Board hears new challenge to city schools CEO

Resolution argues post unconstitutional and powers granted have been abused

By GRAIG GRAZIOSI ggraziosi@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

Another challenge to Youngstown School District CEO Krish Mohip's authority may be on the way.

During the board of education meeting Tuesday evening, board member Corrine Sanderson presented a resolution that would result in the board no longer recognizing Mohip's authority.

The resolution argues the CEO position, established under House Bill 70, is unconstitutional and that the powers granted to the CEO have been abused.

Sanderson

and unsatisfactory communication with the board factored into why she introduced the resolution.

Sanderson said Mohip's lack of a concrete budget for the upcoming fiscal year, recent bevy of administration hires with salaries largely upward of $100,000,

The measure was ultimately tabled for a future meeting to give the board time to seek legal counsel regarding its language and content.

Board members Jackie Adair and Michael Murphy both requested more time to review the resolution, with Murphy likening Sanderson's swift attempt at passage to "ramming it down our throats."

Sanderson wasn't without support. Board member Dario Hunter backed the resolution and initially argued against stalling the measure's passage.

"How can we claim to a court that the position is unconstitutional but then not claim the same thing to the public?" Hunter said.

He was referencing a lawsuit filed in August 2015 that similarly asserted the position of CEO was unconstitutional under the federal

Trump Jr. vows to push back against collusion charges

Associated Press

NEW YORK

Donald Trump Jr. has long been his father's id, the brawler who has helped fuel the president's pugilistic instincts and stood firm as one of his fiercest defenders.

Now the president's eldest son is at the center of the firestorm over Russian connections swirling around his father's administration and trying to fight off charges that he was open to colluding with Moscow to defeat Hillary Clinton.

Trump Jr.

Offered Russian help in defeating Hillary Clinton last year, Don Jr. jumped at the offer: "I love it," he emailed.

That was in an email chain the younger Trump released Tuesday in which an associate arranging a June 2016 meeting between the president's son and a Kremlin-linked lawyer promised damaging information about Clinton.

Trump Jr. said that his meeting with the lawyer is the extent of his formal contact with Russia officials and associates.

Trump Jr. said Tuesday night in an interview with Sean Hannity of Fox News Channel that "he has probably met with other people from Russia" but insisted

Combat racism

The four Youngstown mayoral candidates discuss racism at an ACTION-sponsored forum. The candidates are Janet Tarpley, Jamael Tito Brown, Sean McKinney and Cecil Monroe. All are independent candidates except Brown, who is the Democratic Party nominee. The forum was Tuesday.

THE FOUR MAYORAL candidates say racism is a serious problem in the city and one that must be addressed if Youngstown is to move forward.

The candidates spoke Tuesday at a forum at St. Columba Cathedral sponsored by ACTION – a faith-based organization – on racism and what can be done to combat it.

About 50 people attended the event, which brought the candidates together for the first time.

The candidates for the Nov. 7 general election at the event were Democrat Jamael Tito Brown and three independents: Sean McKinney, Janet Tarpley and Cecil Monroe. It's the first time in the city's history that all the mayoral candidates are black.

Racism in Youngstown is "so entrenched that we don't even recognize it," said Tarpley, a former 6th Ward councilwoman.

Brown, a former city council president who defeated incumbent Mayor John A. McNally in the Democratic primary in May, said people don't talk enough about racism, allowing it to

Crash witnesses recall cries for help in reservoir

Boat lighting focus of questions by defense

YOUNGSTOWN

In the second day of proceedings in the trial of Dr. Joseph Yurich, witnesses recalled hearing a loud boom and cries for help before rushing to the aid of those involved in a fatal boat crash on Berlin Reservoir in 2015.

Dr. Yurich, 38, of Poland faces several charges from the May 9, 2015, incident that left one man injured and another man dead.

Yurich

The state called eight witnesses Tuesday, all of whom were near the lake at the time of the crash.

Many reported hearing a loud boom and a man screaming for help. Those who were closer heard a brief argument between two people before a speedboat left the scene.

Dustin Seese of Beloit was the first person to arrive at the crash site just after midnight. He was fishing with two others. Before learning there was a crash, he spotted a boat speeding across the lake.

"I looked at my buddy and said, 'That guy is going to kill somebody,'" Seese told the court.

Moments later, he was attempting to rescue Neal Cuppett, 58, of Akron, who died.

A man who had climbed into the wrecked boat told

In this Monday frame from video, smoke and flames rise from a military plane that crashed in a farm field in Itta Bena, Miss.

16 dead in Miss. in worst Marine crash since 2005

Associated Press

ITTA BENA, MISS. Investigators picked through debris across a fire-blackened soybean field Tuesday to try to determine why a U.S. military plane slammed into the ground, killing all 16 people aboard in the deadliest Marine crash anywhere in the world in more than a decade.

The KC-130 air tanker was carrying members of an elite Marine special operations unit cross-country for training in Arizona when it went down Monday afternoon in the Mississippi Delta, the military said. The fiery crash scattered wreckage for miles around and sent a pillar of black smoke rising over the countryside.

Witnesses said they heard low, rumbling explosions when the plane was still high in the sky, saw the aircraft spiraling toward the flat, green landscape and spotted an apparently empty parachute floating toward the earth.

Fifteen Marines and a Navy sailor were killed. Their identities were not immediately released.

The crash happened outside the small town of Itta Bena, about 85 miles north of the state capital of Jackson. Bodies were found more than a mile from the plane.

It was the deadliest Marine Corps air disaster since 2005, when a transport helicopter went down during a sandstorm in Iraq, killing 30 Marines and a sailor.

The Marine Corps said the cause was under investigation and offered no information on whether the plane issued a distress call.

FBI agents joined military investigators, though Marine Maj. Andrew Aranda told reporters that no foul play was suspected.

"They are looking at the debris and will be collecting information off of that to figure out what happened," Aranda said. The county coroner, meanwhile, brought in body bags to remove the dead.

The KC-130 is used to refuel aircraft in flight and transport cargo and troops.

The plane was based at Stewart Air National Guard Base in Newburgh, N.Y., and officials said some of those killed were from the base. Several bouquets were left at the main gate at Stewart, which was closed to reporters and issued no immediate statement.

Six of the Marines and the sailor were from an elite Marine Raider battalion at Camp Lejeune, N.C., the Marine Corps said. It said the seven and their equipment were headed for pre-deployment training at Yuma, Ariz.

The Marine Raiders are a special operations force that is part of the global fight against terrorism. They carry out raids against insurgents and terrorists, conduct deep reconnaissance and train foreign militaries.

Will Nobile, a catfish farmer, said he was inside his office Monday afternoon when he heard an unusually loud rumble in the sky.

"It sounded like a big thunderstorm," Nobile said. "Not one big explosion, but a couple of second-long explosions. ... A long, steady rumble is what it was."

He walked outside to see what was making the noise in the cloudless afternoon and saw a "gray streak" disappear behind some trees and then black smoke rising.

Question raised about timeline of Amelia Earhart documentary

NEW YORK A Japanese military history buff has apparently undermined a new theory that Amelia Earhart survived a crash-landing in the Pacific Ocean during her historic attempted round-the-world flight in 1937.

The history blogger has posted the same photograph that formed the backbone of a History channel documentary that aired Sunday that argued that Earhart was alive in July 1937 – but the book the photo was in was apparently published two years before the famed aviator disappeared.

The History channel is looking into the matter but stands behind its documentary.

The undated black-and-white photo is of a group of people standing on a dock on Jaluit Atoll in the Marshall Islands. One of the people seems to be a slim woman with her back to the camera.

The documentary argued that it proved Earhart, along with her navigator Fred Noonan, landed in 1937 in the Japanese-held Marshall Islands, where they were picked up by the Japanese military and held prisoner.

The two-hour show drew a strong 4.32 million viewers, the biggest audience on cable for the week, according to The Nielsen Company.

The History channel said Tuesday its investigators are "exploring the latest developments about Amelia Earhart, and we will be transparent in our findings."

Woman missing

YOUNGSTOWN

Police are looking for a missing Connecticut Avenue woman who reports said was last seen on Christmas.

A sister of Shannon Graves, 29, reported her missing to police June 22. Reports said the sister told police Graves has been known to abuse drugs in the past and has gone long periods of time before with no contact with family or friends.

The sister said in a police report her sister has never been out of touch for this long.

A complete description was not available.

Anyone with information on her whereabouts is asked to call Youngstown police at 330-742-8950, 330-742-8911 or 911.

Mount Carmel fest

The 122nd annual Mount Carmel Festival in the village will run five days this year, beginning today.

The celebration, which takes place each year on Washington Street in the village's downtown, includes food and games.

Today through Saturday, the festival will run from 6 p.m. to midnight.

On Sunday, a 10:30 a.m. procession outside the Mount Carmel Club, 102 Washington St., will lead to an 11:30 a.m. Mass in celebration of Our Lady of Mount Carmel at Holy Rosary Catholic Church, 131 E. Wood St.

Festivities will resume Sunday at 4 p.m. downtown and conclude with fireworks at 10 p.m.

Man sentenced

YOUNGSTOWN

A man who was arrested by Boardman police in November after a search warrant at his home was sentenced Monday in federal court to almost four years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of being a felon in possession of a firearm.

Judge Solomon Oliver in the U.S. Northern District Court Of Ohio handed down a 46-month sentence in Cleveland to Newell Spann, 40, and also placed him on three years' probation.

Spann was arrested Nov. 7 after township police served a warrant at his Shields Road home and found a .45-caliber pistol and a .22-caliber pistol. Spann has a 2010 conviction for felonious assault in Mahoning County Common Pleas Court that bars him from having a firearm.

An affidavit accompanying Spann's federal court case said Spann told arresting officers he had gotten the guns the day before the warrant was served from some kids who had found them, and he planned on selling them.

Gunfire on West Side

YOUNGSTOWN

Police say three apartments and two cars were damaged by gunfire early Tuesday at a West Side apartment complex, but no one was injured.

Officers were called about 3:40 a.m. to the 2500 block of Tyrell Avenue for a report of two groups of people exchanging gunfire and when they got there, they found the damage, reports said.

Police collected 11 spent shell casings, four from a 9 mm handgun and seven from a .40-caliber handgun, reports said.

Reports said this is the second time in three weeks that the apartment building has been damaged by gunfire. It also was damaged by gunfire in January.

15 road paving projects planned

By JORDYN GRZELEWSKI | jgrzelewski@vindy.com

BOARDMAN

The township has again joined with neighboring communities on a road resurfacing program that will take place later this summer.

At a meeting this week, township trustees moved to award the 2017 joint road resurfacing project to Butch & McCree Paving Inc. of Hillsville, Pa. The award is for $1,118,402, with the township contributing $400,648 and Austintown and Canfield townships contributing as well. The three communities have partnered on road resurfacing for several years to cut costs.

Of the township's share, $255,586 will come from the general fund and $145,062 will come from an Ohio Public Works Commission grant.

The following township roads, or portions of them, are on the 2017 paving list: Cook Avenue, Ronjoy Place, Jennette Drive, Sabrina Drive, Tanglewood Drive, Oregon Trail, Massachusetts Avenue, Saddlebrook Drive, Park Harbour Drive, Washington Boulevard, Lealand Avenue, Jaguar Court, Caribou Drive, Township Drive, and Brandon Avenue.

A project start date has not yet been set.

In other business, the board awarded demolition contracts to Wolford's Rolloff Inc. of McDonald for 7388 Salinas Trail and 1820 Brandon Ave. The contracts are in the amount of $4,500 and $4,900, respectively.

The board also adopted a resolution requesting certification from the Mahoning County Auditor to renege for five years a 2.2-mill police and fire levy. The levy, ap-

In 1845, Orangeville got a jail. A marshal, who enforced the laws of the village in northeast Trumbull County, ran the jail and earned $25 per year.

The main purpose for the jail was to lock up vagrants and drunks, primarily the result of people coming into the town on the railroad, said Jeff Ford, who took over management of the jail during this year's fair.

The jail, which last served Orangeville in 1968, has been at the fairgrounds since 1971.

Ford, a member of the Vienna Historical Society, did some research this year to better explain to visitors the history of the building.

He also hurried over to the fairgrounds Tuesday after finishing his shift as a dispatcher and supervisor at the county 911 center so he could dress like an 1800s lawman and open the building for tours.

It's the first time in a while that visitors have been able to "experience what they did in the day," Ford said of walking inside and seeing the rough-hewn wood and see the conditions firsthand.

Coroner rules stabbing death a homicide

Rulings in two other deaths are still pending

By ED RUNYAN | runyan@vindy.com

WARREN

The Trumbull County Coroner's office has ruled the death of Michael J. Krevas, 31, of Washington Street, as a homicide that resulted from a chest stab wound.

The ruling makes it likely prosecutors will now seek a murder indictment against the man charged in the death, Arteum P. Brodeur, 24, of North Park Avenue.

Warren police charged Brodeur with murder on Saturday, hours after he was taken into custody in the 9:23 p.m. stabbing in a North Park parking lot.

Brodeur is in the county jail in lieu of a $500,000 bond.

Police have not said why the two men were fighting in the apartment parking lot, which is just north of downtown.

Police say Brodeur left the scene after the stabbing and was arrested at a home on Willard Avenue Southeast near the Willard K-8 School.

Meanwhile, Coroner Dr. Humphrey Germauk has conducted an autopsy on the body of Tom Dailey, 46, but a determination on what caused his death is pending further studies, that he did not attempt to coordinate to impact the election or try to damage Clinton.

TRUMP JR.

He repeatedly suggested that the charges of collusion were “ridiculous” and “overplayed” and insisted that his father knew nothing about the June 2016 meeting.

“It was such a nothing there was nothing to tell” his father, said Trump Jr.

Earlier this week, when news about the meeting first surfaced, Trump Jr. tweeted that he just “had to listen” when he was offered information about his father’s Democratic opponent.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is requesting information from the Departments of State and Homeland Security about the Russian lawyer.

Trump Jr. has acknowledged the meeting with Natalia Veselnitskaya and posted a 2016 email exchange to Twitter on Tuesday that showed he was involved in setting up the meeting.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, wrote the departments to ask how Veselnitskaya was allowed to enter the United States.

Grassley said that according to court documents, she was denied a visa to stay past January 2016, six months before the New York meeting.

The letter is part of a larger investigation Grassley has led into the Foreign Agent Registration Act.

Grassley has expressed concerns that the law is not enforced.

Trump Jr., 39, was one of his father’s loudest defenders throughout the campaign, his role ascendant at the time of the meeting last summer.

But when his father was elected, Trump Jr. stayed in New York to run the family’s sprawling business along with his brother, Eric.

And from that vantage point, he has been a loud and constant defender of his father, firing off broadsides on Twitter and never shying away from a fight against the “fake news” media. Just Monday, he retweeted a video of a doctored clip in which the president’s face is superimposed over a character shooting a Russian jet bearing a CNN logo.

He released a statement in which he denied any wrongdoing.

His father, conspicuously quiet as details of the meeting have rolled out over the last few days, issued a terse a statement Tuesday in which he said: “My son is a high quality person and I applaud his transparency.”

Deputy White Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders said she did not know when the president last spoke to his eldest son.

Trump Jr. has vowed to push back against the charges of collusion, believing that an anti-Trump media is trumping up accusations against him as a way to damage his father and is willfully ignoring his claim that he did not receive any information from the Russian lawyer, according to several of the real estate heir’s confidants.

He has settled on a strategy out of his father’s playbook: a strong counter-attack.

He released the emails himself – although just minutes before they were set to be published by The New York Times – and appeared on Hannity’s program to defend himself in a typically Trump-friendly space.

Anne York Romanoff, chairwoman of ACTION's Racism Task Force, moderated the organization's mayoral forum. The four candidates were asked questions about racism Tuesday at St. Columba Cathedral.

be considered acceptable throughout the country.

McKinney, a former city buildings and grounds commissioner, said racism is a huge issue and merely putting a bandage on it, as has been done, will not heal it.

Monroe, who’s unsuccessfully run for public office a number of times, said, “Confronting racism every day is exhausting,” but “we’ve got to keep trying.”

The candidates agreed people don’t want to talk about racism.

Examples of racism discussed at the forum included minorities being discriminated against when seeking housing and loans, as well as white people giving looks of consternation when walking past black people.

While racism is “pervasive” in Youngstown, black Americans don’t want to talk about it, Tarpley said, because they will be called “a race baiter.”

Brown said racism is akin to a “dirty family secret that no one wants to talk about”

because it “puts a spotlight on it.”

But, he added, it needs to be discussed in order to reduce racism.

People who deny racism do so because they’re racist, McKinney said.

Munroe said black people “have come a long way, but we have a lot of work to do.”

To help make racism less of an issue, job creation is needed, McKinney and Brown said.

“The top 100 companies in the nation should know where Youngstown, Ohio, is,” Brown said. “I want to make sure we retain, we recruit, and we grow the businesses we have here.”

McKinney said: “Government should provide the opportunity for employers to make investments and to provide jobs to citizens.”

He added: “The city’s economic development department needs to be compassionate and aggressive to go seek businesses across the United States and internationally. That has to be job focus No. 1.”

Monroe said that having a conversation like Tuesday’s is good, but in order to combat racism, the discussion must take place with several other people.

Tarpley said qualified black Americans must be hired for jobs in education and the banking industry.

“I want to make sure that everyone who wants to move forward has the opportunity to do so,” he said.

Tarpley also suggested that community centers be included in a school on each of the four sides of the city.

After the forum, Brown said the event included “healthy dialogue. For me, it’s letting people know I’m going to be a mayor for everyone.”

Tarpley said, “Everyone needs to talk about it. This was really good. It’s important to discuss the issues to move forward.”

“Anytime you talk about an issue, there’s always progress,” Monroe said.

McKinney called it a “very productive discussion. The continued talk on racism is critical. It needs to be broadened now to the county, state and federal governments and through other sectors of the community.”

Seese, “A big [expletive] boat just blew us out of the water, and I can’t find my friend.”

Seese attempted to perform CPR on Cuppett, but he was bleeding from the mouth and beginning to turn blue.

Todd Jones of Lake Milton recalled jumping onto a boat, locating the wrecked fishing boat and jumping in to help rescue Cuppett.

Jones, Seese and others loaded Cuppett onto the back of a boat and transported him to a bait shop near the crash site.

Jennifer Kingsley of Akron was fishing on the shore at the time of the incident.

“A speedboat came really fast across the lake, and then we heard a really big boom,” she said.

She reported hearing two men arguing about lights on the boat, and then a man calling for his friend.

A man and woman walking up from the shore with the woman’s son also heard a loud noise followed by an argument.

Constantine Covert of Atwater has worked in hospitals, but she was unable to get to those in the crash.

“I felt horrible that I couldn’t do anything to help this man but make the 911 call,” she said.

Covert got the attention of Seese and those he was fishing with and directed them to the wrecked fishing boat.

Several witnesses who encountered Dr. Yurich at a dock near the north end of the lake just before the crash said he left the dock at a high rate of speed.

Much of the defense’s questioning revolved around whether the boat Cuppett was on had lights on it.

In Monday’s testimony, Bruce Lindamood of Green, who was injured in the crash, insisted the boat was properly lit.

On Tuesday, some witnesses reported seeing lights on the boat, but others said they couldn’t recall whether there were lights.

The trial will resume at 10 a.m. today, and the prosecution plans to include expert testimony from the state Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

people can come in. It’s a beautiful location, and it’s a historical facility.”

The site includes the main building, built in 1905 as a train depot and last used by Amtrak as a passenger train stop about a dozen years ago.

It is now used for weddings, banquets, parties and other events. The building also houses a fully functioning brewery and has a commercial kitchen with all of the equipment included in the sale price.

The location also has an outdoor stage and pavilion, D’Amico said, and the Box Car Lounge, a bar built about a decade ago.

“We’re willing to come up with financing assistance,” he said. “We want to give the new owners the opportunity to use the facility. We want to find someone who can keep the integrity of that area intact. It’s an entertainment hot-spot. We want people to revitalize the area.”

Those interested in the property can view it and get additional information by visiting notinthemls.com or by calling D’Amico at 330-782-3381.

Also for sale is the nearby Anthony’s-on-the-River building, 15 Oak Hill Ave., which has been vacant for close to a decade.

That property is being sold by Cocca Development Ltd. Calls from The Vindicator about Anthony’s were referred to Kelly A. Cocca, a company official who couldn’t be reached Tuesday to comment.

and Ohio constitutions. The lawsuit is ongoing.

Despite the resolution’s strong language, most of the positions called for in the measure were already present among the board.

“So we aren’t recognizing his authority,” Adair said. “I basically didn’t in the first place.”

Sanderson said the resolution was meant to restore the board’s ability to pass policy measures and to give the board the ability to curb Mohip’s spending.

She said the position of district treasurer was under the purview of the board, meaning the board could use the treasurer to block spending by Mohip that they deemed extravagant.

District spokeswoman Denise Dick said this reading of authority was incorrect.

“They don’t have that authority,” she said. “[Mohip] has complete authority of managerial issues and hiring, which would include a treasurer. They have no authority over district employees.”

Regardless of the resolution, the board has other complaints about recent interactions with Mohip. As Sanderson noted, the board wants to see a budget and to be made aware of district spending.

Dick said Mohip was working on a budget, which would be finished “very soon.”

The board was also critical of Mohip attributing an action in an earlier document to “the Board of Education” without actually seeking the input or action of board members. Dick agreed the language wasn’t accurate and said in the future the district would consider alternate language.

Columbiana speech student proves to be among best in nation

COLUMBIANA

An area high-schooler proved to be among the best speech students in the country after taking ninth place at the National Speech and Debate Tournament in Birmingham, Ala.

Michael Vargo, 18, of Columbiana, was ranked the ninth best speech student in his category nationally at the annual tournament. Earlier this year, he ranked second at the state speech tournament in Cleveland.

Vargo was a member of a 10-student national team from Columbiana High School coached by Trisha Nord.

Competing in the “United States Extemp” category, Vargo was given 30 minutes to develop and prepare a seven-minute speech on a topic related to U.S. politics. He created and performed four speeches each day of the tournament for a total of 12 speeches. He was successful through the semifinals of the tournament. There were 240 other speakers in his category.

This was Vargo’s first national tournament. He has been on the speech team for four years.

Though Vargo was happy to place well nationally, he is equally proud of his teammates. “We have a small school with a team of 30 kids, but we placed within the top 40 speech schools in the nation,” Vargo said.

This fall Vargo will begin his studies at Ohio State University in Columbus, where he’ll pursue a double major in international studies and civil engineering and a double minor in French and city/regional planning.

Due to his academic workload Vargo is unsure if he’ll continue to pursue speech at the collegiate level this fall. In the meantime, he’s spending his summer passing along the skills he’s picked up from his time on the team to younger students.

“This summer I’m mostly going to be hanging around and reading to prepare for school,” he said. “But I’ve also been helping in some support functions for the team, mostly coaching the younger members.”

WESTERN RESERVE TRANSIT AUTHORITY

Notice of Opportunity For Public Comment

I. Pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 5310, the Western Reserve Transit Authority (WRTA) is providing the opportunity for any interested person(s) to request a public hearing on the proposed application to the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) for Section 5310 assistance. In addition to WRTA, one such recipient will be funded in this Program of Projects.

A. WRTA has $142,511 in 2015 Section 5310 funds and $138,009 in 2016 Section 5310 funds for a total of $280,520 available for application toward the proposed projects.

B. Description of Projects:
1. Capital Assistance for public mass transportation and related capital services expenditures for the period October 1, 2017 through September 30, 2019. WRTA will be the grant recipient and the funds will be used for the following capital purchases:

Program of Projects	FTA Amount	Project Type*
Capital Cost of Contracting	104,000	A
Mobility Management	104,000	A
Communication Equipment	1,600	C
ADP Hardware/Software	2,000	C
Operating Assistance	40,868	A
Program Administrative Costs	28,052
Total Capital and Operating	$ 280,520	=====

Total Traditional 5310
55% Capital Amount $ 248,860
Total Operating Amount $ 40,868

*Property Type refers to 49 U.S.C. 5310(b)(1) criteria

Of these estimated Project Costs the Federal Share is $280,520 and the Local Share is $93,768. The local share, obtained from non-farebox sources, is local sales tax and other general fund revenues.

2. Section 5310 grant funds will be used to pay the federal share of the capital and operating projects described above. The projects will be located, and operated primarily within the County of Mahoning, Ohio. In addition, parts of Trumbull County may be serviced. The projects listed above meet the 55% minimum for traditional Section 5310 projects.

3. The sub recipient is not identified at this time. WRTA will solicit for a private or non-profit organization to provide transportation services to seniors and persons with disabilities exceeding requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.). A contract with the sub recipient will be a total project cost of $130,000, with a federal share of $104,000.

I. Citizens wishing to review the proposed Program of Projects, or request a public hearing on this matter, should call or write the Western Reserve Transit Authority, 604 Mahoning Avenue, Youngstown, OH 44502, (330)-744-8431, mvaughn@wrttaonline.com, no later than 4:30 pm July 21, 2017.

II. If this Program of Projects is satisfactory and does not change, it will represent our final Program of Projects.

JOSEPH A. TROLIO SR., 93

HUBBARD - A memorial Mass will be held on Friday, July 14, 2017, at 11 a.m., at St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church with Fr. Richard Murphy officiating for Joseph Anthony Trolio, 93, who died Sunday afternoon, July 9, 2017, at his home.

Joseph was born in Brier Hill on Aug. 4, 1923, on Poplar Street, to immigrant parents Antonio and Nicolette Trolio.

"Joe" was the second child of seven children. He attended Brier Hill, and Rayen schools.

Joe volunteered as a 26 year old and worked with the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). In 1943, he enlisted with the U.S. Army's 147th Infantry and served his country during the war stationed in the South Pacific, and upon his discharge, Joe learned the auto body trade.

In 1955, he was promoted to Body Shop Manager at State Chevrolet. Joe opened his own business, J & J Trolio's Auto Body on Hubbard Road in 1973, a business he operated until his retirement.

Joe married Antoinette (Toni) Vespasian in 1947, at St. Anthony's Church on West Federal Street.

Joe was very active in the Brier Hill Italian Fest and was named 2007 Man of the Year. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and enjoyed golfing and dancing.

Together Joe and Antoinette had two children, Nicolette (Ray) Farcas of Hubbard and Joseph Trolio Jr. of Struthers; six grandchildren, Jenifer (Zane) Darnell, Ray (Jennifer) Farcas, Jessica (Chris) Coonce and Joe, Chad and Ashley Trolio; and 14 great-grandchildren, Mackenzie, Madison, Grant, Kennedy and Gage Darnell, Ella and Alyssa Farcas, Emily and Miley Coonce and Joe, Haylee, Brianna, Chloe and Brooklyn Trolio. Joe also leaves his best friend and companion of 27 years, Rosemary Powell of Youngstown.

Joe was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Antoinette; four brothers, Dan, Nick, Albert and Anthony; and two sisters, Rose and Jean.

Family and friends may call on Friday, one hour prior to the Mass from 10 to 11 a.m. at St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church.

The family requests memorial donations be made to the Disabled American Veterans, 2044 Youngstown Road SE, Warren, OH 44484.

Arrangements are being handled by the Kelley-Robb-Cummins Funeral Home.

Joseph's final resting place will be at St. James Cemetery.

RONALD R. "RIP" REPASKEY, 69

AUSTINTOWN - Ronald R. "Rip" Repaskey, 69, passed away at his home on Sunday, July 9, 2017, following a three-year battle with ALS.

Born Aug. 10, 1947, in Struthers, he was the son of Frank R. and Mary L. (Smrecansky) Repaskey.

"Ron" graduated in 1965 from Poland High School, received a Bachelor of Science in Education from Youngstown State University, and earned a Master's Degree in Education in 1972 from YSU. He taught Mathematics for Youngstown City Schools for 35 years, the first 10 years at Hillman Jr. High, and then 25 years at The Rayen School. He retired in 2004 and subbed for 10 more years at both The Rayen School, as well as East High School.

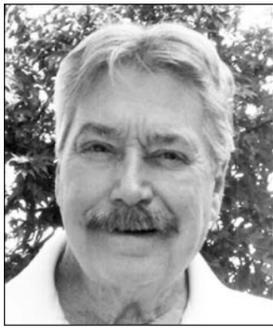

Ron was an avid golfer and bowler for 40 years. He especially enjoyed playing cards, and was a member of several card clubs including the Men's Club and the "Zoo Crew." He was also a member of Couple's 500 Bid Club, and enjoyed playing Texas Hold'em with many different friends and couples.

Ron coached numerous softball and baseball teams in summer leagues with his children. He was the head softball coach for 15 years at The Rayen School. He later went on to umpire for seven years in high school softball.

He enjoyed taking cruises and junkets with his wife, and friends. He was an avid Cleveland Cavs, Browns, and Indians fan.

He was a member of St. Joseph Church in Austintown since 1972.

Survivors include his wife, Joann, whom he married on July 26, 1969; children Richard (Eva), Jennifer (Stuart) Repaskey-McMullan, and Laura (Brian) Repaskey-Kirby; grandchildren Jeremy, Jared, Casimir, Aristeo, Corisande, Desmond, and Miles; a sister, Denise Repaskey; sisters-in-law Mariann Del Signore, Louann Lauer, and Suzann Lauer; as well as two brothers-in-law, Robert Lauer and Michael Del Signore; and numerous other relatives. He enjoyed his special, furry, four-legged friends, Cinnamon and Nutmeg.

He was preceded in death by his parents, as well as his in-laws, Theodore and Emma Lauer.

Friends will be received at the Lane Family Funeral Homes, Austintown Chapel on Thursday from 4 to 7 p.m.

A Mass of Christian Burial will take place on Friday, July 14, 2017, at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph Church, 4545 New Road in Austintown.

To help others, even in death, Ron made anatomical donations to help with research for ALS.

The family would like to extend a special thanks to Hospice of the Valley for their compassionate care.

Memorials may be made to The ALS Association, Northern Ohio Chapter, 6155 Rockside Road, Suite 403, Independence, OH 44131.

CAPT. MICHAEL JOSEPH VUKSTA M.D., U.S.N. (RET.), 91

PENSACOLA, FLA. - Capt. Michael Joseph Vuksta M.D., U.S.N. (Ret.) passed away on July 5, 2017, in Pensacola. He was 91 years old, and was raised a Byzantine Catholic.

"Doc" was born in Pittsburgh, on April 25, 1926.

After moving to Youngstown, as a child, he graduated from Chaney High School in 1944, and then enlisted in the U.S. Navy, serving as a pharmacist's mate 2/C during World War II. Upon discharge from the Navy after the war, he graduated from Youngstown State University in 1949 with a B.A. Degree in Premedical Science. Within one month, he was recalled to the Korean War, where he served as a corpsman.

Upon discharge from the Navy in 1952, he entered graduate school at The Ohio State University and was accepted to The Ohio State University College of Medicine, where he graduated in the class of 1957. His internship and four-year surgical residency was completed at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown. He also attended the University of Pennsylvania for post-graduate training courses in General Surgery and Basic Sciences.

He opened his private practice as a physician/surgeon in General Surgery in 1962, becoming certified by the American Board of Surgery in 1964. He served as director of Surgical Training there until 1972, as he felt teaching was a way to give back to his profession. He obtained certification in numerous medical and professional societies, including being an associate professor of Surgery at the Northeast Ohio University College of Medicine (NEOUCOM). Throughout his career, he served on over 50 national, state and local boards, professional organizations and civic groups.

As a true community leader, he was selfless in his devotion to the people he worked with, the area he lived in and to anyone in need. His door was always open.

His love for Sports Medicine turned into a desire to teach athletic trainers, coaches, and sports professionals the best and newest ways to improve the quality of care given to athletes.

Following his love of sports and especially football, he worked tirelessly with high schools and colleges in northeast Ohio, treating athletes from over 30 schools and professional football teams. He was the team physician at YSU for 32 years and at Ursuline High School for 27 years. He treasured his time with all the athletes and was passionate about securing scholarships for students. He personally recruited or recommended student athletes in the Youngstown area for scholarships all over the country. He also instituted drug testing programs in area schools to maintain integrity and belonged to many Sports Medicine organizations and associations, including the Athletic Sports Hall of Fame for both Ursuline and YSU.

He was a true fan of The Ohio State University and enjoyed recruiting athletes for his good friend and mentor Coach Woody Hayes. Doc was well-known for braving the cold Ohio weather in a short sleeved, white shirt and being very vocal on the sidelines at local football games.

Upon closing his private practice in 1989, he finally achieved a lifelong dream of becoming an active duty Navy doctor. After years of reserve duty, he volunteered to return to active duty at the age of 63 to teach microvascular surgery and do medical research for the Navy at Oakland Naval Hospital and teach U.S.N. Surgical residents. During this tour of duty, the Gulf War erupted and he was deployed on the USS Mercy to the Persian Gulf during Desert Storm to act as head of the surgical team. As the oldest crew member on the ship, he received national attention due to returning to active duty at his age.

As a reservist, he trained medical personnel in Reserve Units all over the United States. He authored training books, accepted assignments on ships, carriers, Naval hospitals and training facilities. Happiest at sea, he did extra duty just to be on the water. He finally retired as a captain with 49 years of combined service in 1993.

Those who knew and loved Doc remember him as a great story teller and prankster. One of his most famous pranks made him a legend in Youngstown as "the host of the Westside" in 1949, as he hid his true identity for decades. He also loved to golf, fish and follow his favorite teams, YSU and OSU. But his love of music, from classical to polkas, found him singing and dancing at every wedding, party and event he attended.

He was a devoted member of St. Mary's Byzantine Catholic Church in Youngstown, serving on the board of trustees, acting on the Advisory committee and supporting the church and its programs.

After retiring to Pensacola in 1993, he continued supporting the community by participation in the Navy League, Fleet Reserve Association, Avant Garde Krewe of Military Personnel, Retired Officers Association, the Warrington Elks BP 2108 Lodge and other Pensacola organizations.

He was preceded in death by his loving wife of 63 years, Dorothy Bosak Vuksta; his parents, Michael and Mary Vuksta; his brother, Joseph G. Vuksta; and his favorite Boston Terrier, Buster, whom he said was crazy to put up with all the kids.

He is survived by his four children, Patricia (Douglas) Vrazel of Rockport, Texas, Michael Vuksta, Carol Vuksta Davis and Janet (Randy) James of Delaware, Ohio. He also leaves behind three grandchildren, Patrick Vrazel, Jacqueline Vrazel Bell and Caitlin Davis and a great-granddaughter, Hannah Leigh Bell.

Visitation will be held at noon Monday, July 17, 2017, until a funeral cortege to depart the Harper-Morris Memorial Chapel, 2276 Airport Blvd. in Pensacola, at 12:30 p.m. for a funeral Mass to begin at 1 p.m. at the Lady of Loretto Catholic Chapel, NAS Pensacola, with Fr. Pete McLaughlin celebrant. Burial will follow at Barrancas National Cemetery in the NAS in Pensacola. The family welcomes active and retired military personnel to attend the service at the Chapel.

In lieu of flowers, please donate to Michael's favorite charity, St. Jude Children's Hospital, or a military organization supporting our brave troops.

"Fair winds and following seas."

Turning Point under new management

Coleman Professional Services wants to buy Belmont Avenue agency

By WILLIAM K. ALCORN
alcorn@vindy.com

WARREN

Coleman Professional Services, with offices in Warren, has taken over management of Turning Point Counseling Services for 60 to 90 days with an eye toward buying the Youngstown-based behavioral health services operation.

The Turning Point board chose Coleman from among 11 agencies that responded to a request for proposals to take over the Belmont Avenue agency.

In a news release, Coleman said it is in discussion regarding a letter of intent to purchase assets from Turning Point after the management agreement period is complete.

These agreements would enable Coleman to provide uninterrupted behavioral health services to Turning Point clients and Mahoning County residents, officials said.

"As we begin this management agreement and complete the due diligence required in the letter of intent, we will work hard in improving and growing Turning Point," said Nelson Burns, Coleman president and chief executive officer.

Scott Essad, Turning Point's interim executive director and president of its board, said Turning Point came about as the result of a merger between Parkview Counseling Services and Eastern Behavioral Health.

Officials said Turning

Point's disruption in executive leadership over the last year and new demands on behavioral-health organizations due to Medicaid redesign, managed-care readiness and other issues led the board to issue a statewide request for proposals for the agency's management and future.

Turning Point, which has been serving the needs of indigent people with mental health issues, will no longer be funded by the Mahoning County Mental Health and Recovery Board for that purpose, said Duane J. Piccirilli, executive director of the county mental health agency, which provided $966,831 to Turning Point for the fiscal year that began July 1, 2016, and ended at the end of June this year.

"Mahoning County is fortunate to have a variety of behavioral health providers with whom the mental health board has contracts," Piccirilli said.

Among them are Alta Care Group, Catholic Charities Regional Agency, Compass Family and Community Services, Community Services Network, Flying HIGH Inc., Help Network of Northeast Ohio, Meridian Health-Care, Neil Kennedy Recovery Clinic and Youngstown Urban Minority Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Outreach Program for core services.

The recent management contract of Turning Point by Coleman will allow clients with Medicaid and other third-party insurances another option to meet their needs, Piccirilli said.

Toxicology results usually take about two months to be returned to the coroner's office.

Dailey, 46, of the Columbus area, helped start Warren's first drug detoxification center, First Step Recovery, in 2015. The facility said he left First Step several months later.

He also indicated on his LinkedIn page online that he was executive director and co-owner of Braking Point Recovery Center of Central Ohio.

The Dailey family provided a statement Tuesday through Atty. Brendan Keating, saying the family is "shocked and saddened by Tom's unexpected death and ask [that] our need for peace and privacy be respected at this time, as well as Tom's own dignity as a child of God."

The statement continues, "Tom's overwhelming legacy was of helping others, and we've been hearing from so many people, friends and strangers alike, about how he touched their lives, often as they shared their struggles with the scourge of addiction together. That positive legacy is our focus right now."

Dailey was found dead Saturday in the Econo Lodge on Youngstown Road by cleaning personnel.

Police say there were no obvious indications of what killed him because he was not under a doctor's care, and there were no signs of trauma or drug use.

Dailey participated in the Trumbull Drug Court program at the county courthouse after being indicted on charges of theft and misuse of credit cards. He completed drug court last September, and his charges were dismissed.

Drug court allows a person facing a felony charge that is related to a substance-abuse problem to participate in weekly counseling sessions.

Dr. Germaniuk has not yet ruled on the death of Tyler Mitchell, 18, of Orchard Avenue Southeast, who died at 5:30 a.m. Monday on Burton Street Southeast, apparently of gunshot wounds.

Our VOICE

Kill, don't delay, Ohio House vote on Medicaid override

REGARDLESS OF ITS MOTIVATION, the Ohio House of Representatives acted prudently last week in delaying any possible override vote of Gov. John Kasich's veto of a freeze on Medicaid expansion in Ohio.

Whether that motivation stemmed from uncertainty over having the sufficient number of GOP votes to negate the governor's justified veto or from political pragmatism over ongoing health-care debates in Congress as Ohio House leaders suggested, the immediate threat to 500,000 Medicaid expansion recipients in the state has at least temporarily been nipped in the bud.

The proposed freeze was included in the recently adopted $65 billion biennial budget for the state's 2018 and 2019 fiscal years as a means to rein in state spending, even though the federal government covers the bulk of the expansion's cost. The freeze would have prevented new lower-income adults from enrolling in Medicaid starting July 1, 2018, and anyone who dropped off the rolls at that point would be unable to re-enroll.

It therefore would have cruelly kicked to the curb the vast majority of Medicaid expansion recipients in the state who gained health-care opportunities for the first time, leaving some of our state's neediest and most vulnerable residents in dire straits.

As a means to avert such merciless scenarios, Kasich divorced himself from Republican Party dogma and compassionately vetoed the measure June 30. We commended the governor for that bold action in this space last week.

Now, regardless of how the Medicaid debate plays out in Congress, the Ohio House should recognize the value of the program and make its temporary override-vote delay permanent.

As things stand now in Washington, ending federal Medicaid expansion, a key tenet of the Affordable Care Act repeal effort, looks to be headed nowhere fast. As of Tuesday, at least 10 Republican U.S. senators – including Sen. Rob Portman of Ohio – have indicated they will not support the Senate bill in its current form with its big hit to Medicaid and the 74 million Americans who benefit from it.

"I continue to have real concerns about the Medicaid policies in this bill, especially those that impact drug treatment at a time when Ohio is facing an opioid epidemic," Portman said.

Given that the upper chamber of Congress can afford to lose only two GOP votes to keep its long-heralded goal of repealing Obamacare in its entirety alive, prospects look increasingly dim for deep retrenchments in the federal government's commitment to the Medicaid health-insurance program anytime soon.

VALUE, IMPACT OF EXPANSION

For any doubting Thomases in the Ohio House and Senate about the value of the program, we would direct them to the 50-page Medicaid Group VIII Assessment report prepared for the General Assembly in December 2016 by the state Department of Medicaid. Group VIII is the name given to all who have gained eligibility for Medicaid under the expansion implemented in Ohio by the governor and against the Legislature's wishes in 2014.

That report concluded that for Group VIII enrollees, "access to Medicaid has facilitated access to care, reduced emergency department utilization, improved self-reported health, and supported employment and job-seeking."

The positive dividends of expansion have dramatically affected the Mahoning Valley. Mahoning County, for example, ranks first among all 88 Ohio counties in the percentage of all adult residents enrolled in the Group VIII Medicaid program at 14.4 percent.

In raw numbers, that translates into 20,292 additional Medicaid eligible recipients in the county. Trumbull County has 15,426 expansion enrollees and Columbiana has 6,670, according to May 2017 data from the state Department of Medicaid.

Given the Valley's unemployment and poverty rates, which continue to far surpass state and national averages, now is not the time to pull the plug on the program and the tens of thousands here who stand to potentially benefit from it in the future.

Killing the vital program would not only hurt individuals but state and local economies as well. To be competitive, Ohio must possess a skilled and healthy workforce. Subjecting tens of thousands of Ohioans to the prospect of no health insurance would make our state all the weaker in the eyes of potential job creators.

We hope our elected representatives in the Ohio General Assembly and the U.S. Congress recognize as much and thwart this and any other oncoming attacks on Medicaid, the largest and most vital health-care program for the less fortunate in our nation.

Looney left is no better

By ALBERT R. HUNT

Bloomberg View

The Trumpist right, with its conspiracy theories, racist demagoguery and blatant lies, should embarrass honest conservatives and responsible Republicans. There also is a looney left, which though less pervasive and powerful, needs to be condemned by liberals.

Its theories excuse efforts to suppress speech by conservatives, especially on college campuses. Its attacks on Trump go well beyond acceptable criticism – think of comedian Kathy Griffin's video with a severed Trump head. Its activists, who include some elected officials, call for impeachment of the president before taking the trouble to build a constitutionally persuasive case.

Consider Tim Canova, a law professor at Nova University in Florida, who is waging a Democratic Party primary battle against Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz. He has suggested that a young Democratic staffer may have been murdered last year because the staffer, not Russian hackers, leaked the damaging information from the party's national committee that sabotaged Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign. He's downplayed the conclusion of U.S. intelligence agencies that Russia meddled in the presidential election, and questions whether he is being hacked by political opponents.

Canova was embraced last year by Sen. Bernie Sanders out of resentment against Wasserman Schultz who, as Democratic chairwoman in 2016, seemed to try to tilt the party machinery in favor of Clinton. Canova ran a strong race, raising tons of money, but lost. Sanders is staying out of the current challenge.

CONSPIRACY THEORISTS

In the Atlantic last week, McKay Coppins reported on leftist conspiracy theorists like the Palmer Report, a blog that focuses on Russia. It reported in April that Rep. Jason Chaffetz of Utah was resigning because of Russian blackmail. The whole story was nonsense.

Sites like this, Coppins wrote, embrace a world "where it is acceptable to allege that hundreds of American politicians, journalists and government officials are actually secret Russian agents."

Someone check Sen. Joseph McCarthy's gravesite.

The far left is divided on Russia and its thuggish leader Vladimir Putin. Many progressives are harshly critical, driven by their hostility to Trump and eager to believe there are Trump ties to Putin.

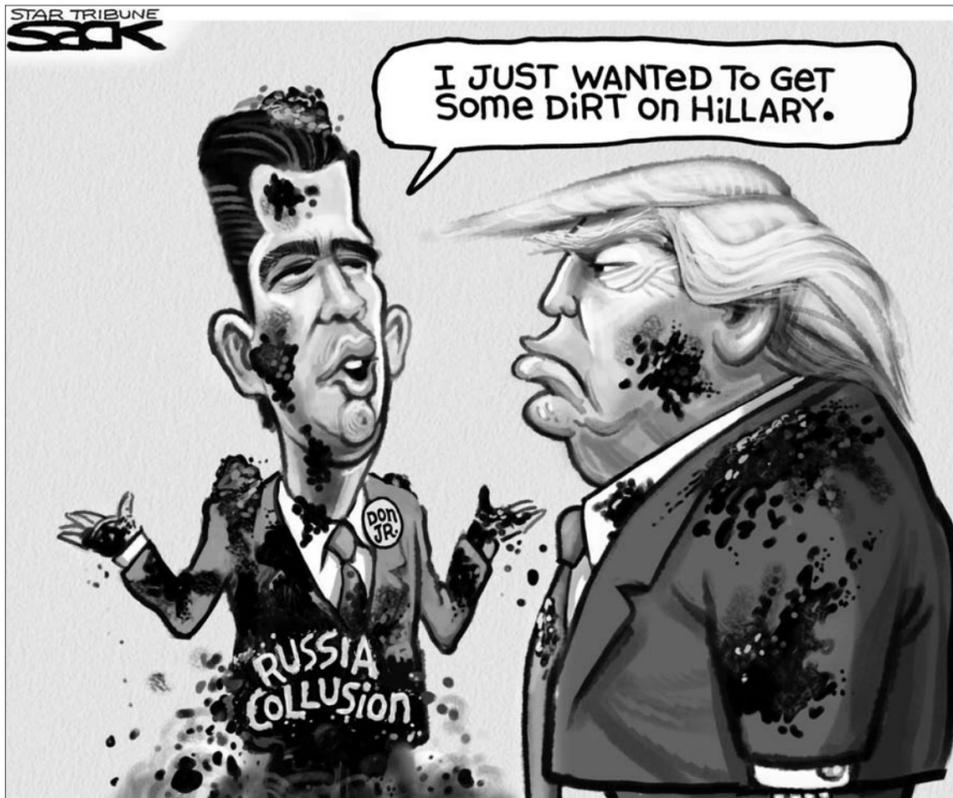

Canova's most offensive gambit has been recycling a baseless right-wing conspiracy theory that a young Democratic staffer, Seth Rich, was murdered last year because he leaked the party emails in the presidential election. This was a charge leveled by Alex Jones, the conspiracy-minded talk-radio host and picked up by former House Speaker and present Trump confidant Newt Gingrich. The police found Rich was murdered after a botched robbery attempt. Fox News retracted its own twisted story on the Rich killing.

Not Canova. Asked by the Florida Sun Sentinel and Miami Herald whether Rich's murder may have been related to the leaks, Canova replied: "I have no idea. I wondered what the DNC under Wasserman Schultz was capable of, but I don't know."

Calls to the number listed on his campaign website and messages to the designated email site went unanswered.

To keep the high ground, liberals should resist the urge to whip up hostility and should condemn hate-mongers of the left.

United needs a good PR campaign

By REX HUPPKE

Chicago Tribune

As something of an expert in the communications field, I'd like to offer my services to United Airlines.

The company has been going through a rough patch of late on the public-relations front. The latest oopsie involved a middle school teacher from Hawaii who had to hold her 27-month-old son (a 2-year-old, if my math is correct) in her lap for an entire three-hour flight from Houston to Boston.

According to a report in The Washington Post, the child had a ticket that cost nearly $1,000. But a United spokesperson told the paper that the boy's "boarding pass had been improperly scanned and that because the toddler wasn't logged in to the system, his seat was released to a standby passenger."

So the kiddo had to ride on his mom's lap, the mom did her best but wound up with a numb arm and leg and the airline apologized to her and "said it is trying to compensate the family for its mistake."

'VIOLENCE'

Asked why she didn't protest the seating arrangement more before takeoff, the teacher told Hawaii News Now: "I started remembering all those incidents with United on the news. The violence. Teeth being knocked out."

If you're an airline – or any business other than a boxing promotion company or the Mafia – you probably don't want customers associating you with news reports about violence and teeth being knocked out.

But that's where United is right now, due to some minor violence and reported knocking out of teeth.

You'll recall back in April when a Kentucky doctor named David Dao refused to give up his seat on a United Express flight and was, as described in a Tribune story, "bloodied and dragged down the aisle" by Chicago Aviation Department officers. Dao suffered a concussion and broken nose and lost two front teeth, his attorney said. He later received a settlement from the airline.

That same month, a giant rabbit named Simon was flown from London to Chicago's O'Hare International Airport aboard a United flight and wound up dead. According to the bunny's England-based breeder, Simon was swiftly cremated without her permission. The airline later reached a settlement with the breeder.

A bit before the doctor dragging and the bunny burning, United got in hot water after a gate agent refused to let two teen girls board because they were wearing leggings. In retrospect, that seems like a minor issue, given that neither of the teens was dragged anywhere and, to the best of my knowledge, none of their pets was cremated. But at the time, it caused quite a stir.

Some might look at this string of events and say United is teetering on the brink of a public relations catastrophe. I, on the other hand, believe the company is poised to embrace a public relations catastroph-opportunity.

It's all a matter of framing. The company has been quiet and coy in responding to these incidents, presumably hoping they'll just go away and be forgotten.

What I propose is a PR campaign waged on two fronts.

First, you highlight the fact that it has been nearly three full months since a passenger was bloodied and dragged down the aisle of a United flight. That shows commitment and an ability to learn from mistakes, qualities everyone looks for when making travel plans.

Same with the rabbit thing. As of Friday, the "Number of Days Since a Giant Rabbit Has Died on Our Airline" sign in United headquarters – I'm assuming that exists – reads 79. That's an impressive number. Don't run from the tragedy. Show that you've got things fixed and are doing a top-notch job of not killing large rabbits.

The second front in this war against lame media types who pounce on isolated stories that make your entire company seem incompetent is to make people want to experience these so-called "mistakes."

For example, in the case of the teacher who had to hold her 2-year-old for three hours, that's part of United Airlines' innovative Family-Bonding Package. Feeling distant from your tweens? Now you can ride with an 11-year-old on one knee and a 12-year-old on your shoulders, forcing the three of you to talk and reconnect. For an additional charge, you can have their little sister stuffed into the overhead bin. (You can communicate with her through the holes where the air vents used to be.)

FAMILY-FRIENDLY PACKAGES

And there would be other family-friendly packages: "Are you sick of your teenage kids dressing like idiots? I mean, leggings? Really? With United Airlines' new draconian dress code, we'll have your slob children spiffed up in no time. Just book the flight and we'll do the rest."

Or: "Is your pet getting up in years? Are you worried veterinary care and cremation costs might be a burden you can't handle? Then consider booking your pet on a one-way United Airlines flight to anywhere. We'll take care of everything."

And the doctor-dragging incident can easily be marketed to the burgeoning masochism community. Flights would sell out in no time. I propose the slogan: "Fly United, You Miserable Cretin." (You could even use "United!" as a safe word, providing some additional marketing value.)

I offer these brilliant ideas free of charge to my friends at United.

And I hope they'll recognize that these options are, at the very least, better than what they've been doing.

proximately 65 percent of which goes to the police department, generates $2.1 million annually.

Also this week, the board promoted police officer Albert Kakascik from lieutenant to captain. Kakascik, who will be sworn in at the next trustee meeting, replaces Capt. Don Hawkins, who recently retired. Captains start out making $90,344 per year, per the township's agreement with the police union.

The township moved forward with an ongoing effort to rezone residential properties so that multi-family dwellings such as apartments are not permitted on the properties. Krista Beniston, township director of zoning and development, said the zoning changes are done "to match the zoning to maintain the existing neighborhood characters."

The change from R-2 to R-1 was made at 255 parcels on West Dover Road, Arden Boulevard, Shelby Road, Cascade Road, Stratmore Avenue, Risher Avenue, Sylvia Lane, Donmar Lane, Hopkins Road, as well as a vacated portion of roadway between Cascade and Shelby.

The marshal's desk was actually used by one of the marshals.

Ford won't be able to man the jail all of the days of the fair, but he plans to be back on Friday to open it again, he said.

The Orangeville jail is one of several historical buildings at the fairgrounds that have gotten new life this year as 14 Trumbull County historical societies took over their operation.

The former Bazetta Christian Church, which has been at the fairgrounds since 1973, houses displays, photos and news articles about various communities, all provided by the historical groups.

Jeff Ford stands inside the Orangeville jail, which was open for public viewing Tuesday at the Trumbull County Fair. The jail, which was built in 1845 and has been at the fairgrounds since 1971, isn't normally open for tours, but Ford volunteered to open it two days this week. It will be open for viewing again Friday. In the back is one of the cells where prisoners were kept as late as 1968.

Cloned Facebook

AUSTINTOWN

Police responded to a call Monday from an Austintown woman who reportedly exchanged iTunes gift cards to have a cloned Facebook account deactivated.

The woman, 68, discovered someone had cloned her Facebook account, and reportedly purchased $500 in iTunes gift cards to exchange with someone posing as an employee from the social network. The woman reportedly found a phone number on the cloned account, and presumed it lead to Facebook technical support. She reportedly determined after the transaction that Facebook will deactivate cloned accounts for free.

Miracle Meals

BOARDMAN

Today, from 11 a.m. to midnight, Buffalo Wild Wings locations in Boardman, 7401 Market St.; Niles, 950 Great East Plaza; and Austintown, 6000 Mahoning Ave., are hosting Miracle Meals fundraising events to benefit Akron Children's Hospital Mahoning Valley.

ing Valley.

When the event flier, found at akronchildrens.org/events, is presented by patrons, 15 percent of total food sales will be donated to the hospital. Patrons may present either a printout of the flier or show it on their mobile device. All funds raised stay in the Mahoning Valley to benefit local children.

Miracle Meals fundraising events are being conducted at local restaurants throughout the summer to benefit the upcoming Miracles and Promises Radiothon set for Sept. 28-29 at the Beeghly campus in Boardman.

Weather damage

YOUNGSTOWN

Sporadic high-wind gusts and heavy rain scattered around the Mahoning Valley on Tuesday brought a tree down across Park Avenue in McDonald and damaged a transformer in the 100 block of Wrenfield Drive in Hubbard, causing power outages in that city. Also, wires were reported downed at Poland Manor. Columbiana County, reportedly hit harder than the rest of the Valley, had only 17 customers without power as of 10:45 p.m. when Trumbull and Mahoning counties had fewer than five outages each.

Searches find drugs

YOUNGSTOWN

Police serving search warrants about 5:30 p.m. Monday investigating drug activity at two homes on East Avondale Avenue found a gun in one home and drugs in another.

At 137 E. Avondale, police found a .25-caliber handgun and a suspected marijuana cigar. Cited for possession of marijuana was Tanya Manigault, 41, who lists the home as her address.

At 146 E. Avondale, police found a bag of suspected crack cocaine and $620 cash in the pocket of Dawan Williams, 31, who lists the home as his address. Inside the home police found fentanyl, three pills and three scales. Williams was arrested on drug charges. Brittany Fitzgerald, 30, was taken into custody on a warrant.

Spagnola pleads guilty

YOUNGSTOWN

A Warren man pleaded guilty Monday in the U.S. Northern District Court Of Ohio to a count of being a felon in illegal possession of a firearm. Sentencing will be in October for Duane Spagnola, 30, who was found to have a .357 Magnum revolver on him Feb. 21. Court records show Spagnola has a 2014 conviction from Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court that prohibits him from having a firearm.

Filing for re-election

BOARDMAN

Township trustees Brad Calhoun and Tom Costello today will file paperwork at Mahoning County Board of Elections to seek re-election in November. Calhoun first was elected to the board in 2009. Costello served from December 1999 through 2005 and was again elected in 2009.

Habitat walls to go up

BOARDMAN

Habitat for Humanity of Mahoning Valley today will raise walls for its 139th house in the Valley, being built at 82 Erskine Ave. for Angel Thompson and her two young children. Funds for the project were raised primarily by Youngstown Columbiana Association of Realtors. To learn about volunteering at a Habitat build, call 330-743-7244, ext. 304 or visit www.HabitatMahoning.org/ volunteer/construction.

Injection-well protest

BROOKFIELD

Concerned citizens will have a rally at 5:45 p.m. Thursday at Brookfield Center green to protest two proposed fracking waste-injection wells in the township. Participants plan to write letters to state officials objecting to the drilling permits.

Haynes South closing

VERNON

Haynes South Road will be closed for culvert replacement effective from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. today. The recommended detour route is west on state Route 88 and northeast on state Route 5.

Checkpoint charges

AUSTINTOWN

Two checkpoints here Friday night and early Saturday morning led to one felony arrest for identity theft, as well as multiple lower-level summonses.

The Mahoning County OVI Task Force, in collaboration with the Ohio State Highway Patrol, conducted the checkpoints at Mahoning Avenue and Canfield-Niles Road.

A total of 898 vehicles passed through and netted one OVI arrest, three summonses for drug abuse and one summons each for falsification, speeding, driving without a license and possession of drug paraphernalia and a citation for expired license plates.

Like Guerrieri, student Christy Upole, 36, of Youngstown, also cherishes her MCCTC experience.

"I never worked in the restaurant industry so this was all new to me. But it was in line with what I always did," she explained. "I always enjoyed cooking for family, friends and loved ones. I've been in the kitchen since I was a little girl, and it was the right time in my life for a change, and here I am."

Upole said seeing the program through to The Bistro has been an "absolute payoff" to move toward her career goal to be a private chef.

Kushma said seeing students such as Upole and Guerrieri have so much pride in the final stages of their work makes his work worth it.

"I like looking from the first part of the year – never cooking before – and seeing them get out of this program and go on and be successful in life," he said.

Customer Roxanne Chernikovich returns when The Bistro is in action to celebrate the success of her son, Gary Chernikovich, a former MCCTC culinary program graduate.

"We just love it here, and we love the food, and we love the program," she said. "Our son graduated, and he is now a chef."

Man heads to court to face motor vehicle violations

Staff report

GIRARD

A man is set to appear in Girard Municipal Court, accused of injuring three people while driving drunk.

Edwards

Christopher J. Edwards, 27, of Girard has a pretrial hearing today on charges of aggravated vehicular assault, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, driving under the influence, driving without a license and driving too close to another vehicle.

Police responded just after midnight Sunday to a two-car crash at the intersection of state Route 304 and Shady Road in Liberty. Police said Edwards, one of the drivers, was shirtless and appeared drunk. He failed a series of field-sobriety tests and registered a blood-alcohol content of 0.263, according to a police report. The legal limit in Ohio is 0.08.

There was also a woman in the passenger's seat of Edwards' car. The pair said they had been drinking beforehand at a restaurant, police reported.

Witnesses told police Edwards' car struck a minivan after driving erratically. Paramedics transported three of the van's occupants to St. Elizabeth Hospital for serious injuries.

Emergency personnel also transported Edwards to the hospital due to complaints of chest pains. He was later released to the Trumbull County jail.

Edwards' aunt said the car was hers and told police she wished to pursue charges against her nephew for using the car without her permission.

Edwards entered not-guilty pleas to all misdemeanor charges during his arraignment Monday. He could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Newton Falls again asks for annexation of acreage near Ohio Turnpike

Staff report

WARREN

Newton Falls officials have again asked the Trumbull County commissioners to allow annexation of about 440 acres near the Ohio Turnpike into the village.

It's similar to a proposal the commissioners rejected in February except this one addresses two issues the commissioners said stood in the way of their approval.

Village Law Director A. Joseph Fritz said this annexation includes agreements from CSX railroad and the Ohio Turnpike Commission.

For this proposal, Newton Falls also removed three properties the commissioners said created an "island" of land surrounded by the annexed area.

Fritz said this proposal involves the same landowners as the last time.

Mayor Lyle Waddell said the annexation was being developed to encourage development of the land near the turnpike by providing certain village utilities.

The land would come from Braceville and Newton townships, which actively opposed the proposal the last time by having meetings and collecting signatures on petitions they presented to the commissioners.

Like the last time, the commissioners must decide within 45 days whether to approve or deny the request.

The commissioners have an item on the agenda for today's meeting asking them to acknowledge that the annexation request was filed.

Robinson Cano homered off Cubs closer Wade Davis leading off the 10th inning and the American League beat the National League 2-1 Tuesday night in an All-Star Game dominated by this era's flame-throwers, rather than its standout sluggers. Craig Kimbrel wiggled out of a jam in the ninth and right fielder Justin Upton made a lunging catch in the 10th to help the AL win its fifth in a row. And for the first time since 1964, the rivalry is back to all even — 43 wins apiece with two ties, and each side has scored exactly 361 runs. Andrew Miller finished off the win and celebrated with his AL teammates. Even though home-field advantage in the World Series no longer goes to the league that wins the All-Star Game, it was a victory worth savoring.

Cano earned the MVP honor with his one clutch swing. At 34, the Seattle second baseman was among the oldest players in a game built around so many of the sport's new, young stars. He sent a hanging curve off the back wall of the right-field bullpen, then blew a

UFC champ set for Aug. 26 fight

Floyd Mayweather Jr. reached into a backpack and held out a $100 million check for the crowd of 11,000 fight fans to see.

"Let me show you what a $100 million fighter looks like," he said.

Conor McGregor interrupted from his stool behind the podium: "That's to the tax man."

Mayweather replied: "You're right. I'm the IRS, and I'm going to tax your ass."

The undefeated boxer and the Irish UFC champion have thrown their first jabs in a summer of verbal sparring before the fighting spectacle of the year.

Mayweather and McGregor kicked off a four-city promotional tour Tuesday at Staples Center, facing off in front of a raucous crowd that thoroughly enjoyed this circus' first stop in Hollywood.

Both fighters promised a knockout, and they had a prolonged shouting match during their second faceoff, with UFC President Dana White stepping between them.

"I am fighting, and he is boxing," McGregor said. "It's two men at the top of their game competing. It's two worlds colliding. That enough is reason why this is what it is."

All but the most naive fight fans realize the promotion for this bout could be much more entertaining than the historic 154-pound fight Aug. 26 in Las Vegas.

McGregor and Mayweather traded clever insults and profane boasts that quickly

Boardman earns 10-11 state trip

BOARDMAN

Boardman pitcher Gavin Hyde dominated in Tuesday's district championship game against Poland.

Hyde struck out 12 Poland batters and limited his opponents to two hits in Boardman's 8-2 victory in the 10-11 Little League district tournament at the Fields of Dreams.

At the plate, Hyde doubled and scored a run.

Hyde pitched all but the final out, due to hitting the 85 pitch limit of Little League Baseball.

Robert Hyde, Boardman's head coach and Gavin's father, was a little surprised by the amount of strikeouts.

"We definitely had a lot of strikeouts in the game," Robert Hyde said. "The pitcher had a good outing tonight."

In the bottom of the first inning with two outs, Boardman started a rally that blew the game open. Ryan Conti singled and Boardman scored on an overthrow. The next batter, Marty Stachowicz, doubled and drove in Conti to make it 2-1.

Zach Ganser's triple drove in two runs to make it 4-1.

In the top of the third inning, Poland had a chance to make things interesting. Poland loaded the bases but only came away with one run, slicing Boardman's advantage to 4-2.

Boardman's stellar defense, according to Hyde, was the key.

"When the ball was in play, we made the plays that needed to be made," he said.

In the bottom of the third, Boardman continued to build its lead. Ryan Kalmes singled and a throwing error allowed Landon Whippo to score.

Both teams traded good defensive innings until the bottom of the fifth inning when Boardman left no doubt on the scoreboard.

showed why this boxing match should be a rare spectacle — before the opening bell, anyway.

“He looks good for a seven- or eight-figure fighter, but I’m a nine-figure fighter,” Mayweather said. “This [guy] made 3 million dollars his last fight, but we know that’s training camp money for me.”

The 40-year-old Mayweather has been coaxed out of his latest retirement for the colossal payday coming from this unique matchup. The bout will cost $99.95 on high-definition pay-per-view, while tickets at T-Mobile Arena will range from $500 to $10,000 — and there aren’t many $500 seats.

In a tailor-made pinstripe suit that repeated a profane phrase in tiny letters as its stripe, McGregor didn’t try to disguise his glee at the prospect of his mammoth financial reward for seeing how his heavy hands can fare against Mayweather’s famed defensive skills in this cross-disciplinary experiment.

McGregor got more personal than Mayweather, going after everything from the boxer’s apparent money troubles to his attire.

McGregor also risked racial offensiveness when he yelled, “Dance for me, boy! Dance for me, son!” during an exchange with Mayweather.

“He’s in a ... track suit,” McGregor said, looking at Mayweather. “He can’t even afford a suit anymore. The Rolls is a 2012 outside.”

with an energy-sapping disease, Williams rode a strong serve that produced eight aces, imposing returns and her court coverage of old to a 6-3, 7-5 victory over French Open champion Jelena Ostapenko of Latvia, edging closer to a sixth singles title at the All England Club.

“The competition keeps you growing,” Williams said. “You have to get better if you want to stay relevant.”

Somehow, at age 37, she’s done that. This was her 100th Wimbledon match, coming in her 20th appearance. The first of her trophies at the grass-court tournament came in 2000.

And now, for the third match in a row, Williams beat a player who was born in 1997 — after she made her Grand Slam debut that year. “The first one was 20 years ago? Lord,” Price said, her eyes wide, her chuckle loud. “Well, you know, that’s a long time.”

This is not exactly new, though. Williams is the only woman to have made the fourth round at each of the past six majors, and now she’s into her third semifinal in that span.

She made it that far at Wimbledon last year, too, before losing, and got to the final at the Australian Open in January, when she was beaten by her younger sister, Serena.

Williams revealed in 2011 that she was diagnosed with Sjogren’s syndrome, which can sap energy and cause joint pain. To get to what would be her ninth final at the All England Club, the 10th-seeded Williams will need to win Thursday against No. 6 Johanna Konta, the first British woman in the Wimbledon semifinals since Virginia Wade was the runner-up in 1978.

With Wade, the 1977 champion, sitting in the Royal Box, Konta prevented Halep from rising to No. 1 by beating her 6-7 (2), 7-6 (5), 6-4. The result means that Karolina Pliskova, who lost in the second round, will replace Angelique Kerber, who departed in the fourth, atop the rankings next week.

Serbia’s Novak Djokovic returns to Adrian Mannarino of France during their men’s singles match Tuesday at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships in London.

Djokovic rips grass condition

Associated Press

LONDON

Bothered by what he called a “hole” at Centre Court, Novak Djokovic complained about the condition of the grass at Wimbledon on Tuesday.

Djokovic, who defeated Adrian Mannarino in the fourth round, said the courts are among the worst he’s played on in his 13 years at the All England Club.

“[The] courts, honestly, are not that great this year, and many players feel the same, but it is what it is,” Djokovic said in a television interview after his match ended. “I’m sure they’re trying their best, but I’ve played on better courts.”

Djokovic, a three-time Wimbledon champion and 12-time Grand Slam winner, initially expressed his disappointment with the court condition following a third-round victory over Ernest Gulbis on Saturday.

On Tuesday, playing with the roof closed, Djokovic could be seen after points picking up or kicking away small portions of grass that had loosened up on the baseline.

The second-seeded Serb lodged his disappointment with chair umpire Carlos Bernardes during the match

“He wanted me to show him, so I showed him,” Djokovic said at a news conference. “His reaction wasn’t that great.”

Mannarino, who had not played on Centre Court until he faced Djokovic, said his only concern about the surface was that he had to make sure he didn’t slip during the match.

“To me, the Centre Court [was] really good, actually,” Mannarino said. “Maybe he was complaining a little bit, but compared to the other courts I’ve been playing on before, it was good.”

Tuesday was the first day persistent rain moved over southwest London since Wimbledon started.

Because of the dry conditions, the 18 courts saw nearly uninterrupted play over the first seven days of the tournament, which led to consistent wear.

Golfers shun Trump talk

Associated Press

BEDMINSTER, N.J.

There will be no getting around President Donald Trump for the USGA and the world’s top golfers at the U.S. Women’s Open this week.

The biggest event in women’s golf is being held at Trump National Golf Club, and the first day of formal interviews Tuesday had as much to do with the tournament that starts Thursday as it did about the Republican president.

The USGA has faced pressure from women’s groups and three Democratic U.S. senators to move the event because of Trump’s comments about women and minorities, namely audio that surfaced during the campaign of Trump vulgarly describing his interactions with women.

The USGA refused, keeping the marquee event at the course located a few miles from its headquarters in Far Hills.

Former Open champions Michelle Wie, So Yeon Ryu of South Korea and former world No. 1 Lydia Ko of New Zealand skirted questions Tuesday about Trump’s past, insisting they were focused on playing golf this week.

It’s unclear whether Trump will attend the tournament that runs through Sunday, said Matt Sawicki, director of USGA championships. Trump is scheduled to be in France on Friday for a Bastille Day celebration. The Federal Aviation Administration has issued the type of flight restriction around the club from Friday through Sunday that it typically issues when Trump is expected there.

Three-time Open winner Inbee Park said she was not surprised players are avoiding political questions.

“I don’t think they will get any advantage from saying whether they agree or disagree, and I mean I don’t really think that really has much to say with me because I think it is really up to him whether he wants to come or not,” Park said.

A USGA official moderating the news conferences, Beth Major, declined to give an answer when asked about the organization’s stance on sexual assault, saying the USGA was there to talk about the golf this week. But she said the USGA would discuss it later, away from the podium.

Brittany Lincicome, a seven-time winner on the LPGA Tour, recently told the Chicago Tribune that she hoped the president would stay away from the event so the focus will be on the golfers and not Trump.

Wie said she sees herself a female role model and takes it seriously, but did not go beyond that.

Manfred OK if MLB changes

Associated Press

MIAMI — With home runs, strikeouts and game times at record levels, Commissioner Rob Manfred says baseball is open to making changes in the sport's rules.

Major League Baseball proposed several initiatives last offseason, including a 20-second pitch clock, a limit of one mound trip by a catcher per pitcher each inning and raising the bottom of the strike zone slightly to its pre-1996 level.

The only change the union agreed to was to allow intentional walks to be signaled without throwing pitches.

"There have been dramatic changes in the game, the way the game's taught, the way the game is played at the big league level," Manfred said Tuesday during a meeting with the Baseball Writers' Association of America. "There is a dramatically increased tolerance for strikeouts by offensive players."

"There's much, much more emphasis on the home run as the principal offensive tool in the game. There's a dramatic increase in the use of relief pitchers, even to the point of kind of a rotating bottom of the roster between Triple-A and who's in the big leagues."

The percentage of plate appearances resulting in home runs peaked at 2.99 percent in 2000, the height of the Steroids Era, according to data compiled by the commissioner's office. After sinking to 2.28 percent in 2014, it rose to 2.67 percent the following year, 3.04 percent last season and 3.30 percent this year.

The percentage of plate appearances resulting in strikeouts has increased for 12 consecutive years, from 16.4 percent in 1999 to 21.6 percent this season.

"Fans like home runs, it seems, and fans like strikeouts, it seems, and we have a lot of both," players' association head Tony Clark said.

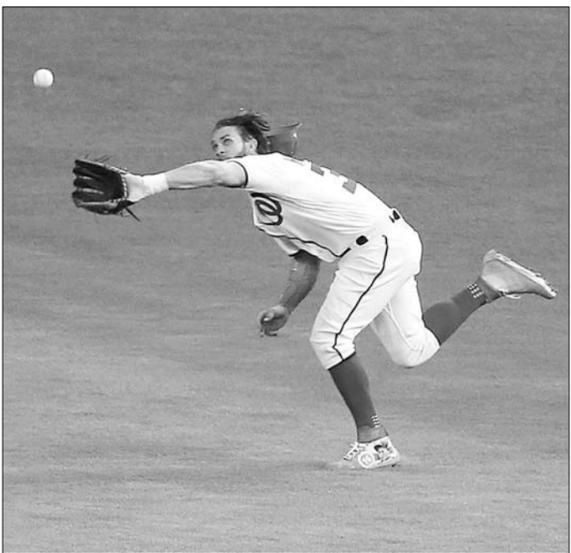

Manfred agreed, but only if the strikeouts are by a dominant pitcher, such as a Clayton Kershaw.

"I think where it gets troubling from a fan perspective is tons and tons of strikeouts, no action, lots of pitching changes," Manfred said.

The average ratio of relief pitchers to starters per game has climbed from 2.01 in 1990 to 3.15 last season. It stands at 3.10 this year at the All-Star break but rises each season after active rosters expand from 25 to 40 on Sept. 1.

"Other sports have been more aggressive about managing what's going on on the field in terms of what their game looks like than we have been, and I'm certainly open to the idea that we should take a more aggressive posture," Manfred said.

MLB is concerned about the increasing length of games. Nine-inning games have averaged 3 hours, 5 minutes this season, up from an even 3 hours last year and 2:56 in 2015.

Cano's homer came exactly 50 years after the previous extra-inning homer in an All-Star Game, when Tony Perez hit a tiebreaking 15th-inning shot off Catfish Hunter in the NL's 2-1 win at Anaheim, Calif. Perez, now a Marlins executive, was among eight Latin-born Hall of Famers who threw out ceremonial first pitches.

Miguel Sano put the AL ahead in the fifth with a bloop RBI single against Alex Wood. Yadier Molina tied it in the sixth with a home run off Ervin Santana.

Molina had just entered behind the plate in the top half and snapped off an All-Star first — Nelson Cruz pulled a phone out of his uniform pants and asked the catcher to snap a photo of him with umpire Joe West.

Davis wasn't with the Cubs last fall when they won the World Series for the first time in 108 years. He was acquired in a trade from Kansas City to fortify the bullpen, and was the only Cubs player in this showcase. Chicago has struggled this season, going into the break at 43-45.

Kimberl, throwing at up to 100 mph, stranded runners at second and third to end the ninth, striking out Michael Conforto. The Boston closer wound up with the win.

Miller, whose Cleveland Indians lost the World Series in Game 7, got the save with some help from Upton.

A left fielder playing in right for the first time in four years, Upton extended his arm on a full run to catch Corey Seager's liner leading off the 10th. Miller walked Joey Votto with two outs, then struck out rookie sensation Cody Bellinger.

The AL's first six hits were by first-time All-Stars but some things don't change. The AL has won 12 of 15 and 17 of the last 20 All-Star Games played to a decision.

The night's most-watched sluggers fizzled.

A night day after winning the Home Run Derby with 47 long balls, Yankees rookie sensation Aaron Judge went 0 for 3 with a strikeout, groundout and flyout. Giancarlo Stanton, the star slugger of the hometown Marlins, was 0 for 3 with a pair of strikeouts and a dribbler in front of the plate.

NL pitchers struck out 14, including four by Carlos Martinez, three by Kenley Jansen and two each by starter Max Scherzer and Greg Holland. AL pitchers fanned nine.

Salazar also pitched in AAA Columbus where he went 3⅓ innings, allowing three earned runs on three home runs.

"[Being aggressive] was the plan and I just stuck with it," Salazar said. "I've been working a lot of trying to be more calm on the mound and I think I'm better now going in and out to hitters. My fastball command is better."

Salazar said this is the strongest he's felt in an entire calendar year.

"Right now, I feel great," Salazar said. "This is the best I've felt since I went to the All-Star Game last year. I'm happy the way I'm feeling right now."

Soreness struck Salazar early this year and he said it's been a struggle to get back to Cleveland since his stint on the disabled list and now a quick trip back through the minors.

"After my first game this year I felt soreness in my shoulder and it wasn't that bad in the beginning but when they moved me to the bullpen, throwing one day then having a day off and throwing again was very difficult for me."

"It's the first time I've done that."

As for the game, the Scrappers got their work done early. After a scoreless opening inning from Salazar, Austen Wade led off the home half of the first with a single and Samad Taylor launched a home run to left field that nearly cleared the advertisements beyond the bullpen.

"I don't know what pitch it was honestly," Taylor said. "I was sitting in one spot for location and it happened to fall right there and I reacted to it. We started off the game good."

Did Taylor know it was gone immediately?

"Oh yeah," Taylor said. The first five Scrappers reached base and the third runner scored when Clark Scalamiero singled on a line drive to right to bring home Nolan Jones.

Mahoning Valley struck again in the second when Jones singled to right to bring home Ernie Clement. It was more than enough. Brooklyn was able to scratch a run across in the sixth and brought the tying run to the plate in the ninth, but couldn't catch up to the early work of the Scrappers.

It was an especially welcome win after the Scrappers had dropped four in a row.

"The guys came out swinging and were getting out and having fun tonight," Mahoning Valley manager Luke Carlin said.

Taylor said he hopes this is the start of another winning streak as the team now sits a game over .500 (11-10).

"Feels good to be back on top," Taylor said. "A win here, a win tomorrow and go from there. Win the series and come out strong."

Despite most ballplayers around the professional leagues having the night off for the mid-season break, that isn't the case for the short-season New York-Penn League teams. Salazar said it was nice to be able to play today and keep a normal pitching rotation rhythm going, rather than just sit around on a break that he's already had on the disabled list.

"I think it's good for me to get a five-day routine," Salazar said. "I think [playing Tuesday] was a great idea. I didn't want to feel good, then go home for three or four days and just play catch or not take treatment that I've been doing. Because all the staff is at the All-Star Game — the coaches, trainers, even the bullpen catchers."

Taylor concurred that what he was doing this year's All-Star night is better than what he was doing a year ago.

"Yes and no [it feels weird playing on All-Star night]," Taylor said. "I walk in the locker room to go to the bathroom and the game is on. But last year I was watching it and now I'm here doing my thing and getting after it."

Richey drove him in with a double of his own. With a runner on base, Conti blasted the ball over the center-field fence for a two-run homer for an 8-2 lead.

Conti's blast brought the entire team out of the dug-out to celebrate.

"Our bats were where they needed to be which allowed us to move some runners around and score some runs to get a nice win," Hyde said. "I'm just really proud of the boys. They did a great job tonight."

Poland coach Frank Elia also was proud of how his team played.

"The boys played a great game tonight, they really did," Elia said.

He was also quick to give praise to the Boardman team and coaching staff.

"All congratulations go to Boardman — well-coached, great team."

"Poland boys played their hearts and came a long way this year and next year, we'll see if we can do better," Elia said.

Boardman advances to the state tournament, which takes place in Cambridge from July 22-29.

Elia thinks Boardman will be an excellent representative for our area.

"I'm proud to see them go to state and they'll do us proud for the area."

Expansion plan highlights West Bank city's plight

QALQILIYA, WEST BANK

Last year, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government quietly passed one of its most significant concessions to the Palestinians: a plan to alter the West Bank map and turn over a small chunk of Israeli-controlled territory.

But after an uproar by Israeli settler leaders, the government appears poised to cancel the move – a decision that could upset nascent U.S. efforts to restart peace talks and take away a rare piece of relief for the residents of this overcrowded city.

As the West Bank's most densely populated Palestinian city, Qalqiliya has been eagerly awaiting implementation of the Israeli plan that would allow it to double its size by expanding into land that has until now been off-limits.

US inks anti-terror deal with Qatar in press to end dispute

DOHA, QATAR

U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson sealed a deal Tuesday to intensify Qatar's counterterrorism efforts, tackling a central issue in the spat pitting the besieged Gulf nation against four other American allies lined up against it.

Tillerson outlined the agreement at the end of his first visit to Qatar since its neighbors moved to isolate it over grievances, including what they allege is its support for extremist groups.

It was his second stop on a shuttle-diplomacy circuit that will take him next to Saudi Arabia, which has shut Qatar's only land border and is the most powerful of the countries opposing it.

The centerpiece of the visit was the signing of a memorandum of understanding that lays out steps Qatar can take to bolster its fight against terrorism and address shortfalls in policing terrorism funding.

Voter fraud panel tells states to hold off on sending data

CONCORD, N.H.

President Donald Trump's commission on election fraud is telling states to hold off on providing detailed voter information in the face of increasing legal challenges.

The commission had given states until Friday to provide data including names, birth dates and partial Social Security numbers, but in an email Monday, the panel's designated officer told states to hold off until a judge rules on a lawsuit filed by the Electronic Privacy Information Center in Washington.

In its initial filings in that case, the commission said it planned to collect the data via a Department of Defense file exchange program. After the privacy group said that system was neither secure nor approved to collect such information, the commission said the director of White House information technology would repurpose an existing system instead, and information already sent by Arkansas through the defense department program would be deleted.

to sainthood

VATICAN CITY

Pope Francis has added a fourth pathway to possible sainthood — people who lived a good Catholic life and who freely accepted a certain and premature death for the good of others.

Until now, gaining consideration for sainthood in the Catholic Church required martyrdom, living a life of heroic values or — less frequently invoked — having a clear saintly reputation.

The Vatican announced Tuesday that the pope has issued a law on his own initiative — known as a mutu proprio — adding the fourth route.

Trump's son connects the dots on Russia probe

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
The president's son Donald Trump Jr. connected the dots.

Until Tuesday, the questions about whether Donald Trump's campaign colluded with Russia have largely centered on revelations from secret sources and suspicious connections that may ultimately be just eyebrow-raising coincidences. There's been plenty of smoke, but no fire.

Then suddenly — there in black and white — was the president's son eagerly accepting a meeting with a purported Russian government lawyer who dangled the promise of damaging information about Democrat Hillary Clinton. The type of coordination with Russia that Trump has long denied, the emails seem to show, was being embraced by his namesake.

"If it's what you say I love it," Trump Jr. wrote in a June 2016 email to a music publicist who was acting as an intermediary with the Russian attorney.

In the four pages of emails published Tuesday, Trump Jr. also appeared unfazed when his associate stated that the information "is part of Russia and its government's support for Mr. Trump." The meeting took place in New York's Trump Tower a few days later.

It's unclear if the meeting breaches election laws barring campaigns from receiving "anything of value" from foreign nationals. Nor does it clarify whether there was broader cooperation between the Trump team and the Russian government. Sorting through those questions will fall to special counsel Robert Mueller and congressional investigators, and an answer may not be known for months, or even years.

But the stunning email exchange immediately bolstered the legitimacy of those investigations, and undercut Trump's efforts to dismiss the probes as a "hoax" and a Democratic-driven "witch hunt."

Trump Jr. released the emails just moments before they were published by The New York Times. In a statement, he downplayed the encounter, saying the Russian lawyer ultimately "had no information to provide" and only wanted to discuss a disbanded program that allowed for U.S. adoptions of Russian children.

Regardless of what transpired in the meeting — which was also attended by then-campaign chairman Paul Manafort, as well as Trump's son-in-law and current White House adviser Jared Kushner — the disclosure pushes the collusion questions uncomfortably close to the president.

Cadaver dogs used; dirt sifted in search for 4 missing men

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA
Police used cadaver dogs, a backhoe and other construction equipment Tuesday to help search a sprawling farm for four missing men believed to be victims of foul play. A prosecutor, meanwhile, described a man held on an unrelated gun charge as a person of interest in the investigation.

District Attorney Matthew Weintraub said bail was set at $1 million Monday for Cosmo DiNardo, whose family owns the farmland and another property that was searched, because he was considered a flight risk. But Weintraub did not call him a suspect and cautioned there is often a "chasm" between being called a "person of interest" in an investigation and being charged with a crime.

DiNardo, 20, is accused of illegally possessing a shotgun and ammunition in February.

A court affidavit said he had suffered from mental illness and had been involuntarily committed to an institution for inpatient care. It did not say when the commitment had occurred.

The charge had been dismissed by a judge but was refiled.

A busload of police cadets also took part in the third day of the search of farmland in Solebury Township, about 30 miles north of Philadelphia.

Aerial TV footage Tuesday showed law-enforcement officers crowded around a deep trench — a backhoe parked next to it — as officers used shovels to dig deeper and passed up buckets of dirt that were then screened with sifters.

"We want to be careful not to miss the tiniest piece of evidence," Weintraub said at an earlier briefing.

The missing are 22-year-old

Mark Sturgis, 21-year-old Tom Meo, 19-year-old Dean Finocchiaro and 19-year-old Jimi Tar Patrick, a student at Loyola University in Baltimore. Patrick disappeared Wednesday, the other three Friday.

Sturgis and Meo are longtime friends who work at the Sturgis family's construction business, and Finocchiaro is a mutual friend, Sturgis' father has said.

Police have received "a ton of leads" and are making progress, but the entire 90-acre property is of interest to investigators, Weintraub said. He said investigators were also working across the county.

The farm property is owned by DiNardo's parents, Antonio and Sandra DiNardo. Neither the DiNardos nor their son's lawyer could be reached for comment.

GOP health bill likely keeping Obama tax boosts on the rich

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
A revised Senate Republican health care bill will likely retain a pair of tax boosts President Barack Obama imposed on wealthier Americans that have helped finance his law's expansion of coverage, a leading Senate Republican said Tuesday.

The two levies — one on investment income and another on the payroll tax that helps finance the Medicare health insurance program for the elderly — are among the biggest that Obama's 2010 statute imposed. Some of the money would be used to increase a fund the GOP bill would disperse to states to help insurers contain consumers' premiums and deductibles, said No. 2 Senate GOP leader John Cornyn of Texas.

Preserving those taxes "seems to be where we're headed," Cornyn told reporters. He said the reworked bill will also provide $45 billion over a decade to help states combat abuse of drugs including opioids and make it easier for states to get federal waivers to decide how to spend money under their Medicaid health programs for the poor, elderly and nursing-home patients.

Cornyn spoke after Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., announced he will introduce his party's altered health care bill Thursday and begin trying to muscle it through the Senate next week. The effort comes with the fate of the GOP measure in doubt, with internal divisions threatening to mortally wound their top-tier goal of repealing much of Obama's overhaul.

"Hopefully everything we're doing now helps another member get to 'yes,'" Cornyn said. "There's really no other reason to tweak this thing."

In the face of unanimous Democratic opposition, the health care bill will crash if just three of the 52 GOP senators oppose it. McConnell suddenly canceled a doomed vote last month.

California fires are early, unpredictable after winter rain

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES
Timber and brush parched from a yearslong dry spell and thick grass that grew after drought-busting winter downpours are making for early and unpredictable wildfire behavior that California officials haven't seen for years, if at all.

Dense layers of new grass are providing a "fine fuel" for flames that then gain speed and intensity by moving through "standing dead fuel" made up of vegetation and trees that shriveled during the state's six-year drought, said Kathleen Schori with the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

"It's difficult to remember a year quite like this one," she said Tuesday. "There's such a mix of fuels that these large damaging fires are starting at least a month earlier than usual." The result, she said, could be a longer and more destructive fire season than California has experienced in a while.

Crews were making progress against dozens of wildfires across California, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

Authorities surveying the damage from a blaze in Northern California said Tuesday that at least 36 homes and 37 other buildings had been destroyed near the town of Oroville, about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Residents had started to return home after fleeing a wildfire in the grassy foothills of the Sierra Nevada, about 60 miles north of Sacramento, but at least 4,000 were still evacuated. The blaze burned nearly 9 square miles and injured four firefighters. It was partially contained.

Schori said this year's conditions were similar to California's 1979 wildfire season, which came on the heels of a two-year dry spell and saw blazes blackening a total of 386 square miles of grass, brush and timber and caused more than $30 million in damage.

However that year's major fires didn't kick off until well into August, she said, as did the destructive 1992 blazes that followed a drought that started five years earlier.

Clashes shake west Mosul after victory is declared

Associated Press

MOSUL, IRAQ

Airstrikes, shelling and other heavy clashes shook a small sliver of western Mosul on Tuesday in renewed fighting, a day after the government declared victory over Islamic State militants in Iraq's second-largest city.

Amnesty International, meanwhile, proclaimed the battle for Mosul to be a "civilian catastrophe," with more than 5,800 noncombatants killed in the western part of the city. The top U.S. commander in Iraq rejected the group's allegations, however, that the U.S.-led coalition violated international law.

In a sign that IS militants were still holding out in the shattered Old City, plumes of smoke rose as mortar shells landed near Iraqi troop positions and heavy gunfire rang out. Airstrikes pounded the edge of the neighborhood west of the Tigris River throughout the day.

On Monday, Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi declared "total victory" in Mosul, flanked by his senior military leadership at a small base in the city's west.

The militants overran the northern city in summer 2014, when the extremists seized territory across Iraq and Syria. The campaign by Iraqi forces and the coalition to retake the city began in October 2016. The operation killed thousands of people, left whole neighborhoods in ruins and displaced nearly 900,000 from their homes.

A statement late Monday from IS said its fighters were still attacking Iraqi troops in the al-Maydan area of Mosul's Old City, purportedly killing and wounding many and seizing weapons and ammunition.

WARREN

The July Valley Alliance for Science and Technology will take place from noon to 1:15 p.m. July 21 at The Tech Belt Energy Innovation Center, 125 W. Market St.

Participants will view a presentation, "Ideation-New Tools to Turn Today's Business Problems into Tomorrow's Innovations," and meet with other executives and technologists in the area. The event is free to VAST members; $25 for nonmembers. To RSVP or for information, contact Rose Shaffer-Sabore at rose@tbec.org or 330-207-2635.

Networking mixer

YOUNGSTOWN

YBI's WE Program will host its Women in Business networking mixer from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday at The Soap Gallery, 117 S. Champion St., downtown.

Attendees will have a chance to participate in an ice-breaker game, network with other women and vote on elevator pitches, with the top three pitches receiving monetary prizes. Appetizers and beverages will be provided by women-owned businesses affiliated with the WE Program.

This is an opportunity for the public to interact and network with local women entrepreneurs. The cost to attend is $5, and registration can be completed on Eventbrite. For information, contact Stephanie Gilchrist, program director, at sgilchrist@ybi.org or call 330-884-6053.

US job openings

WASHINGTON

U.S. employers posted fewer job openings in May. But hiring picked up and more people are quitting their jobs — both positive signs for the economy.

Job openings fell 5 percent in May to 5.7 million, the Labor Department said Tuesday. The setback occurred after advertised job postings nearly reached 6 million in April, a figure that has been revised downward from the initial report. Meanwhile, hiring climbed 8.5 percent to just under 5.5 million.

The data is a sign the economy at 4.4 percent unemployment is nearing "full employment," when nearly all those who want a job have one, and the unemployment rate mostly reflects the normal churn of people who are temporarily out of work.

Takata adds new type of inflator to huge air-bag recall

Associated Press

DETROIT Takata is adding a new type of air-bag inflator to the nation's largest automotive recall.

The company filed documents with the U.S. government adding 2.7 million vehicles to the recall from Ford, Nissan and Mazda, all with a type of inflator that previously was thought to be safe.

The affected vehicles are from the 2005 through 2012 model years.

Takata inflators can explode with too much force and spew shrapnel into drivers and passengers. At least 17 people have died and more than 180 injured due to the problem. The inflators have caused the largest automotive recall in U.S. history with 42 million vehicles and up to 69 million inflators being called back for repairs.

Takata uses the chemical ammonium nitrate to inflate air bags. But it can deteriorate when exposed to high airborne humidity and high temperatures. Previously the company believed that a drying agent called a desiccant stopped the chemical from degrading.

But the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said in a statement Tuesday that tests done by Takata show that for the first time, a type of desiccated inflator "will pose a safety risk if not replaced." The agency says it has no reports of any inflators with the desiccant rupturing.

Nissan said the new recall affects just over 515,000 Versa subcompact hatchback and sedans from the 2007 through 2012 model years. Mazda said its recall covers about 6,000 B-Series trucks from 2007 through 2009. Ford, which has the most vehicles involved in the latest recall, is reviewing the information and will file a list of models within the five days required by law.

Takata said in documents filed with the safety agency that it tested inflators returned from Nissan and Ford vehicles that use calcium sulfate as a drying agent. Although none of the inflators blew apart, some showed a pattern of deterioration in the ammonium nitrate propellant over time "that is understood to predict a future risk of inflator rupture."

The agency is urging people whose inflators have been recalled to get them replaced as soon as possible. To find out if your car or truck is part of the recall, go to <https://www.nhtsa.gov/recalls> and key in the 17-digit vehicle identification number. It may take a few days for models in the most recent recall to show up in the database.

Energy companies lead US stock indexes mostly higher

Associated Press

Another day of listless trading on Wall Street ended Tuesday with the major stock indexes closing out having shifted marginally from the day before.

Gains in energy and technology companies were canceled out by losses among banks, phone companies and other sectors.

A rebound in crude oil prices helped lift energy stocks, which led the gainers. Banks posted the largest losses.

Investors were making modest moves ahead of Federal Reserve chair Janet Yellen's testimony before Congress today and Thursday, and the release of the Fed's Beige Book, an economic snapshot used by the central bank to gauge U.S. economic trends.

The market will key in on both as it tries to discern how Fed policy on interest rates may play out this year and next, said Sameer Samana, global quantitative strategist for the Wells Fargo Investment Institute.

"Any time you have those types of potentially market-moving events, especially with policy being such a big focus right now, people are always a little hesitant" to make big market moves, Samana said.

Mostly, investors appeared to be taking a wait-and-see approach ahead of Yellen's two-day appearance before Congress.

China's auto sales rise 2.3 percent in June

Associated Press

BEIJING China's auto sales rebounded in June on the strength of SUV demand, but rose just 2.3 percent from a year earlier following a sales-tax hike and weak economic growth.

Drivers in the world's biggest auto market by number of vehicles sold bought 1.8 million sedans, SUVs and minivans, an industry group said. Sales in May shrank 2.6 percent.

Total vehicle sales, including trucks and buses, rose 3.6 percent to 2.2 million, according to the China Association of Automobile Manufacturers. SUV sales rose 15.7 percent to 741,000, helping to offset a 4.3 percent contraction in purchases of sedans to 883,000.

Passenger vehicle sales for the first half of the year rose just 1.6 percent from a year earlier to 11.2 million, down sharply from 2016's full-year growth of 15 percent.

Last year's demand was propped up after a 10-percent sales tax on small-engine vehicles was cut by half. Demand weakened after part of that tax was restored in January, raising it from 5 percent to 7.5

◆General Motors Co. said sales of GM-brand vehicles by the company and its Chinese partners rose 4.3 percent from a year earlier to 285,191. GM said SUV sales soared 42 percent.

◆Ford Motor Co. sales rose 15 percent to 100,561 vehicles in June. First-half sales contracted 7 percent to 537,522.

◆Nissan Motor Co., the biggest-selling Japanese brand in China, said its sales rose 8.9 percent from a year ago to 118,769. Year-to-date sales were up 6.7 percent to 650,525.

Opening lead: Seven of ♦

The opening diamond lead went to dummy's king and East's ace. The eight of clubs shift was ducked to West's queen, and West switched to a low heart. Declarer rose with dummy's ace to take the spade fit nesse, losing to the king, and another heart was led by West to dummy's king. From this point on, South played the hand in a very straight-forward way. He drew two more rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy, and took the club fit nesse. When that lost, the contract was down one, with declarer bemoaning his fate. South had indeed been unlucky, with the king of spades, the ace of diamonds, and both missing club honors poorly placed for him. Still, he might have done better. Can you spot how?

MAHONING CHAPTER DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

SPINACH AND ORZO SALAD

by MAG MITCHELL

- 1 16-ounce package uncooked orzo pasta
- 1 10-ounce package baby spinach leaves, finely chopped
- ½ pound crumbled feta cheese
- ½ red onion, finely chopped
- ¾ cup pine nuts or sunflower seeds
- ½ teaspoon dried basil
- ¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
- ½ cup olive oil
- ½ cup balsamic vinegar

Bring a large pot of lightly salted water to a boil. Add orzo and cook 8 to 10 minutes or until al dente. Drain and rinse with cold water. Transfer to a large bowl. Stir in spinach, feta, onion, pine nuts, basil and white pepper. Toss with olive oil and balsamic vinegar. Refrigerate and serve cold.

ORANGE TAPIOCA SALAD

by JANET BENDER

- 3 cups water
- 1 3-ounce package orange gelatin
- 1 3.4-ounce package instant vanilla pudding mix
- 1 3-ounce package tapioca pudding mix
- 1 15-ounce can mandarin oranges, drained
- 1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1 carton frozen whipped topping, thawed

In a saucepan, bring water to a boil. Whisk in gelatin and pudding mixes. Return to a boil, stirring constantly and boiling for 1 minute. Remove from heat and cool completely. Fold in oranges, pineapple and whipped topping. Spoon into serving bowl. Cover and refrigerate 2 hours. Yield: 12 to 14 servings.

LOUISE'S SPANISH RICE

by LOUISE FARKAS

- 2 pounds hamburger
- 2 small onions, chopped
- Salt and pepper
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 3 8-ounce cans regular tomato sauce
- 1 14.5-ounce stewed tomatoes with onions, celery and green peppers
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 3 cups Minute Rice, (uncooked)
- ¾ cup chopped green peppers

Brown meat; season with salt, pepper and garlic powder. Add onions. Cook until onions are tender and meat is cooked. Drain. Add tomato sauce, stewed tomatoes, salt, pepper, chili powder and beef bouillon cubes. Bring to a boil and stir in rice. Add green peppers. Cover and lower heat until the rice is tender, stirring often so there is no scorching. Fluff with fork.

CHOCOLATE SALTINE BARS

by CAROL TALLMAN

- Saltines
- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1½ cups chocolate chips
- chopped nuts, if desired

Use foil and a sheet pan. Lightly grease. Line the pan evenly with saltines. Boil butter and brown sugar for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour evenly over saltines and bake in a 350 degree oven for 5 minutes. Immediately remove from oven, put chocolate chips on top and frost after melted. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Refrigerate and break into pieces when hard. Tasted best when served cold.

ABOUT THE BOOK

This is the second printing of the cookbook, which includes recipes from the chapter members. Proceeds are used to help local veterans.

HOW TO ORDER

Each book costs $10 and is available at Agnew Lawn & Garden, 1700 Market St., Boardman, or from any Mahoning DAR members.

Australia's most well-known and historic region

The Barossa Valley Vineyard

SPECIAL TO THE VINDICATOR

The Barossa Valley

This is the third in a series of five articles chronicling my trip to Australia and New Zealand wine country. Today's article focuses on Australia's most well-known and historic region: The Barossa Valley.

I took an easy one-hour flight from Sydney to Adelaide and then took a scenic 90-minute drive to Barossa. One thing that struck me right away as I made the drive was the physical appearance of the landscape.

It is very much a patchwork of vineyards, orchards, farmland and open space. This is a result of the widely varying soil types dotted throughout the region. Unlike most major wine regions, the Barossa Valley is not 80-90 percent planted with vines. The vineyards are interwoven where the land allows it.

History runs deep and long in Barossa. The area was first settled in the 1850s-60s by German Lutheran immigrants escaping persecution in their homeland. Interestingly, about half of those Germans went to Australia and the rest came to the United States.

There are several prominent family-owned wineries that were founded in these early days that have evolved into some of Barossa's top producers. Henschke traces its roots back to those earliest days, and it still farms the oldest vines in the Barossa Valley at its renowned Hill of Grace Vineyard site.

I had the good fortune of visiting Henschke and spent some time with Stephen Henschke, who is the leader of the 5th generation operating the winery. Henschke was excited about the future and reflective of their family's deep roots.

"I love being able to continue my family's heritage of winemaking in Barossa. The Hill of Grace site is a true gem, recognized around the world as a vineyard of great significance. We're so fortunate to have it as part of our history."

The Ashmead family, owners of Elderton Winery, played a significant role in Barossa's more recent history. I was lucky enough to stay in Elderton's guesthouse and spend some time with Allister Ashmead, who runs the winery with his brother.

Ashmead's father was a significant figure in helping to save Barossa Valley as a wine region. He was offered a significant sum of money to sell his vineyards to a company that was going to rip them out. Ashmead held firm and committed to further developing his vineyards into some of Barossa's best.

"Dad had almost no experience in the wine business when he bought our land. What he did have was a commitment to the land and its people. He felt he had something special here and committed to making it work. His decision changed everything for our family and emboldened other Barossa vineyard owners to stay the course."

Today, Barossa is a thriving region once again, with wines of incredible quality and some tremendous values. Shiraz is still king here, but Grenache is identified by many in the valley as the grape of the future. Several smaller wineries are also testing more non-

Pop-ular popcorn snacks to enjoy for summer

Family Features

From casual gatherings with friends to outdoor athletic activities and leisurely time at home, all of the best summer pastimes have one thing in common: tasty snacks make them more enjoyable.

Light, airy and fresh popcorn is a perfect summer snack. It's naturally low in fat and calories, non-GMO and gluten free – all the makings of an ideal guilt-free treat. Whether you enjoy it one delicious handful at a time, sprinkled with seasonings or as an ingredient in fun summertime recipes, popcorn offers plenty of versatility for every occasion.

You can kick up the heat with a zesty popcorn mix or take a sweeter route with a blend of toasted coconut and bananas. No summer sporting event is complete without some good old toffee-style popcorn and nuts, and even a favorite like ice cream sandwiches can only get better with the addition of sweet, crunchy popcorn and candy.

Find more popcorn recipes perfect for summer at popcorn.org.

COCONUT MONKEY MIX

Yield: 7 cups

- 1 cup flaked coconut (unsweetened or sweetened)
- 6 cups popped popcorn
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- dash of nutmeg
- 1 cup dried banana chips

Heat oven to 325 F.

Spread coconut in 13-by-9-inch baking pan, breaking up any clumps as needed. Bake 10 minutes, or until edges of coconut begin to brown.

Spread popcorn over coconut and sprinkle with butter; toss. Sprinkle popcorn mixture with sugar, salt and nutmeg; toss.

Bake 5 minutes longer, remove from heat and toss with banana chips. Serve immediately or cool and store in airtight container.

6. Torbreck Cellars – Deep portfolio with tremendous Grenache blends.

I hope this article will help send you on your own Barossa wine experience. Start by picking up a few bottles and then plan a trip to this incredible place. You'll be glad you did!

Egg-cellent outdoor brunch

Family Features

Take advantage of warmer weather by hosting an outdoor brunch serving an egg-tastic recipe that's sure to please your friends and family. Eggs Benedict Casserole is a do-it-yourself version of the restaurant classic, combining traditional ingredients with a spicy twist. Requiring only one dish for baking and serving, this recipe is perfect for special occasions and celebrations, or casual weekend brunches at home.

Here's a list of items to consider when preparing for your outdoor brunch:

Angelic Eggs - Take hard-boiled eggs, remove the yolks and combine with mayonnaise, chopped salmon, dill, Tabasco Original Red Sauce and salt; then refill the egg whites and serve.

Dog-Day Fruit Salad

Dog-Day Fruit Salad - Combine your favorite fresh fruits, such as strawberries, blueberries and raspberries, with orange juice, orange peel and honey.

Classic Bloody Mary - Combine tomato juice, vodka, Worcestershire sauce, lime juice and Tabasco Original Red Sauce; stir, and pour over ice. Garnish with a celery stalk.

EGGS BENEDICT CASSEROLE

Prep Time: 15 minutes

Cook Time: 40 minutes

Makes: 6 servings

- 6 cups French bread, cut into cubes
- 12 large eggs
- 1½ cups milk
- 3 tablespoons fresh chives, chopped
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2½ teaspoons Tabasco brand Original Red Sauce, divided
- 12 ounces Canadian bacon, chopped
- 1 (9-ounce) package Hollandaise sauce

Preheat oven to 350 F.

Place French bread cubes in 8-cup shallow casserole dish. Beat eggs, milk, chives, salt and 2 teaspoons Tabasco sauce in large bowl; stir in Canadian bacon. Pour over bread cubes. Let mixture stand 5 minutes. Bake 40 minutes or until mixture is puffed and set.

Meanwhile, prepare Hollandaise sauce as package directs. Stir in ½ teaspoon of Tabasco sauce. Keep warm until ready to use.

Serve casserole with warm Hollandaise sauce.

Make anything coleslaw

BY JAMES P. DEWAN

Chicago Tribune (TNS)

Now that our old pal global warming has kicked summer back into spring, no doubt you've been firing up the grill for several weeks now, charring yourself some luscious hunks of bloody, bloody meat.

Oh, slaw, with your tangy crunch and bumptiously high-fibered nutritional content, why have we not feted you previously?

WHY YOU NEED TO LEARN THIS

We've discussed previously and at length the need to adhere like Scotch tape to the rigid principles of jingoistic Amerikism. Sure, slaw's origins are not in this country (not unlike most of ours), but you'd still be hard-pressed to find a family barbecue in the U.S. of A. without at least one bowl brimming with the stuff. Without slaw, it's just not a barbecue; it's just a bunch of woebegone werewolves wishing for more napkins.

THE STEPS YOU TAKE

Now, of course the most common kind of slaw is of the cole-ish kind. In fact, the word "coleslaw" is simply a transliteration from the Dutch "koolsla," which, according to the Oxford English Dictionary, the foremost authority on the origin of English language words, is a form of "kool-salade" or cabbage salad.

Interestingly, by the way, that "kohl" sound is found in many members of the family Brassica, which the kids these days like to refer to as the "cabbage family." Broccoli, cauliflower, kohlrabi, collards, Border collies – it's all right there.

That's right: Come for the slaw. Stay for the lexicological blovations.

Now, when most of us think of coleslaw, we're thinking of shredded (or chiffonade of) cabbage dressed with a creamy mayonnaise dressing. (Unless you're from North Carolina, in which case, your cabbage might be diced and tossed with a vinegar-based dressing.)

Cabbage aside, though, if we recall that the "slaw" means "salad," our eyes are now open to a whole world of possibilities. Anything you can make into a salad, you can make into a slaw. In fact, what even is the difference?

If you want to make a slaw, then all you have to do is get some very fresh vegetables (It's farmers market season, kids!!!), render them into small bits, coat them lightly with a delicious dressing and, as my fine young son used to bellow on the tennis court: "Blammo!"

We have achieved slaw.

If you're using vegetables like broccoli or cauliflower, break them into the smallest florets you can manage.

Generally speaking, slaws are defined by their main ingredient or ingredients. I tend not to use more than three, only because it takes up too much space on the menu. Think broccoli, raisin and carrot, or carrot, snow pea and radish, or radish, jicama and apple, or apple, fennel and cabbage, or cabbage, carrot and scallion, or scallion, edamame and bacon. OK, this is getting nutsy, fast. But, see what I'm doing? I'm just riffing on ingredients that taste good raw bacon), then putting them together all crazylike. Or, you can fancy up your basic coleslaw by combining your cabbage with just about anything else.

Now, let's get some ideas for dressings. All of the following are acid-based (vinegar, citrus), but they also can be stirred into mayonnaise for a creamier slaw. Also, remember that everything needs salt to taste:

Asian-style 1: Equal parts soy sauce, rice wine vinegar, sesame oil, optional brown sugar, garlic, ginger, sesame seeds and/or wasabi paste to taste.

Asian-style 2: Two parts lime juice to one part each fish sauce, brown sugar, optional peanuts or peanut butter; garlic, cilantro, mint and salt to taste.

South American (think "chimichurri"): Equal parts cilantro and parsley finely chopped with garlic to taste; stir into 2-to-1 blend of extra-virgin olive oil and sherry or red wine vinegar; oregano and red pepper flakes to taste.

Indian-style: Equal parts lime juice, oil, shredded coconut, peanuts and cilantro; garam masala and a pinch of turmeric to taste.

North Carolina (Piedmont): Equal parts ketchup, cider vinegar and sugar; black pepper and optional hot sauce or cayenne pepper to taste.

CAESAR SLAW

Prep: 30 minutes

Makes: 12 servings

My friend and colleague, chef Wook Kang, featured this recently on the dinner menu at the Dining Room at Kendall College.

- 12 ounces Romaine lettuce, chiffonade
- 12 ounces radicchio, chiffonade
- 12 ounces frisee, chiffonade
- 12 ounces Caesar slaw dressing, see recipe
- 6 ounces Parmesan, grated
- 12 ounces bacon lardons, crisped
- 2 ounces Italian parsley, finely minced
- 1 Toss three lettuces with dressing.
- 2 Serve, topped with grated Parmesan, bacon and parsley.

Caesar slaw dressing

Prep: 30 minutes

Chill: 30 minutes

Makes: about 1¾ cups

- 4 ounces Parmesan, grated
- 1 shallot, minced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 3 ounces cider vinegar
- 1 ounce lemon juice
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon hot sauce, optional
- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 ounce anchovy paste
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 teaspoons finely minced parsley

In a large bowl, whisk all ingredients until combined. Chill 30 minutes before using.

Flavorful dinner ideas that are healthy and easy to prepare

Family Features

It's not always easy to make healthy food choices. When time is of the essence, look for delicious ingredients that are convenient and easy to prepare while also offering great taste and health benefits.

In fact, 40 percent of American consumers said shorter cooking times are especially important when buying grocery items such as rice, grains and pasta, according to research from Statista, and 83 percent said taste is an important factor when purchasing food.

Ready in 10 minutes with flavor infused in every grain, Uncle Ben's Flavor Infusions rice is ideal for those looking for quick and healthy meal options. With its one-step cooking process, it makes it easy for families to cook with their kids and quickly get dinner on the table. The re-sealable pouches ensure freshness for multiple uses, and any of the five flavors can be combined with fresh vegetables, proteins and herbs for a simple meal that's ready in less than 20 minutes.

Simple recipe options using Flavor Infusions, such as Coconut Shrimp on Garlic-Butter Rice and Easy Thai Chicken Satay and Rice Salad, are quick meals the entire family can enjoy, even when short on time. Find more meal ideas at UncleBens.com.

COCONUT SHRIMP ON GARLIC-BUTTER RICE

Servings: 4-6

- 4 cups baby spinach leaves (or favorite greens)
- 1½ cups cubed cooked chicken
- 1 cup broccoli slaw (or cole slaw)
- 1 cup sliced red peppers
- ½ cup sliced or slivered almonds, toasted
- ½ cup sliced red onion
- ⅓ cup prepared Balsamic dressing (or favorite Italian style dressing)

In large bowl toss together all ingredients. Refrigerate leftovers.

Coconut Shrimp With Garlic and Butter Rice

Coconut Shrimp on Garlic-Butter Rice

Makes 4 to 6 servings

- 1 can (13.6 ounces) unsweetened coconut milk

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1-2 tablespoons red chili paste, to taste
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1 teaspoon sweet paprika
- 1 cup Uncle Ben's Flavor Infusions Garlic & Butter Flavored Rice
- 1 pound shrimp, peeled and deveined

In 10-inch skillet, stir together coconut milk, chicken broth, chili paste, coriander and paprika.

Add rice and bring to boil; cover, reduce heat to low and cook 10 minutes. Stir in shrimp and cook 2-3 minutes, or until shrimp just turn pink.

EASY THAI CHICKEN SATAY AND RICE SALAD

Servings: 4-6

Dressing:

- ¼ cup canned, unsweetened coconut milk
- ¼ cup creamy peanut butter
- 1 tablespoon rice wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons red curry paste
- ⅛ teaspoon ground cayenne pepper
- 1-2 tablespoons hot water

Salad:

- 1 cup Uncle Ben's Flavor Infusions Roasted Chicken
- 1½ cups shredded rotisserie chicken
- 1 cup shredded carrots
- 1 cup sliced pea pods
- 1 cup sliced red pepper
- 1 avocado, pitted and sliced

- 4-6 red radishes, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons chopped peanuts
- 2 tablespoons chopped green onions

To make dressing:

In small glass bowl, stir together coconut milk, peanut butter, rice wine vinegar, soy sauce, red curry paste, cayenne pepper and hot water; set aside.

Cook rice according to package instructions. Makes about 3½ cups.

In center of individual plates, place about 1 cup rice.

Arrange chicken, carrots, pea pods, red pepper, avocado, radishes, peanuts and green onions around rice then drizzle with dressing.

The writer-actor-directors could hit the Emmy jackpot

TV's comedy auteurs

Donald Glover portrays Earnest Marks in the comedy "Atlanta." Glover, Aziz Ansari and Issa Rae are among those who star in shows they also created or co-created, write and sometimes even direct. In return, they could reap Emmy nominations in a number of categories. The nominations will be announced Thursday. The Emmy Awards ceremony is set to air Sept. 17 on CBS.

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES

When Emmy Award nominations are announced Thursday, multiple champagne toasts may be in order for a multitasking troupe of sitcom stars.

Aziz Ansari, Donald Glover and Issa Rae are among those who lead shows they also created or co-created, write and sometimes even direct, and who could reap a welcome embarrassment of Emmy riches.

They are TV's comedy auteurs, with people of color and women well-represented in their top ranks. While it took the industry decades and new platforms like streaming to give them opportunities, the TV academy isn't wasting time in granting deserved recognition.

As with its big-screen sibling, the Oscars, the Emmys are under pressure to give diversity its due, said Tom O'Neil, author of "The Emmys" and editor of Gold Derby, an awards handicapping website.

"The Emmys need to demonstrate that they're relevant in a modern, rainbow-spanned world," O'Neil said. "If they fail, then liberal Hollywood looks like all talk, no sincere action."

"Master of None" is the brainchild of Ansari, the South Carolina-born son of immigrants from India, and Alan Yang, his Asian-American creative partner. Glover's "Atlanta" and Rae's "Insecure" reflect their perspectives as African-Americans.

Netflix's sophomore "Master of None" already boasts a 2016 Emmy for Ansari and Yang for best writing, as well as nods that year for best comedy series and for Ansari as actor and director.

FX's "Atlanta" and HBO's "Insecure" are in their first year of competition, with Glover already the winner of a Golden Globe in January for best comedy actor and Rae earning a Globes nomination as best actress.

The matriarch of this expanding auteur family, Lena Dunham's "Girls," is in the running for its sixth and final season on HBO.

The Emmy Awards are set to air Sept. 17 on CBS with host Stephen Colbert.

"Definitely, 'Girls' was really influential," said Yang. "When was the last time a female creator in her mid-20s got to make her own HBO show? That doesn't happen. You might have a 25-year-old star, but to have that person also be creator and director and writer, it showed it could work."

While the series was pivotal for the multi-talented Dunham and other women hoping to follow her, it drew fire for its all-white lead cast. Ethnicity remains TV's bigger hurdle, as it has from the medium's early days.

Getting Ansari cast in "Master of None" wasn't an issue, Yang said,

Aziz Ansari in a scene from, "Master of None."

given his credentials as a writer, a stand-up comedian and an actor on TV sitcoms, including "Scrubs" and "Parks & Recreation."

Put his experience together with that of Yang, an executive producer on shows including "Parks & Recreation," and "Master" proved to be "one of the easier sells," he said.

The current welcome mat for diversity was the result, first, of lobbying by civil rights group dismayed by the predominantly white casts on broadcast networks, which now boast inclusive shows such as ABC's sitcom "black-ish" and NBC's drama "This is Us," both Emmy front-runners.

But it took the expansion of cable and streaming to give more opportunities to more unique voices. Among them: Comedy Central's "Broad City" from Ilana Glazer and Abbi Jacobson; Tig Notaro's "One Mississippi" and Phoebe Waller-Bridge's "Fleabag," both on Amazon.

Post photos after vacation

My wife and I went on vacation last week.

If you follow me on social media, you wouldn't know it.

We didn't post vacation status updates with pictures or videos. We didn't provide any indication of our location. We didn't announce dates and times of our departure or return.

Sounds like a lackluster vacation, right?

Staying true to advice offered in previous columns, we kept frequent updates of our escapades off social media for one reason: safety.

Adam Earnhardt

This is not to suggest our travel plans were secret. Other people knew we were gone. Our kids stayed with family. Our neighbors collected the mail and cared for the Earnhardt cats.

It's simple advice, but difficult for some to follow, especially those who feel the urge to post every moment (e.g., me).

Don't post those amazing vacation pictures and videos until you're home. Save them for after the trip.

Consider this: you probably take about a dozen shots of the same selfie or group photo. Take that extra time you're not using to post updates to delete the bad shots and whittle down your collection to only the best pictures.

If you have videos, use this time to edit them to only include the content you want to keep and share.

Here are some additional tips we've picked up over the years to keep our family safe while we're on vacation.

1. Keep posting to social media. This might sound counterintuitive to everything I've just suggested you should not do while on social media. However, if you're a prolific social media user and you suddenly stop posting updates, your friends and followers (and those who mean to do you harm) may wonder why.

If memes are your thing, have a few ready to post while you're sitting by the pool. While scrolling through your feed, show some love by liking and sharing posts.

2. Turn off location services. This was my downfall a few years ago on a trip to Chicago. I was making frequent status updates from my phone, but I forgot to turn off location services. Facebook assumed I wanted everyone to know where I was.

Location services are typically only available when you're posting from a mobile device. To turn on location services for an app like Facebook, you must turn on location services (GPS) for your phone, and then location access for the app.

There's a different process for turning the services off and on depending on your operating system.

On Android devices, tap settings, location and location services. Older Android devices (5.1.1 and earlier) require turning off location services by scrolling through your apps.

On iOS devices, tap settings, privacy, and location services. For older iOS versions (8.0+), go to settings, privacy, and location services. Scroll through your list until you find the app you need.

Dear Annie

Reader can't eat just one piece

Dear Annie: I love chocolates, especially when they are in a box from a candy store or pharmacy. The problem is that once I start eating them, I can't stop!

Most people seem to be able to eat one or two and then stop. Very often, if a box of chocolates is brought out in the coffee room where I work, I have to walk right past them because if I start, I'll eat the whole box. I like all of them and haven't figured out how to take one or two and then back off.

Do you have any suggestions?

AFRAID TO START

Dear Afraid to Start: Too much of one good thing can lead to a slew of bad things – in this case, bellyaches, cavities and extra pounds.

When you're full, it's easier to pass up junk food. So try to fill up on healthful snacks throughout the day – such as celery, cucumbers, carrots and apple slices – and drink lots of water. When you do decide to indulge in chocolates, challenge yourself. Take two pieces out of the box. Put the box away. Savor each bite of your two pieces. And then ... brush your teeth! Your dentist will appreciate it, and the clean, minty taste in your mouth will make it easier to stop. Remind yourself that you will feel better the next day.

Dear Annie: Not long ago, a relative died and left me a set of rental properties. In one of the houses, there was a family, "the Andersons," who had been renting that house for more than 30 years. My relative's will specified that three members of the Anderson family – the parents and one of the children – were to each receive $1,000 when the estate was settled.

Because Mr. Anderson was dying of kidney cancer, two days after my relative's funeral, I paid this family out of my own funds. I knew that it would take a while for the estate to settle, and I thought I should give him the chance to enjoy the money while he still could.

Because of various reasons – including drug trafficking on the premises – I have to sell the properties. But now the Andersons are accusing me of throwing them out of their home, which they regard as theirs; after all, they have been paying rent for more than 30 years. Whenever I visit the properties to check on them, the Andersons call the police on me. They will no longer pay rent, and they are discussing filing a lawsuit against me for attempting to steal their family home.

I'm not sure why I'm the bad guy in all of this. The will clearly stipulates that the property is mine. As for the money, all I wanted was for a dying man to have a few moments of pleasure. What did I do that is so bad?

"SLUMLORD"

Dear "Slumlord": Every story has two sides, and when it comes to legal matters, there are surely multiple narratives that could be spun for various reasons. I know that your heart was in the right place when you paid Mr. Anderson out of your own pocket. Unfortunately, what feels good to do may not be formally congruent with the laws of your state. To avoid unnecessary headaches and heartache, it might be wisest to do things via the court through probate administration and any relevant housing court assistance.

What ingredient makes soft cookies?

Dear Heloise: What is the ingredient that makes the difference between soft and crisp cookies?

KATHLEEN H.,
Camp Hill, Pa.

Kathleen, high moisture does, as well as baking time, and the temperature must be adjusted to retain moisture. Binding the water in butter, eggs and brown sugar (which contains molasses, which is 10 percent water) with flour slows its evaporation. There's also a little more flour in a soft cookie. Volume also helps cookies stay moist. A large cookie rather than a small spoon-drop cookie usually will be softer. They're baked for shorter time periods at a higher temperature.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I cook two

scrambled eggs in a very small skillet to preserve the shape and size. I turn them once to cook on both sides, then I stack them on a saucer, cover and refrigerate. When ready to serve, I warm them in the microwave on half power and top with diced fresh tomatoes, grated cheese or precooked bacon. It works well and saves time.

LANA D., Taylorsville, N.C.

Lana, now that's a clever way to get breakfast in the morning!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: To lose weight and not be uncomfortable doing so, I've been doing the following:

◆ When filling my plate with high-calorie foods, I say, "A little less rather than a little more."

◆ To continue filling my plate with vegetables and low-calorie items, I say, "A little more rather than a little less."

It's a slow process, but it's been working for me.

TERRY S., Danville, Ky.

Dear Heloise: My boyfriend loves good coffee, and I'd like to serve him some creative coffees, except that I'm a total klutz in the kitchen. Do you have any ideas or recipes on how to make plain coffee a little more interesting? Please, nothing complicated or where I have to go buy a fancy machine.

JOAN E., Maplewood, Minn.

Joan, I have several recipes, but one of my personal favorites is Mocha Coffee:

- 1/2 cup instant coffee granules
- 1/2 cup sugar (or equivalent measure using a sugar substitute)
- 1 cup powdered milk or powdered creamer (non-fat creamer also is OK to use)
- 2 tablespoons cocoa powder

Mix the ingredients together and store in a labeled container. Just mix with hot water when ready to use.

If you like this recipe, I have several more you can try in my Flavored Coffees and Teas pamphlet. Just go to my website, www.Heloise.com, to or- der one, or send a stamped (70 cents), self-addressed, business-size envelope, along with $3, to Heloise/ Coffees & Teas, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. There are few things more enjoyable than sipping a warm cup of coffee or tea with friends. It just makes life more enjoyable.

Heloise

Dear Readers: Freezing does not kill bacteria; it only stops their growth. The only thing that will kill bacteria and help to prevent food poisoning is cooking food at high-enough temperatures.

Sorority members walk to raise funds

Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, Epsilon Mu Omega chapter, walked Wick Park recently to encourage people to support Alzheimer's Longest Day Awareness and donation drive. Thousands of Longest Day tributes take place either by doing something the Alzheimer's patient loves or something special in their honor. It could be something as simple as a donation, visiting a person with Alzheimer's, having a fundraiser or supporting a caregiver of someone with Alzheimer's. After You Cut The Cake... (330)747-1471
Let Us Know! Call The Vindicator & ANNOUNCE YOUR WEDDING!!

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Happy Birthday! In The Next Year: You have healed yourself and will now assist others in feeling better and functioning at a higher level. You'll spend work hours wisely and be paid well for your efficiency. The financial trend will help you to become more comfortable. Improved communication makes new relationships possible. Capricorn and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 14, 30, 9, 28 and 25.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: After a lifetime of sharing his enthusiasm for healthy living and inspiring literally millions of lost pounds from his devoted following, caring Cancer Richard Simmons has decided to retire from the public eye. The asteroid Chiron, associated with healing and nutrition, is aligned with Simmons' compassionate sun to magnify his therapeutic gift, which he will now, quite deservedly, turn on himself.

♈ARIES (March 21-April 19). Be patient enough to do what it takes to solve a problem once and for all. The first answer you come up with may not be the best. Go deeper. Ask, "What else? How else?"

♉TAURUS (April 20-May 20). People want to share with you. Show-and-tell time will start out interesting. Brevity is the way to keep it that way. Ward against over-sharing and stick to the safe topics.

♊GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Life won't provide you with incentives, but you're so creative that you can come up with some pretty awesome ones when you're at a loss. Keep the momentum up today: Know what you're looking forward to and envision the prize.

♋CANCER (June 22-22). Most children don't think so, but life really is better with fewer sweets, less screen time and more fresh air. You'll tap into your grown-up instincts and feel wonderful for the effort.

♌LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Long-term thinking isn't always so fun, and thinking only of the moment is foolish. There's a sweet spot in the middle of short- and long-term thinking that will be wonderfully accommodating to your plans.

♍VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your incredible gift of adaptability will kick in today. You'll stretch, flex and grow yourself in order to meet the new situation. Your lack of ego is what makes this possible.

♎LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Gather information. Get clarity on all communication. You are mighty intuitive now, but you'll learn more by asking than by assuming you already have the answers.

♏SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). If you're constantly standing up for yourself around a certain person, it's a red flag. Don't ignore the signal that a person doesn't accept and support you as you are.

♐SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Start making plans for the upcoming event. It's a lucky time to free-associate about how you want this to go. Gather inspiration and ideas. Talk to the ones who have done it before.

♑CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll listen to different philosophies, some of which will be easier to relate to than others. Your open mind will hold some of this information for later when it better applies.

♒AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your active mind may also become restless tonight. Just remember that sleep is an important part of any mammal's life. Instead of lying awake with worry, outline a plan.

♓PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Getting back to basics is a very personal process, since what is "basic" to you is not even in the realm for someone else. Honor your own essentials regardless of whether the others understand what you need.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: "I'm a Pisces and a working mother of a 2-year-old boy. I'm going through a lot of guilt and remorse over my choice to work outside the home. My son, a Sagittarius, likes his caretaker at home so much and always is happy to see her in the morning. Then when I get home he doesn't even pay attention to me. He's usually happily playing with his toys and isn't interested in letting me hold him until much later in the evening. In short, I think he likes his nanny, an Aries, more than he likes me." There is no good that will come from indulging in guilty, remorseful feelings. They only chip away at your self-esteem and make you see natural occurrences of life as "problems." So stop feeling bad and start feeling great about yourself, because you wisely chose to introduce your son to someone he loves and feels comfortable and happy around. All children need to explore their independence during playtime, and Sagittarian children will be even more independent and adventurous than most. Make sure that you have your own play-time schedule with your son, and let the guilt go. There's no reason to feel anything but positive about your excellent choices.

ODDLY ENOUGH

Escaped elephant strolls through neighborhood

BARABOO, WIS.
The pachyderm was a startling sight for residents of one small Wisconsin neighborhood.
A full-grown elephant sauntered through Baraboo on June 30 on a brief walk of freedom. The mammoth creature more suited for the 'big top' clashed with the quiet residential neighborhood.
Law-enforcement officers quickly got in touch with the nearby Circus World Museum, home to the wandering pachyderm. A trainer arrived and led the elephant back to the circus complex.
Circus World spokesman Dave Saloutos says the elephant, named Kelly, was freed by her pachyderm partner, Isla, who used her trunk to disengage a restraint.

Saloutos says Kelly lumbered across the shallow Baraboo River and wandered into a neighboring backyard where she unlatched a gate and munched on some marigolds during her couple hours of freedom.

Officers say noise issue can slide, then jump on water slide

ASHEVILLE, N.C.
Two North Carolina police officers who investigated a noise complaint decided to let it slide – and then they slid down the street along with neighbors who were enjoying a makeshift water slide.
The Asheville officers got national media attention, including a nod from Good Morning America, after their trips down the slippery slide were captured on video and shared by the department.
Police spokeswoman Christina Hallingse said the officers were responding to a noise complaint recently when they arrived at the holiday block party. Hallingse said the noise of children playing turned out to be at an acceptable level, so the officers issued no citations.

They also determined the slide laid out along the street allowed cars to pass, so they joined in the fun.

Bedbugs found in South Carolina fire station again

CHARLESTON, S.C.
The bedbugs are back at a South Carolina fire station one month after an outbreak at four stations.
The Charleston Fire Department said in a news release that bedbugs have been found at one of the stations that had problems earlier this year.
Firefighters moved to another station about 3 miles away.
