to give the group a warning about getting back on the Waverider. The new season opens with the team traveling through time and Hourman nowhere to be seen.

♦ “Flash,” 8 p.m. Tuesdays, CW Network: The season opener revealed the aftermath of the Flash (Grant Gustin) going back in time to stop the Reverse Flash (Rick Cosnett) from killing his mother. One change is the introduction of Kid Flash (Keiya Lonsdale) but the fate of that character is on hold. The first appearance of Kid Flash was in “The Flash” No. 110.

As Ghost Rider's (Gabriel Luna) quest for vengeance brings him into an explosive confrontation with S.H.I.E.L.D., Coulson and Mack must rely on an unlikely ally in their time of desperate need on “Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.” on Tuesday.

Executive producer Andy Kreisberg says, “‘The Flash’ picks up with Barry living in this new version of events and having to deal with both the benefits that that's produced for him and also some of the costs.”

There has been one new supervillain added in The Rival (Todd Lasance), another character with super speed. The Rival was introduced in “Flash Comics” No. 104. ♦ “Gotham,” 8 p.m. Mondays, Fox: Along with a large group of new villains, including Mad Hatter (Benedict Samuel), potential Batman foe Poison Ivy gets an age upgrade as Maggie Geha takes over the role.

“In the spirit of ‘Suicide Squad’ of teaming up villains, putting them together, having them be a more powerful force by combining them is something that we are definitely doing in Season 3,” says Ken Woodruff, “Gotham” executive producer.

The character of Vicki Vale (Jamie Chung) also has been added. Her first appearance was in “Batman” No. 49 back in 1948.

♦ “Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.,” 10 p.m. Tuesdays, ABC: The two biggest changes are the addition of Ghost Rider (Gabriel Luna) and S.H.I.E.L.D. has a new leader known as the Director. Jason O'Mara is playing the new boss.

Ghost Rider has been in comics since 1972 when he first appeared in “Marvel Spotlight” No. 5.

♦ “Lucifer,” 9 p.m. Mondays, Fox: Look for some mommy issues on the comic book series with Lucifer's mother now in the mix. Tricia Helfer takes on the role.

♦ “Supergirl,” 8 p.m. Mondays, CW Network: The season opener introduces two major characters.

“We ended last season with a mysterious pod crashing in National City. Obviously, the identity of the person in the pod is now confirmed as Mon-El. And, you know, in the premiere, a threat is going to arise that's going to require Supergirl and Superman to team up,” says Kreisberg, who is executive producer of “Supergirl” as well as “Flash.”

The addition of Superman (Tyler Hoechlin) is huge because it looked as if that character would be off-limits because of the DC Comics movies.

Also look for Miss Martin, played by Sharon Leal, to join the show.

Rumer Willis on her own

By JOHN BENSON
entertainment@vindy.com

When you're a child of a high-profile movie star couple seeking your own career in show business, respect is often hard to come by. Just ask Rumer Willis, daughter of Hollywood actors Bruce Willis and Demi Moore, who over the last few years has overcome adversity on her way to making inroads in the family business.

After winning Season 20 of “Dancing with the Stars” and later making her Broadway debut as Roxie Hart in “Chicago,” the actress-singer-dancer is readying the release of her debut album sometime next year. In the meantime, Willis is hitting the road with her “Over The Love Tour,” which comes to Northeast Ohio for a Monday show at the Kent Stage in Kent.

“When I was putting the tour and set list together, I was thinking what's something that everybody felt that doesn't discriminate on what you look like, who you love, where you are from or how much money you have,” said Willis, calling from Los Angeles. “I thought love is kind of a universal thing.”

Willis will be performing a chanteuse-style variety show featuring timeless standards ranging from cabaret and jazz to classic R&B, rock 'n' roll and pop. In addition, Willis is showcasing original material, including her sister Scout's song “Little Wolf.”

“It's one of my favorites,” Willis said. “She's an incredible writer. I love her lyrics. They're really like poetry. The song is about love. I tried to pick songs that kind of fit in with the whole vibe of the tour, the different feelings of being in love or out of love.”

Regarding being in love or out of love, the discussion delved into to her Facebook relationship status and lack of subtlety.

“I am happily single,” Willis said. “In fact, I'll be performing my new song ‘Go Away Boy.’ I just think it's one of those songs you can listen to if you're driving in the car. It's a great song for a road trip. It has a great beat with cool lyrics. It's one of those fun songs you can really scream to in your car.”

As far as the not-so-subtle song title, she said with a laugh, “I think most of my friends would say I'm not one to be the most subtle with certain things.”

Something else not understated is Willis' “Dancing with the Stars” experience, which she said taught her a tough lesson.

“I think at the end of the day, you can't quote the value of yourself on other people's opinions, good or bad,” Willis said.

RECORD REVIEW

KINGS OF LEON

♦ Album: “WALLS”

♦ Grade: 3 stars (out of 4)

Kings of Leon's seventh album is mostly sleek and polished and far more pop-oriented than anything else they have ever done, though the band does sort of ease into it. The opener and first single, “Waste a Moment,” sounds like it could fit next to “Sex on Fire” on the band's Grammy-winning “Only by the Night” album.

By the time we reach the chugging, 6-minute epic “Over,” though, the shift becomes clearer. The track balances between verses where Caleb sounds like he's channeling Interpol and a verse that's so poppy it could have come from One Direction's last album.

“WALLS” feels like a transitional album, a way for the band to move to more radio-friendly middle ground without scaring off its Day One fans.

Dear
Annie

Exercise: It is essential to health

Dear Annie: I need help figuring out how to address a touchy subject. Over the past few years, my lovely wife — let’s call her “Deb” — has gradually gained some weight. I’ve tried to pinpoint when exactly it started, and I think it was some time around when our youngest left for college, three years ago. Deb was (and still is) sad about the empty nest, and ice cream became her nightly comfort food. She also snacks on potato chips when we watch TV, and she always orders dessert when we go out to eat. I can be bad about snacking, too, but I’ve always had a good metabolism, and it’s been easy for me to stay thin.

Deb has noticed that some of her clothes don’t quite fit anymore but says she must have shrunk them in the dryer. She has mentioned wanting to be more active but never actually follows through on exercising. It’s as if she’s kind of aware of her weight gain but she would rather just sweep it under the rug and not think about it. She’s beautiful, and I love her no matter what, of course, but I worry about her long-term health, especially if she keeps gaining weight.

HOLDING MY TONGUE

Dear Holding: Spouses hold a lot of sway over each other’s exercise routine. Start working out and there’s a good chance your wife will, too. Perhaps you could even suggest an activity you two can do together, such as tennis or bike riding. That would be to your benefit, as well, because no matter how blessed you are with a fast metabolism, exercise is essential to good health.

If your wife is still reluctant to get moving, have a talk with her, but keep the focus on her overall health and well-being, not the number on the scale. Check in with her about how she’s feeling emotionally and mentally. It’s important that she stay active, spend time with friends and embrace this new chapter in her life rather than continue to mourn the empty nest.

Dear Annie: As an avid reader of your column and a retired educator, I couldn’t help responding to the mother of the schoolchildren who bestowed end-of-the-school-year gifts on their teachers. She was upset that the instructors don’t send thank-you notes to her children for their thank-you gifts. It seems to me that would be a “thank you” for a “thank you,” and that is unnecessary.

Has she considered how these gifts make the students whose parents can’t afford gifts feel? Has she considered how bad teachers feel when their colleagues have a pile of gifts on their desks and they received nothing? Her gifts might well be a genuine expression of sincere gratitude, but other parents may then one-up her for the sole purpose of trying to impress.

The best way to show appreciation to teachers is to make sure homework is completed and turned in on time, pay your school lunch bill, send your children to school with their supplies, well-rested and clean, and support the rules of the district and classrooms. I’m certain the teachers gave her children hugs and big verbal thank-yous when they received the gifts.

Hints for walking your dog

Dear Readers: The weather is cooler and the leaves are changing. Now is the perfect time to hit the trails, or the park, or the neighborhood ... with your dog. Here are some hints for you when walking your dog:

- ◆ Dogs crave exercise and attention. Combine the two with a walk. Make sure the dog has a secure harness or collar and leash. Find a smooth and well-lit walking path.
- ◆ Clean up after the dog, and dispose of the waste properly.
- ◆ Teach the dog to walk by your side and not out in front of you. This is called “heel.” The dog needs to know that you are in charge.
- ◆ Walk briskly. The dog will learn that you are the leader.
- ◆ A routine is critical, too. Keeping the dog on a schedule will keep him happy, anticipating spending time with you.

Heloise

Dear Readers: Dave D. in Gibsonia, Pa., sent a picture of his adorable tricolored beagle, Buddy, looking earnestly out the window from the comfy sofa. Dogs crave human companionship. Or is Buddy watching the squirrels?

Dear Readers: Some of you may have received beautiful jewelry or bought some yourself. I’m reprinting my Heloise Homemade Jewelry Cleaner formula so you can keep your jewelry looking new.

- ◆ Work in a ventilated area.
- ◆ Mix equal parts ammonia and water in a small bowl.
- ◆ Immerse pieces in the solution and leave for a few minutes. Remove and gently loosen any debris from prongs, etc., with a soft toothbrush.
- ◆ Rinse with warm water, and dry with a hand towel or microfiber cloth.
- ◆ Caveats: The solution is only for genuine gold and diamond jewelry. It is not for jewelry with pearls, opals or other soft stones.

I have compiled into a pamphlet a collection of my favorite homemade cleaning solutions using everyday common household staples. If you’d like to order one, visit my website, www.Heloise.com, or send a long, Heloise-sized (68 cents), self-addressed, envelope, along with $5, to: Heloise’s Homemade Cleaning Solutions, P.O. Hi, Heloise: When a dog scoots across the carpet, this is not funny. The dog needs to go to the veterinarian and have its anal glands drained.

This is an important reminder. Dogs normally empty the anal glands when they have a bowel movement. Ask your dog’s doctor about this at your pet’s annual exam.

CELEBRATION

CAMPBELL

“Where you enter to worship, leave to serve” remains the directive and motto of Community Church of God, which is celebrating its 100th anniversary this weekend.

Though small in number, the membership is strong in commitment to the Bible passage “For we walk by faith, not by sight” from 2 Corinthians 5:7.

Recently, the Rev. Gary Rozier, interim pastor since 2015; Marlie Byrd, a lifetime member; Rosie Hall, a 60-year member; Sharon Perry, a lifetime member; and Loretta White, a member since 1973, discussed the church.

A ministry that remains consistent is visiting nursing homes and homebound members. “It started years ago. We have a Bible study, prayer and fellowship,”

COMMUNITY CHURCH OF GOD | 100 years of history

Community Church of God, 710 Sanderson Ave., Campbell, celebrates its 100th anniversary this weekend on “centennial Sunday.” Rev. Gary Rozier, interim pastor, will speak at 11 a.m. A fellowship dinner will follow at 1:30 p.m. at the Elm Tree in Struthers. At 5 p.m., the Rev. Kenneth Simon, pastor of New Bethel Baptist Church in Youngstown, will speak and the church choir will sing.

◆ The beginning: The Church of God began in Youngstown in 1916 under leader Blackburn of Sharon, Pa., who was with The Brothers and Sisters of Love, then affiliated with the Church of God in Anderson, Ind. In its pioneer stage, leaders were Elders Jeter, Simmons, P. Wimbush and Turner. The church was on West Federal Street and Chicago Avenue in Youngstown, then the congregation bought a church building at 712 Arlington Ave., Youngstown.

◆ 1930s-1950s: In May 1938, the Rev. Samuel Adair was called to pastor. The mortgage of the church and parsonage was paid off. The congregation grew; another building was bought at 537 Arlington St., where the church did remodeling and repairs. The Rev. Mr. Adair retired in June 1959. In November 1959, Campbell and Struthers COG congregations merged the ministries of Elders A.A. Edgings and G. Harper with the Youngstown congregation.

◆ 1960s-1990s: Rev. J.J. Jefferson served 1960-63. In June 1963, the Rev. Charles Heard was named pastor. The church bought a building at 1339 Himrod Ave., Youngstown, and took the name Himrod Church of God. He resigned in 1970. In June 1971, the Rev. Frank Matthews was named pastor, serving until 1977. The church installed a baptismal font and began a van ministry. The Rev. Mr. Matthews resigned to become executive secretary at the National Association of the Church of God in West Middlesex, Pa. The Rev. Elestine Corbin was named pastor in 1978; she served until her death in 1989. The church bought a new van and remodeled the sanctuary. The Rev. Catherine Rexford, assistant pastor, was installed as pastor in 1990.

Community Church of God, 710 Sanderson Ave., Campbell, moved to its current location in 2003 after its building on Himrod Avenue in Youngstown was severely damaged by a tornado.

◆ 2000s: After worshipping for 39 years and six months at the Himrod Church of God, the congregation moved to its current location because a tornado in 2003 caused a large pine tree to puncture the church roof and severely damage the sanctuary. Dec. 7, 2003, was the date of the official move and name change to Community Church of God. The Rev. Ms. Rexford served until she retired in 2007. The church was able to buy the building on Sanderson Avenue and a residence as a parsonage. A baby grand piano was bought. The Rev. Eric U. Brown Sr. was pastor. The church bought an organ, blacktopped the parking lot and updated the sound system. When he served the U.S. in Afghanistan; the Rev. Catherine Lockhart was pastor from 2007-08. In 2009, Pastor Brown returned and stayed until 2012 when he accepted the senior pastorate at York Avenue Church of God in Warren. In 2013, the Rev. Lawrence Thomas Jr. became pastor. The church improved the landscaping, bought new chairs for the sanctuary and had a clothing drive. He left in 2015 when the Rev. Gary Rozier began serving.

◆ Church structure: Clarence White, finance committee chairman, and Marlie Byrd, treasurer; White, trustee board chairman, and Ronald Perry, vice chairman, and Byrd, Derrick Cathey and Donna Turner; Loretta White, Sharon Perry and Rhonda Burt, deaconesses; Ronald Tomlin, men’s organization; Kisha Cathey, Women’s Connection; Derrick and Kisha Cathey, youth ministry; Rosie Hall and S. Perry, social fellowship committee; Michele Alston, president, and White, vice president, usher board; Byrd, S. Perry and K. Cathey, decorating committee; Michael Jennings, David Alston, Turner, S. Perry and Burt; Byrd, music committee; R. Perry, Sunday school superintendent; Byrd, Christian education board chairperson; and K. Cathey, church secretary.

‘My grace is sufficient’
to heal

In the midst of difficulties and encountering many challenges, St. Paul asked God to put an end to his miseries and let him depart in peace. The Lord’s reply was: “My Grace is sufficient for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me” from 2 Corinthians 12:9.

The grace divine heals that which is infirm and completes all insufficiencies.

Clergy and laity can experience such an ordeal. A sensitive person can get tired of himself and his place. He or she can realize his/her vulnerabilities and weaknesses, knowing that he/she is made of dust and ashes. God does indeed designate a certain man to be his priest and to serve him. Despite the weaknesses, temptations and challenges he faces caused by his own sinfulness, his parishioners’ and even his bishop’s, the priest must endure all things. Indeed throughout his ministry the priest encounters many challenges and the divine message continues to be the same: “My Grace is sufficient”!

In the make-up of any church community, there is always a mixture of those who are committed, positive and God-like, and those who are insensitive, critical, negative and judgmental. The Lord has designated the nature and the scope of the priestly vocation so that the priest can deal with all, in hope that things can improve. The priest endures in anticipation, affirming the actions and operation of the Lord in our lives. This means that the priest does not give up; nor does he surrender or compromise with the principles of his vocation.

The priestly vocation is born out of the womb of the Gospel of Christ. The priest understands that he is not serving angels. Some of his devoted parishioners may be angelic, but in the end, the priest has to deal with his spiritual children with love and compassion, using different pastoral approaches suited to the situation with individual spiritual children. His love for Christ is the gate that leads into his encounter with his flock.

At times, the priest might feel isolated and experience the heavy burden of his ministry. He knows that his first responsibility is to confess that the only worthy and meaningful comfort comes from above, from the father of lights. Inspired by the words of the Gospel and comforted by the grace divine, the priest offer his words. Parishioners can either choose to respond and live or reject and die

Regardless of the choice, the priest, under all circumstances, must be loving and patient, bearing all burdens. The priest is commissioned by the Lord to reflect and express the image and likeness of him who has chosen him. He is called to proclaim the Gospel of the kingdom, to minister the word of his truth, to offer spiritual gifts and sacrifices, to renew the people through the lever of regeneration, in the plenitude of God’s goodness and through his grace divine.

The Rev. Daniel Rohan is pastor of St. Mark Orthodox Church in Liberty.

White said. Members of the deaconess board also are involved in this ministry.

She also noted members serve dinner the third Wednesday of the month at Rescue Mission of Mahoning Valley. At one time, the church also had a food pantry.

Another group, Women of God, is now Women's Connection, said Perry. "It's mostly about fellowship, sharing our ups and downs," she said. "We lift each other up." She noted the mainly social group also has movie nights and dinners at the church.

Music remains a mainstay, with Michael Jennings as minister of music. "We now have a praise team," Perry said. Years before, she said, the church had children's, youth, men's and main choirs.

A tradition within the church is attendance at the National Association of Church of God event at its campground in West Middlesex, Pa. Community COG is affiliated with Church of God based in Anderson, Ind. "Some people stay the week ... there are services and music," Perry said of the event that attracted COG congregations from all over.

Attention is paid to educating members in the Bible and the faith through Sunday school sessions for children and adults at 9:30 a.m. Sundays. A Bible study Tuesdays offers prayer at 6 p.m. and study following.

The congregation faced a big decision in 2003 when a tornado hit its former building, Himrod Church of God on Himrod Avenue in Youngstown. "The sanctuary was destroyed because a big pine tree came through the roof," Byrd recalled. The accident was chronicled in The Vindicator. "Thank goodness the church was empty at the time," she said. The communion table and worship books were salvaged.

As upsetting as the devastation was, White noted the accident "turned out to be a blessing." At the time, the congregation faced high utility bills in an aging building. The storm damage prompted the congregation to look for another site, more manageable financially with more convenient access. The church found an appropriate building in Campbell and the official move was Dec. 7, 2003.

"The old church had lots of steps," Perry said, noting that was difficult for older members. The current church is one level and has a ramp.

The church had a contest for a new name and the late Adam Parker submitted Community COG, which won. He had served as deacon board chairman and was a trustee.

The church family settled into its new site. "I really consider this a family church," Hall said. "We have a lot of older families and families through generations."

"It's a loving, close and giving church," Byrd said. "It's always been geared to family ... making sure that people had God in their lives."

White contributed that "it is a loving church that is Christ-centered." She shared that two sons had died and she "couldn't have gotten through it without the love that members showed. They really try to be a supportive system," White said.

"This is a loving congregation that doesn't just say it, we show it," Perry said. "People have even said that to us."

The Rev. Mr. Rozier said he preached his first sermon at the church Nov. 1, 2015, his birthday. "A minister is supposed to minister to the members, but they minister to me," he said, adding "the congregation is very supportive." He also is a chaplain with Hospice of the Valley, having served for 15 years. "Preaching and teaching," Mr. Rozier said, are priorities.

Within the church, there is a Wall of Fame recalling pastors who have served. At a prayer wall, members can place prayer requests. The church continues the tradition of a New Year's Eve Watch Night service and fasting is observed at different times. The church also has an outdoor service and picnic at Roosevelt Park.

The Cathey family is an example of involvement. Kisha, a 19-year member, is church secretary and leads the youth ministry with her husband, Derrick, who also is a trustee. "It's family-oriented ... everyone is another mother to you," Kisha said. Derrick Cathey, who had attended another church for a long time, said Community "has a family atmosphere." Their daughter, Sapphire, 12, is in the mime ministry.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Happy Birthday! In The Next Year: The mechanics of things can oft interfere with the reality of them. It's why you'll take extra care this year to bring the technical aspects into harmony with the real world effects. Success in this endeavor will affect every part of your life. Your relationships will sing high octaves and your finances will provide the bass notes. Cancer and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 22, 31 and 9.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Libra Marie Osmond started her career by working in tandem with her brother Donny. Working partnerships are a good strategy for any Libran. Yet Marie's planet of "what I want," Mars, can be tricky in Libra, which is all about what other people want. Marie is also good at fighting for justice, or crusading on behalf of others' rights. This year you can catch Marie Osmond in her highly rated Las Vegas show.

♈ARIES (March 21-April 19). You don't have to spend money to be happy, though when you're out and about it will certainly feel this way. That only means that the marketers are doing their job.

♉TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Overnight transformations are the stuff of fairy tales. Reality follows the slow-growth model of striving each day for a small improvement. In four weeks you'll look back and be impressed by how much you've changed.

♊GEMINI (May 21-June 21). It may seem that resisting temptation is only making it harder to resist temptation. However, if you persist, there will come a time in which this trend reverses, and you'll no longer want what's bad for you.

♋CANCER (June 22-July 22). Half-full, half-empty -- if the glass has anything in it at all, it's serving the purpose it was made for. Perhaps we don't need to judge it with such precision. Perhaps we only need to drink.

♌LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). There's so much that's going right for you today. Then there's this little section of, well -- what doesn't get better by chance might get better with a concerted effort. And even if it doesn't, at least you can say you tried.

♍VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your even mood makes this an ideal time to do some emotional planning. Make a list of all of the things that could possibly help, should you fall into an emotional rut. If you happen to run into trouble later, you'll be ready.

♎LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The next step is just like the last step. It's going to go on like this for a while. You're used to it by now. Maybe you're even deciding that you love it. The end of the day will bring a mild twist -- something wonderful to ponder.

♏SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). On a mystical level, it's intriguing how you can focus yourself in a certain way and then suddenly it's all you can see. On a practical level, the self-fulfilling prophecy phenomenon is all too real. It's something you'll experience and control today.

♐SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). What you used to be afraid of is now old hat: Slap it on; look great; no problem. You'll help another through a fear today -- very real, and very silly, too.

♑CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When others start looking to you, talking to you, asking you for advice, it can be very intoxicating to the ego at the beginning. The only way to counter this is to do something intentionally humbling.

♒AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You hope that some people will forget you, others will remember you with a stinging poignancy and, in the case of tonight, others will merely remember to give you your food, your money or both.

♓PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Even the best baseball players find it hard to hit a curveball. Most would agree, though, that the best way to know what's going to come at you is to study the pitcher.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I'm newly divorced and in desperate need of some good news. I didn't want to get divorced, and the whole circus has put me in financial and emotional ruin. Will I ever meet a prince to carry me away from this horrible memory? I was born Sept. 26, 1960." The heavy Libran aspects in your chart indicate that you sometimes feel incomplete without a partner. Ideally, a partner will enrich your sense of who you are and make you want to be better, stronger and abler. As you love and are loved by this person you will find new sources of strength inside you. Looking for a "savior" to whisk you out of your self-created circumstances will not lead you to an empowering love. Instead it secures your role as the helpless victim who cannot create a better life and needs someone to do it for her. So here's the good news. Whatever the cost of your divorce, you are free to decide that it was worthwhile because it's what happened. And you are now free to create your new life and your new self. With the right attitude, this so-called "horrible memory" is merely a passage you had to go through to liberate yourself.

Margaritas in the sleet: The great American tailgate

Brad is deep-fat-frying a turkey. His wife, Kathy, is passing around Jell-O shots, after sampling a few to make sure the flavor was just right.

Chopper is slow-roasting an entire pig. Lacy is baking 20 pounds of her famous ham loaf. Darren is setting up the margarita machine, after putting hundreds of bottles of craft-brewed beer on ice. There's a chili-tasting challenge going on just around the corner.

More people are showing up all the time, and everyone seems to know everyone else. There's a carnival vibe in the air. Wait, what's this – a marching band? What kind of a restaurant is this?

It's not a restaurant, it's just the weekly tailgate party in the visitors' parking lot of this week's big game. Brad is frying that turkey behind his SUV; everyone else is cooking or unpacking enormous amounts of food and snacks.

This is college football at its finest. Brad, Kathy, Chopper, Lacy, Darren and all their friends and family drove seven hours to get to this game.

They brought tents in our team's colors, and proudly display expensive memorabilia and collectibles while they spread out the food they've made on folding tables for the other fans to share. The food

Yet.

Of course, it's only 10 in the morning, and the party's just getting started. The game won't start until 4. As in, six hours from now. How is anyone going to sit through a three-hour football game after they've been drinking for six hours?

"We pace ourselves," Chopper said, beer in hand. "And since you can't drink in the stadium, after the game, you're good to come back and start partying again."

The home team's fans are having their own tailgate parties in other parking lots because today is the big game. But in an age where every college game is on some TV channel somewhere, every game is a "big game." Last week's game was a big game; next week's game will be a big game.

Today's weather was perfect weather for football – sunny, low humidity, brisk but not cold. You could tell the temperature was going to drop tonight after the sun went down. Good and drinks are free; everyone is happy just to be there and share their support for our team. It's like Woodstock, except the toilets work and no one's naked.

sleeping weather, people say. But next week, the forecast is for much lower temperatures. Good hibernating-in-a-man-cave weather, I say.

Twenty minutes of eating brats in the chilly rain would hit my "are we having fun yet?" limit. Contemplating doing it for another five hours and 40 minutes makes me wonder why college alumni don't have enough sense to come in out of the rain. No, not rain – it's sleeting now. There's an icicle on Brad's ear. It's 31 degrees, but with the wind chill, it feels like ... like it's time to scalp the tickets and go home. I'm sorry, but this is not margarita weather.

I didn't inherit the tailgate gene. As much as I like football and as much as I like eating free food off the backs of cars in parking lots, I still prefer a nice, centrally heated living room with a comfy sofa and a 60-inch TV.

Drink in one hand, clicker in the other, nachos in the third. The temperature in my living room is a manly 72. With the wind chill, it feels like ... oh yeah, 72.

The pictures on HD TV are incredible. I think I just saw Brad and Kathy on the 50-yard line. They look like they could use a drink. A nice, hot drink.

Mom jailed with daughter after mailing drug to her

KEY WEST, FLA.

Authorities say a mother who mailed drugs to her incarcerated daughter is now an inmate in the same Florida jail.

Monroe County Sheriff's spokeswoman Becky Herrin said in a news release that a deputy at the jail near Key West found the envelope and noticed it had a chemical smell.

He opened the envelope and saw a substance inside.

An incident report says the substance turned out to be Buprenorphine, a synthetic opioid. Deputies arrested 55-year-old Nadine Carroll on Thursday.

Now Carroll is in the same jail as daughter Shannon Carroll. Records show Shannon Carroll was arrested Sept. 15 on charges of driving with a suspended license and possession of cocaine.

Nadine Carroll is charged with smuggling contraband into jail. Records don't indicate whether they've hired lawyers.

London Zoo calls gorilla escape 'minor'

LONDON

London Zoo said Friday that a silverback gorilla's escape from its enclosure was a "minor incident" that posed no danger to the public – but animal rights activists are demanding an official, independent investigation.

A wildlife advocacy group said the incident, which ended without injuries to visitors or the animal, could have had a more tragic outcome.

Kumbuka, a 400-pound male western lowland gorilla, escaped from his enclosure Thursday evening into what the zoo said was a "secure keepers' area."

Armed police descended on the zoo and visitors were locked inside buildings until the animal was subdued by a tranquilizer dart. Officials said the public was not in danger and the gorilla was back in his enclosure in just over an hour.

He's good with a paper clip: Meet the new MacGyver

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q. I like the actor who plays the new MacGyver, Lucas Till. What's his background? — Tom Berry, via e-mail

A. Till's background recently got a big new chapter, thanks to the strong ratings start of his CBS adventure-show reboot. Born in Fort Hood, Texas (though he was raised near Atlanta), he's probably been best-known up to now as Alex Summers — a.k.a. Havok — in several of the "X-Men" movies. His earlier film credits include "Hannah Montana: The Movie," "Battle: Los Angeles," "Paranoia" and the often-shown-on-cable "Wolves."

Also, Till played Johnny Cash's older brother Jack in the Oscar-winning "Walk the Line," and he has another movie release on the horizon: "Monster Trucks," filmed in 2014 but (after several opening-date pushbacks) slated to open early in 2017. As for other television work, he has appeared in episodes of "House," "Medium" and "Blue Mountain State."

Q. Where have I seen the actress who plays Aida on "Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D." before? — Doug Wayne, Providence, R.I.

A. Mallory Jansen acted and sang her way through the role of Madalena in ABC's musical-comedy "Galavant," and her presence on "S.H.I.E.L.D." is helping to make this a good season for alums of that tuneful knight saga, since Joshua Sasse now is on The CW's "No Tomorrow."

Born and raised in Melbourne, Australia, Jansen also has been seen on the Freeform series "Baby Daddy" and "Young & Hungry." She came to New York to study drama, then went back to Australia and appeared in several projects there before returning to America and landing the spate of work she's had lately.

Q. Will the series "Manhattan" return on WGN America this season? — Cathy Grady, Southern Pines, N.C.

A. It won't. Though the drama about the nuclear-weapon-developing Manhattan Project earned considerable critical acclaim, the ratings didn't reach a level for the cable superstation to order episodes beyond the first two seasons. The show did, however, earn the station its first Primetime Emmy Award (for outstanding main title design).

Q. The last episode I saw of "Unforgettable" was over a year ago, with Dylan Walsh's character being shot. Did I miss some new episodes, or was the show canceled? — Randi Bova, Columbus, Ohio

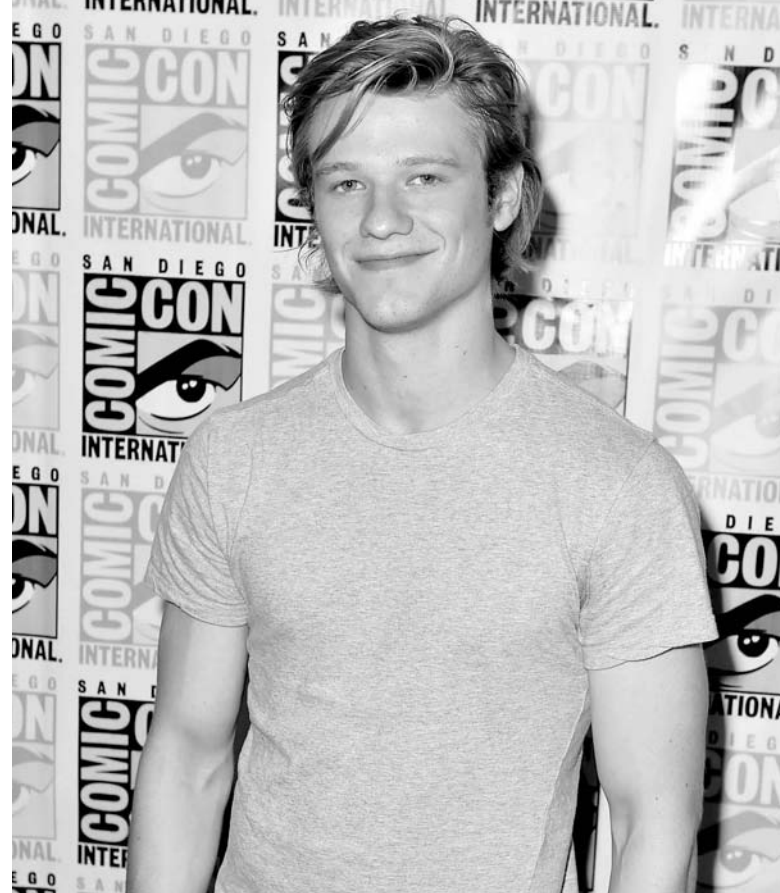

A. What turned out to be every-starring show's final season — which marked its only year (technically, two months, given how the episodes were played off) on A&E Network — ended this past January, and the show was canceled shortly afterward. That marked the third time it suffered that fate, since it had been given the bad news twice before by its original outlet, CBS. As a result, the outcome of Al's (Walsh) shooting evidently is destined never to be known.

Q. Please settle a debate. Didn't Henry Fonda star in a television series at one time? — George Mack, Buffalo, N.Y.

A. He actually starred in two, including one he made while his movie career was at its peak ... NBC's "The Deputy" (1959-61), which he also produced, and which TV legend Norman Lear co-created. Fonda had an arrangement by which he filmed his scenes for a number of episodes in one batch, so that he still was available to make feature films. Thus, "Deputy" co-star Allen Case shouldered much of the show's load.

In the early 1970s, Fonda returned to the home screen as the police detective who headed "The Smith Family," with Ron Howard playing one of his children. That series also had an interesting back story: CBS co-produced it, but ABC aired it, at a time when one network-based company making a show for another network wasn't as common as it is now.

Fox does the 'Time Warp Again' with new 'Rocky Horror Picture Show'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Thanks to a history-acknowledging conceit, a new version of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" won't make you feel like you're in a time warp.

The original, stage-show-inspired 1975 film has gotten a workout on cable lately, but Fox debuts a new version Thursday, Oct. 20. Not a live production but a movie, it doesn't pretend the earlier rendering doesn't exist, since — in a direct reference to the first picture's cult-classic status — an audience is shown on screen watching the remake, and actively participating with such "Rocky Horror" essentials as water pistols, toilet paper and rice as it unspools.

The update includes a couple of vital returnees: producer Lou Adler and co-star Tim Curry, alias Dr. Frank-N-Furter the first time and now the tale's narrating Criminologist. Laverne Cox ("Orange Is the New Black") succeeds Curry as the offbeat scientist, with Ryan McCartan ("Liv and Maddie") and Victoria Justice ("Victorious") following Barry Bostwick and Susan Sarandon as straitlaced couple Brad and Janet, stranded at a castle during a Transylvanian convention.

"Rocky Horror" always, in my particular case, had a mind of its own," Adler maintains. "It sounds a little corny, but I waited for it — which is, basically, the fans — to tell us what we do next. We started doing this television idea quite a while ago, and I guess it just wasn't the right time. Tim came along and validated it by wanting to be in it, and Kenny (Ortega, the remake's director) came along and could direct it to take it to another place, always keeping the fans in mind. My son, Cisco Adler, produced the soundtrack. And what Kenny and I said in the beginning was, 'Be true to the original, but make it contemporary.'"

Curry says he "loved being there" for the new round's filming: "Kenny runs a very not-easy set, but a set where you really feel you can try anything. I remember quite a lot of the original film, as it was my first movie. It was fun, though, to do it again. I actually offered myself as Dr. von Scott (now played by veteran talent Ben Vereen), because I was already in a wheelchair (following a stroke several years ago). They thought the narrator was a better fit, and I enjoyed it a lot."

The new "Rocky Horror" cast also includes Christina Milian, "American Idol" alum Adam Lambert, Annaleigh Ashford ("Masters of Sex"), Ivy Levan, Reeve Carney ("Penny Dreadful") and Staz Nair ("Game of Thrones").

Justice recalls first seeing the original movie, conceived by Richard O'Brien (who also played Riff Raff, now Carney's role) and Jim Sharman, "when I was in fifth grade. And then, I went to my first midnight showing when I was 15 ... with my mom, actually, and a couple of close friends of mine and their moms. And I just remember I'd never seen anything like it before in my life.

"I loved the music and I loved the campiness," notes Justice, "and just the color that the characters had and that the whole story had. It really is so unique. When I went to my first midnight showing, I remember wearing, like, fishnets and I had a red feather boa and red lipstick and I totally got into it. And it's kind of just captivated me ever since then."

With the enduring legend of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," McCartan allows, "This whole thing was very tricky for us as actors. We had a full month's rehearsal process ... not only to develop our characters, but also to make sure we were all on the same page about paying homage, rather than trying to trump or beat or best something that we all loved so much. There were a lot of beasts that we had to conquer."
