LAKE MILTON

The centennial of the dam that created Lake Milton, a well-known recreational attraction for generations of northeast Ohio residents, will be observed this week by the local historical society.

Society will commemorate the occasion during a 10:30 a.m. Saturday ceremony at the Lake Milton State Park Beach and Amphitheatre.

That event, located off display. A party at the Lake Grandview Avenue, will feature Milton Amphitheater will take remarks by local dignitaries including Youngstown Mayor John McNally, a performance by the Jackson-Milton High School Band and a parade of pleasure boats that will include some antique boats.

The Lake Milton Historical will be a 12-foot scale replica of the Elizabeth of Craig Beach, a 40-foot tour boat that operated on the 1,685-acre lake from the 1920s to the 1950s.

Antique cars also will be on place from 5 to 11 p.m.

Construction of the dam along the Mahoning River began in 1913, and the lake behind it was filled by the spring rains of 1917.

The 10 billion-gallon lake On display at that celebration was created to increase the industrial water supply for Youngstown, but quickly became a major regional recreational asset.

Cruze gets 5 stars from feds, kudos from Power

LORDSTOWN

The Chevrolet Cruze, manufactured at the General Motors Lordstown Complex, is judged one of the safest vehicles on the road and rates fifth among all small cars in performance, execution and layout in new honors from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and J.D. Power.

In a recent special-edition company newsletter, GM Lordstown reported the NHTSA gave the Cruze a 5-Star safety rating, the best available.

The NHTSA's safety rating program evaluates how vehicles perform in crash tests involving frontal, side and roll-over testing, the types of traffic accidents most common on America's roads.

In the evaluation process, more stars mean safer cars.

"This is more great news for our Cruze. The consumer information label affixed to the left rear window of Cruze will soon change from the current 4-Star

TRUMP VOWS TO RETURN THOUSANDS OF LOST JOBS TO YOUNGSTOWN

By DAVID SKOLNICK and KALEA HALL news@vindy.com

PEAKING TO A CROWD OF about 7,000 at a Covelli Centre rally last week, President Donald Trump promised the Youngstown area would return to its steel-mill glory

Trump said Tuesday: "I rode through your beautiful roads coming up from the airport, and I was looking at some of VIDEO tnose big, once increaible jobproducing factories, and my wife, Melania, said, 'What happened?' I said, 'Those jobs have

"They're all coming back. They're all coming back. Don't move. Don't sell your house. ... Do not sell it. We're going to get those values up. We're going to get those jobs coming back, and we're going to fill up those factories or rip them down and build brand new ones. It's going to happen.'

How realistic is it for the Mahoning Valley, which has lost about 35,000 primary metal jobs in the past 40 years, to have all of them return?

Not very, according to interviews conducted by The Vindicator with manufacturing, business, government and steelunion officials.

THE COLLAPSE

September will mark 40 years since the beginning of the end of Youngstown's steel titan days. On Sept. 19, 1977, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. announced it would close its Campbell Works, leaving about 5,000 workers without jobs. Then the company's Brier Hill location shuttered, and more area steel plants followed

Gene Shonce is a program supervisor for Community Corrections Association.

Green Gene – changing lots and lives

There are two things about Gene Shonce that Sharon Letson of Youngstown CityScape can guarantee when she calls him about a downtown need.

"I always know that when I call, it is going to be 'No.' But I know before I get off the phone, he will get to 'Yes.' And that next day, it will get done," she Letson and Shonce are two of the three-person team that, by job and by passion, are downtown Youngstown's beautification caretakers. The third person is John Lapin of Ohio One Corp. – owners of most office sites on the east side of downtown.

The three of them ensure downtown grass, plants, flowers, pots, shrubs and more look as special as they do. It is Sharon and John out front on the outreach. and the funding, and the coloring, and the corporate partnering.

And Gene? He just goes to work.

Gene is a program supervisor for Community Corrections Association - they of the many buildings and green spaces along Market Street dotted with white signs that tout "The CCA." Gene's core task with CCA is to manage 17 lots in and around downtown – some owned by CCA; others contracted to them.

If you're an observer of downtown, Gene is easy to spot: a red pickup truck with a trailer of lawn gear are affixed to him; he sports slicked-back hair that sits atop a neon green T-shirt and blue jeans.

But what stands out most about Gene is his four-man

They are all law offenders of some degree. Some are serving small time at CCA. Some have finished hard time at another facility and are transitioning back to society after a few months with CCA. When you drive by, they often look the part: Tattooed everywhere, hard-looking, tough stares, etc.

Those guys are his unofficial job ... or maybe his official one.

They're probably why he's been on the job 15 more years than the couple of years he suggested when Rick Billak hired him in 2000. Those men, at almost 78 years old, might be why the fiercely loyal Gene is not ready to call it

"I thank these guys every night. And I thank the good Lord every night for these guys," said Gene a manager at BFI for 38 years, a former Austintown Township trustee, and now mentor to those who went wrong at some point.

He recalls one event that might best demonstrate his loyalty to the guys.

Over by city hall one day, this guy came up to the truck and said 'Get your convicts back to work,' Gene said.

Gene explained to the guy that they are not convicts; they are clients of CCA and ... The guy cut 'He said to me 'You heard me. Get the convicts to work.' I then opened my truck door, and he took off. I was going to get him and explain to him a little better," Gene said.

Travis Culler, Salem, is one of Gene's four crew guys now. Gene will have 70 such guys in a year. Travis said what makes Gene special is that he does not judge the men. "He gets to know you. He doesn't just judge you for the reasons that you are in here. He gets to know you and gives you the best advice he can give you on

Gene knows the guys did wrong in life. Getting to a point where he can talk to them is a process. "I'm trying to get guys on the right track - get them away from the bad stuff. I try to turn around the negative tone," Gene said. "I don't judge; I don't ask. When they unload to me about their life and they want my advice, then I get into their life. And I don't say 'You should do this.' I try to say that they should 'Try this.''

That's the side that many people don't get to see in

"His first appearance does not match who he is,' said Dave Stillwagon, CCA executive director. "He comes off tough - but he is a softv.

"He wants to see the

Pedestrian hit HOWLAND

A 70-year-old Burghill woman was seriously injured while walking across East Market Street just east of Brewster Drive at about 1 p.m. Saturday. The Ohio State Highway Patrol Warren Post said the woman, who was transported to St. Elizabeth Youngstown Hospital, was struck by a vehicle traveling west on Market as she crossed from the south side. The driver, 58, of McDonald, was not injured. The OSHP noted a cross-walk was nearby, but the pedestrian was not in it. No charges were immediately filed. Howland police and fire departments responded.

Gay Pride Festival marks ninth year

YOUNGSTOWN Maj. Stephen Snyder-Hill likely will never forget the day in September 2011 during a Republican presidential debate when he became a civil-rights activist after having posed a controversial question to then-2012 presidential hopeful Rick Santorum.

"That was a pivotal moment for the LGBT community," recalled Snyder-Hill, who was booed after asking Santorum if he would circumvent progress that had been made for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender soldiers serving in the mili-

Nevertheless, the negative response galvanized his desire to fight on behalf of gay people's rights, Snyder-Hill

The question came shortly after President Barack Obama repealed the 1993 "don't ask, don't tell" policy instituted by the Clinton administration, under which gay service personnel were permitted to stay in the military if they refrained from openly declaring their sexual orientation. Many people, however, felt the law was dis-

Snyder-Hill, who lives in the Columbus area, began his Army career in 1988 and served in Operation Desert Storm. He shared part of his story with many people who came to Saturday's ninth annual Pride Youngstown Festival along Federal Street, downtown.

Preceding the festivities was a colorful parade that began in the 300 block of West Federal Street.

Enlisting in the Army bolstered Snyder-Hill's belief in the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness as outlined in the Declaration of Independence. That document, he said, does not exclude those in the LGBT community.

For his service, which included a deployment to Iraq in 2010, Snyder-Hill won several awards, including the Meritorious Service Medal. He also wrote about his experiences and struggles of being gay in his book, "Soldier of Change: From the Closet to the Forefront of the Gay Rights Movement."

Accompanying Snyder-Hill at the fest was his husband, Joshua Snyder-Hill, who said it's important for LGBT people to be proud of who they are, because that criminatory against gay and can positively influence

"It's just so important we stay together and fight and never back down from anyone," Bortner said. Echoing that theme was Atty. Kim Akins, a Pride Youngstown founder who, during a brief presentation, accused Trump of "declaring war on this community." Also chilling, she said, is the talk about maybe as to what happened," said Donna DeBlasio, professor of history at Youngstown State University. "Everyone blamed everyone

The factors that contributed to the hit on Youngstown's biggest industry included not advancing with technology, trade and less steel being used. It was a steady downfall that hit hard.

"You had all kinds of other ancillary industries that were affected," DeBlasio said. "I think people were just shocked. It was devastating.'

What survived are companies that als for various industries, but these task companies aren't the mega-plants that

Instead of employing thousands, they employ hundreds.

Industry today, as the Mahoning Valley Manufacturers' Coalition points out, is not what it was back then: It's cleaner, it's safer and more efficient. "The manufacturers who exist here today are the ones who survived the downturn," said Jessica Borza, executive director of the MVMC. "They are diversified, healthy, strong companies. They are in a position to grow.'

The MVMC's mission is to grow the area workforce, so manufacturers can stay competitive in a global economy. Area manufacturers started the coalition six years ago. They became concerned about the lack of the skilled workforce needed to keep them going.

"Our whole purpose is to help manufacturers stay strong and grow, and there's a lot of work to that," Borza said. "We are hitting it from every angle. We feel like we have impacted a number of education and training programs to be more in line with what the manufacturers [need]."

A NEW ECONOMY

The Mahoning Valley is still a goods-producer, but it has become a service-based and more knowledge-intensive economy.

"That means that we require skills and education for the jobs that we have," said Mekael

Teshome, PNC Bank economist. Since the 1970s, both the technology used in manufacturing and the workforce have changed. 'We can definitely create more of those jobs, but we can't rewind the clock and become an economy where a majority of people are making things," Teshome said. "The technology doesn't allow for this massive creation.'

The workforce today is mismatched for the job requirements, and some workers have completely backed out of the workforce. Teshome noted that nationwide there are about 6 million jobs available and there are 7 million unemployed.

Also, the nature of manufacturing has changed. Not as many workers are needed to do the job today as were needed back in the 1970s.

THIS IS THE TIME WHERE WE NEED SUBSTANCE – NOT WORDS – THAT WE HAVE HEARD OVER AND OVER AGAIN."

Bob Messaros, president/CEO Commercial Metal Forming

"I think we are moving in a good direction," Teshome said, "I do believe we will get better if we are able to adapt to the new realities ...we can still make things, but what that looks like is going to be different."

BRINGING BACK

Bringing back the thousands of jobs specialize in making metal materi- lost in the Valley wouldn't be an easy

Trump "gives the feeling that we can turn the light switch and reverse this ... the truth is that this is going to be a process," said Jose Arroyo, business representative for the United Steel Workers.

Arroyo is a third-generation steelworker who now represents workers at plants throughout the Valley during contract negotiations.

Though Arroyo believes there's opportunity to bring more manufacturing jobs to the area, he says the days of plants with thousands of workers have passed. "I don't believe that it can happen because we are in a capitalist system," Arroyo said. It would take investors willing to invest millions.

"Even though it's no secret that the steelworkers endorsed Hillary Clinton, Trump is the elected president, and we are willing to work with him to bring jobs back," Arroyo said.

Arroyo says the way to bring back jobs is to have an infrastructure bill that would support U.S. companies and to have trade reform that would even the playing field between American and foreign companies.

Trade has devastated the steel industry," Arroyo said. "The trade policy has to be crafted very carefully to make sure we aren't causing manufacturing jobs to go overseas."

Bob Messaros, president and chief executive officer of local tank-head producer Commercial Metal Forming, would like to know exactly what Trump's plan is to bring back the lost jobs.

This is the time where we need substance-not words-that we have heard over and over again," Messaros said.

Messaros, who has worked in steel for 17 years, doesn't see the massive steel mills coming back. The area no longer has the workforce to support massive plants, Messaros said.

"You have mini-mills," he said of today's plants. "Instead of being all things to all people they have carved out niches.'

CHANGING TIMES

U.S. Rep. Tim Ryan of Howland, D-13th, said all you have to do is look at Vallourec Star, one of the few steel success stories in the area that made one of the largest investments in the Valley, opening a second plant in Youngstown about five years ago.

"The fact we have a $1 billion steel mill and about 600 people that work there illustrates how disingenuous it is to say he'll get all of those jobs back," said Ryan. "We've had a lot of people tell us over the past 30, 40 years that they'll wave a magic wand and get the steel mills back. With automation, new mills come with a very, very small number of steel

He added: "Fifty, 60, 70 years ago, if Vallourec opened up, there would be 20,000 people working there. There are 600 there today."

The Valley has diversified over the vears with the development of hightech manufacturing, Ryan said.

"It's the [Youngstown Business] Incubator, additive manufacturing and it's steel mills if you can get them," he said. "You can't rely on just one industry. We saw what happened with steel. That's why we're bringing back federal money for additive manufacturing so our area can become a hub. It's one shovel at a time with economic development." Youngstown Finance Director David Bozanich also pointed to the increase in automation as a reason the steel industry cannot employ tens of thousands of area workers.

"The capital investment dynamics of the steel industry have changed significantly over the past 30 years," he said. 'To build a plant that would employ what an old mill had would take about $7.5 billion. That's seven-and-a-half Vallourecs.'

Thomas Humphries, Youngstown/

Warren Regional Chamber's president and chief executive officer, said with the economic growth the nation has seen in the first six months of Trump's presidency, "we have reason to be more optimistic now than we have in the past 15 years" that manufacturing jobs can return to the Valley. The area's primary metals industries, particularly aluminum extrusion, are growing, he said. But Humphries acknowledges that bringing back all lost steel jobs from the past 40 years is a major challenge because of automation. "That's had the greatest impact" on manufacturing jobs along with companies moving offshore, he said. When asked about Trump's statement in Youngstown, U.S. Sen. Rob Portman, a Republican from the Cincinnati area, said: "We are bringing back steel jobs to Ohio" and will bring back more through a combination of fair-trade policies, regulatory relief, worker retraining and an infrastructure investment program.

"Yeah, we can bring back more steel jobs to Ohio," Portman said without saving how many. U.S. Sen. Sherrod Brown, a Cleveland

Democrat, said he simply doesn't believe anything Trump promises, including somehow revitalizing the steel industry.

"I don't see anything he's done to live up to [his] promises," Brown said.

residents make it. They're humans like us. At one time, they made a mistake. They're just trying to right that wrong.'

Stillwagon took over a few years ago from CCA founder Billak, who opened the facility in 1974. It was not a popular launch back then due to having a halfway house on a main street such as Market. Now, CCA is Market Street. It has removed 45 blighted structures and developed green space on the city's main road. More than 200 people call CCA home at any one time – cycling in for a few months of programs such as anger management, job skills, substance abuse and more. About 600 people will cycle in on any given year from all over the region and country. All have a destination address in these three counties. A staff of 120 operates in seven buildings with an annual budget of

$7.2 million. "We're not only working to rehabilitate offenders. We're also working to reshape the community. The property work started in 1997 just to target areas of blight around our Market Street campus."

Those two roles merge on the lots around downtown Youngstown and Gene's crew.

"Not only is Gene seen as a supervisor, he's seen as helping them, Stillwagon said. "There's a sense of pride when you can achieve an objective together. He's able to gain their respect in that way."

Adam Tyson of Salem is on Gene's current crew. Inside CCA, guys told him working with Gene is not fun.

"I love being around Gene. People who don't want to be who don't want to work."

Adam said even former guys celebrate Gene. At a stoplight on the day I met them, Adam said a guy pulled up next to their truck:

"Hey Mr. Gene, you remember me?"

Make no mistake, there is work, there are Gene expectations, and both are hard.

Gene's eves constantly roll around the site: watching the guys, the work, the public and his watch.

"What did I tell you," he laughed at me as we talked while the guys worked. "I said 20 minutes we have at the plaza and then we're out of here."

And just when you think his mind has settled into satisfaction, he'll bark: "Get that blower over there and hit that sidewalk.'

And on cue, at about 18 minutes, the men and their mowers and weed whackers made it back to the trailer, and it was on to the next job.

A signature Gene tool people talk about is his whistle. It's a he-man, lipsand-tongue whistle; no fingers for this guy. He doesn't use it a lot. He did for me but warned that the guys will stop for no reason and be confused.

He whistled; they stopped one even in the middle of Wood Street - right on cue.

"He's a man of his word," said Lapin of Ohio One. "If he says he's going to do it, he does it even more than what he says he'll do.

"He's extremely loyal to CCA and his guys – stands up for both of them all the time. And he's proud. He'll say 'Hey – go see the staircase, and see what my guys

I asked Lapin what downtown would look like without Gene and his crew.

"Oh boy ...," he said, in a around him are the ones tone suggesting he didn't want to think about it.

From that hard work comes pride. It's a lesson as old as time itself. And it's burned into one Gene Shonce.

"He is a proud man and wants his men to be proud of the work they do," said Letson. "These are men who are good people who have made wrong decisions. He instills that sense of pride in them, that they can do right. It just goes to the core of who he is."

I met Gene about a vear ago via a project I'm working on with the Boys and Girls Club of Youngstown.

We're trying to make over the Market Street area where the Red and White Store once sat. BGCY – which sits right behind that property – is partnered with CCA and a few others to make the project happen.

Gene and Stillwagon came in one day to review the project as the partnership was forming.

Gene – as is Gene – was tough on the idea - right on

The work, and the mess that the area was, and the items we wanted to build there, and the this, and the that. I thought a lot of things of him that day, and "optimist," "partner" and "cheer-leader" were not among them.

The next day, I got a call from the BGCY staff.

They said some man dropped off a drawing and said it was for me.

No name was on the drawing. It was hand-drawn, stick-figure layout of a ballfield, a basketball court, lights and more - the items we sought to build.

The sketch was Gene's. Right on cue.

She also called the president's proposed ban "an assault on all gay rights."

Attendees found plenty of merchandise for sale at the day-long festival, which included colorful jewelry, shirts, scented soaps, skincare products and items such as stun guns and batons for protection. Resources included information on reproductive rights.

In addition, members of the LGBT community who have suffered discrimination had an opportunity to share their stories, courtesy of Equality Ohio, a 12-yearold nonprofit organization that advocates for full equality for LGBT people.

"We're collecting these stories in the hope of showing lawmakers that discrimination happens in Ohio." explained Marshall Troxell, an intern with the organization. "We have heard from people who are LGBT having to seek multiple landlords ... who have heard the landlords say, 'I'm not comfortable with you living on my properties."

Equality Ohio also is pushing for passage of Ohio House Bill 160, which would ban discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations based on gender identity or sexual orientation, Troxell continued.

Also at Saturday's event were Jeff Bixby and Gretchen Heideloff of the Gay, Lesbian & Straight Education Network's Northeast Ohio chapter, which serves 23 counties in the region. GLSEN is a national nonprofit that strives to create safer schools, largely by ensuring all students in kindergarten through grade 12 are valued and respected, regardless of their sexual orientation or gender identity, said Bixby of Medina, a former teacher.

"Regardless of your sexual orientation, you need to be interested in this issue. All teachers need to be aware of these things in school," he said, adding that LGBT students are especially prone to bullying.

As the game grew in popularity and the jackpot increased, the bar had to take some extra measures to manage the event. There were times when part of Raccoon Road was shut down. The pub hired off-duty police officers for security.

Protecting your legacy with proven estate planning techniques

Advertorial commentary:

The Raw Truth: Long-Term Care Payment CRISIS

New free lunch seminar exposes how to protect assets and qualify for state and federal benefits to cover long-term care costs

Seven in 10 retirees need some form of assisted living. That's shocking, but even more extreme than that is this: A retired married couple's chances of one spouse needing some form of assisted living or nursing home care is 91%!

My name is Robert Hall and I founded Affinity Advisory Network with a very specific goal in mind. We work with Independent Attorneys to help people position their assets so that they can qualify for all state and federal benefits to cover nearly all of their long-term care bills.

Plus, if possible, we help to arrange an income they can never outlive while protecting their principle for their spouse or children.

The benefits are literally sitting there, but due to lack of a solid, safe, and secure plan, many people are simply denied. They end up having to pay 100% of the cost of their own long term care out of their pocket.

This quite literally forces all their money to go to this huge cost - as much as $6,000 per month - and takes of your life, but now that you it out of the hands of a spouse are retired, a completely difor children.

The false sense of security

So many people I meet think they have done their planning and that they are set. Then, it's discovered that some attorney along the way has recommended they get a revocable trust so that their estate avoids Probate. In the opinion of the attorneys we work with, in Ohio, a revocable trust is not neces- control to protect yourself, sary to avoid probate. Here is family, and lifestyle. what that means. If either the husband or wife dies and both No free report, free lunch names are on the deed, the house automatically avoids probate. If the IRA or 401k has the spouse as the beneficiary, that avoids probate. If spouse dies and the checking and savings accounts have the spouses name on it, then those avoid probate. And the vehicles avoid probate in Ohio by simply taking the death certificate to the BMV and it is transferred easily, avoiding probate.

So, in the end what did the revocable trust do? Nothing.

But it actually gets worse. When faced with entering an assisted living or nursing home facility, the facility will ask if you have a trust and according to the attorneys we work with, you will have to say yes. You must answer this way because you are likely the grantor and/ or trustee of your revocable trust. Because this is true, the on-one meeting at our offices. facility will simply tell you to Keep in mind that even at open up that trust and begin paying for your care using that money.

There is a better way. We have developed a way to literally protect up to 100% of your assets. We can do this in a way that allows you to answer "no" when asked if you own a trust. Then, you will meet the criteria for the federal and state benefits that can cover all of your long-term care costs. Except for a very small out of pocket expense based on income not millions for our clients. assets.

Plus, depending on your service to this great country, you may also qualify for up to $2,126 per month tax free

In the end, I have built Affinity Advisory Network to protect you and your family from the crazy rules and regulations that are set up to deny people benefits as often as possible. We help you get what you deserve so that you can protect and pass on what you have worked so hard for.

The right professional

In my opinion, it's sad. Many people go through their entire lives not knowing there are very safe, proven, and shockingly simply steps they can take to add significant protection against losing money, but they never ask the right questions. They rely on the wrong specialist. If you unfortunately had a brain injury, you would seek a neurologist, not a general M.D. The same is true when it comes to financial strategies.

They may have had the same financial "advisor" for the past 20 years and are afraid to change.

But, you must consider change. That advisor was the absolute right choice during your "accumulation phase" ferent set of asset protection strategies must be used. And, in our experience, there are no other professionals that know how to get the kind of results we do for our clients.

Our exclusive seminars make you aware of the options you have so you can avoid being taken advantage of by a system that feels like it's rigged against you. We give you the power and

Many professionals in this field offer you a "free report" or some other type of giveaway. I'm not going to do that. Instead, I'm simply going to invite you to the allnew free lunch seminar that we are presenting in cooperation with a local independent attorney.

It's free. There is no selling of any kind. No specific products or solutions will be mentioned. I do not allow it. We will simply be providing a very current, live-presentation on the current state of retirement and estate planning. Then, at the conclusion of the seminar, if you've heard information that sounds good to you and you want to know more about exactly what it would mean for you and your family, you'll have the chance to sign up for a onethat meeting, we will not ask for any personal information. No account numbers, no social security numbers, nothing like that. We will simply ask general questions to determine what solutions might be the best fit for your situation.

You are under no obligation at all. We simply feel very strongly that this is information that MUST be shared.

In the end, we have saved

Now, you're invited to one of our seminars to discover what this means for you and your family and we'll even buy you lunch.

New free lunch seminar exposes 6 secrets you must know in retirement

Local expert reveals safe, proven strategies that protect 100% of assets from estate recovery while maintaining qualification for all state and federal benefits that can completely cover the costs of long-term care

Readers invited to get free information during new live presentation on August 3rd at Cafe 422 Warren at noon

(Ohio) - "I'm going to pull the curtain back" said Robert Hall, president of Affinity Advisory Network, LLC. "I'm going to show you how surprisingly simple it is to put a plan together that fully protects 100% of your assets, allows you to maintain full control up to and beyond the grave, eliminate virtually all risk, and protects your family" he added. What follows is a list of the 6 secrets to creating a solid, safe, and secure retirement plan. When you attend the free lunch seminar, you'll learn more detail surrounding these secrets and more:

1. Eliminate risk: At 70 or older, there is no reason to be in a position where any of your investments could lose money. So, if you transition to a principle-protected retirement product with a return of up to 8%, it could be a stress-free way to eliminate risk and provide income. You'll get the majority of the upside gains without ever risking a loss. If the stock market takes a tumble - or even a nosedive you'll never lose anything.

2. Eliminate Social Security tax on benefits: Did you know that the government can tax up to 85% of your Social Security benefit check? We know how to restrict that so that you get much more of the check that is due to you.

3. Generate income you cannot outlive: Using a certain type of principle-protected investment, you can be certain that you will have income each and every month, no matter how long you live. And because it's 'Principle-protected" you will still have your base nestegg to eventually distribute to your children.

4. Learn from the local attorney the secret to protecting up to 100% of your assets from the 5-year look back and estate recovery: Here we discover that most people are NOT protected. They have taken the "advice" of their attorney and have purchased a "Revocable" trust thinking it will make certain their estate avoids probate. Ask the local attorney if a revocable trust is even needed to avoid probate. In fact, according to the attorneys we work with, having this kind of trust may give you a false sense of protection. When it comes time to enter a facility for long-term care, it normally provides no protection for your assets. You will have to spend what you have before you will qualify for any benefits from the state or federal government. We know how to stop this from happening. The attorneys normally use an Asset Preservation Trust. When done correctly, it can fully protect your home, your checking, savings, mutual funds, and nearly all your assets and then allow you to qualify for the combination benefits that can fully cover your long-term care. The key is, we know how to keep you in 100% control of your assets. It's safe, proven, and we're experts at it.

5. US Military Veterans can get tax-free money for life: As part of your income plan, if you served in a qualifying war and meet the criteria, you could receive up to $2,126 per month tax-free for life. This little known benefit is funded by the federal government with $5Billion each year and only about 2% of those eligible even apply for it. There are only 378 non-attorney VA Accredited Claims Agents in the country. Our office has access to 5 of them. To date, they have had over $7.1M paid to veterans who otherwise would have been denied this critical benefit.

6. Qualify for all state and federal combination benefits that can pay for 100% of any assisted living or nursing home facility: Did you know that 7 in 10 people will need some form of longterm care in their lifetime? That's 70%. While you may think that it won't happen to you, are you willing to take that chance? Think about the things you actually already buy insurance for that are far LESS likely to happen. For example, you have a 1 in 500 chance of an auto accident, yet you pay for car insurance every month. There is a 1 in 500 chance that your home will catch fire or be broken into, but you carry insurance for that as well. But for the one item that has the HIGHEST likelihood of actually happening, you need our solutions. See below to reserve your seats

ANN L. FRIEDMAN, 96

CAMP HILL, PA. - Ann L. Friedman, 96, formerly of Girard, passed away late Wednesday evening, July 26, 2017, at Holy Spirit Hospital in Pennsylvania, following a long and fulfilling life.

Ann was born May 20, 1921, in the small coal-mining town of Lilly, Pa., to immigrant parents from Austria-Hungary, the late Frank and Anna Oklanchak Lenhart. When her father died following the collapse of a mine when she was 14, Ann moved to New York City to work and to be near an

When she was 19, she married her husband, John Friedman, on Nov. 27, 1940, and shortly thereafter John served in the military in North Africa and Europe during World War II, earning four bronze stars. Ann was one of the "greatest generation" and also contributed to the war effort, building munitions at the Torpedo Factory in Alexandria, Va.

After the war, Ann and John moved to the Youngstown area. where the couple raised their three children.

Mrs. Friedman had a love of home crafts, including baking, sewing, crocheting and knitting, and she was a good gardener, especially good at growing tomatoes. There was always lots of delicious Slovak food in her home. and she tried to keep her cookie recipes a secret, though eventually they were figured out. Ann was sharp and funny and knew her own mind, and she had thriftiness down to an art.

She was a member of the former St. Casimir Church in Youngstown and of its Altar & Rosary Society. Ann was a devout Catholic, and some members of her family believe they may have heard her swear only once!

Outside the home, Ann worked at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown, and had also worked at Kmart for 12 years

Ann leaves three children, Patricia (Don) Shelley of Camp Hill, Robert Friedman of Colorado Springs, Colo., and John (Lorraine) Friedman of Canterbury, England; seven grandchildren, Erin, Scott, and Brett (Daniela) Shelley, Colleen Shelley (Don) Bruno, and Eric, Nicole, and Victoria Friedman; and four great-grandchildren, Julian and Luca Bruno. Tyler Lewis and Franchesscha Friedman.

Ann's husband of 47 years. John Friedman, passed away July 9, 1988. Besides her husband, five sisters, Sue Lenhart, Mary Young, Katie Farrell, Helen Mack, and Agnes "Diddy" Leap; and a brother, Joe "West" Lenhart, preceded her in death.

Family and friends may call from 10 to 11 a.m. on Monday, July 31, at Kinnick Funeral Home, 222 S. State St. in Girard, where funeral services will follow at 11 a.m.

Interment will take place at Belmont Park Cemetery in Liberty Township, where Ann will be laid to rest with her husband.

MARGARET ELIZABETH AIELLO, 94

YOUNGSTOWN - There will be a Mass of Christian Burial on Wednesday, Aug. 2, 2017, at noon at St. Christine Church, 3165 S. Schenley Ave. in Youngstown, with Father John Keehner officiating, for Margaret Elizabeth Aiello, 94, who passed away peacefully Friday afternoon, July 28, 2017, at Masternick Memorial Health Care Center in New Middletown, where she had been a patient for the last three years.

Margaret will always be remembered and loved by her family and friends.

She was born April 2, 1923, in Franklin, Pa., the daughter of Orrin F. and Edith Mae (McCall) Whittiken. Margaret was raised by her mother and stepfather Henry "Hank" Brostmeyer. Margaret graduated from Meadville High School, and after graduation, she relocated to the Youngstown area. She then enlisted in the U.S. Navy (W.A.V.E.S.) and was a proud veteran of World War II, where she was stationed in Seattle. Her duties were in communications as a teletype operator, and she was awarded the following decorations: the Good Conduct Medal and the American Campaign Victory Medal. After the war, she enrolled as the first W.A.V.E. in the Youngstown Naval Reserve Battalion.

Margaret was a proud homemaker and a founding member of St. Christine Church.

Margaret met her husband Nick 'Nicola" Aiello of Farrell, Pa., on a bus trip, traveling back from Seattle, while serving during World War II. They were married on Aug. 10. 1946, at St. Patrick Church in Youngstown, and he passed away Feb. 28, 1990.

She leaves her children, Nancy (James) Thayer of Apopka, Fla., Donna (Mark) Eusanio of Youngstown, Dennis (Johnnetta) Aiello of Niles, and Frank (Helen) Aiello of Boardman; her grandchildren, Margaret (Keith) Yauger of Warren. Julie (Tom) Ryser of Hubbard, Bradley J. (Paula) Thayer of Castle Rock, Colo., Steven W. Thayer of Apopka, Natalie J. Bovee of Apopka, Nicholas R. Eusanio and his fiancé. Rachel Nuzzo, of Columbiana, Jonathan (Brittny) Eusanio of Hampton, Va., Dominic Eusanio of Youngstown, Christina Eusanio of Erie, Pa., Nikki Cosgrove and fiance Brian Slaven of Niles, Gary M. Aiello and Gina V. Aiello of Boardman; and great-grandchildren Grace Ryser and Gillian Ryser of Hubbard, Nicholas Durig of Warren, Nicholas Bovee , Hudson Bovee, and Brii Ann Canavan, all of Apopka, Tiago Thayer of Castle Rock, Christian Ratel, Zackary Cosgrove and Jayden Cosgrove, all of Niles; and her daughter-in law, Darlene Aiello of Austintown: along with her childhood friend,

Besides her parents and husband, Margaret was preceded in death by a son, Nicholas "Nicky" Alan Aiello, who passed in 2004; and her brother, Charles F. Whittiken. Family and friends may pay their respects on Wednesday, Aug. 2, 2017, from 11 until 11:50 a.m. at St. Christine Church, 3165 S. Schenley Ave., Youngstown.

Burial will take place at Resurrection Cemetery in Austintown, where military honors will be provided by the great men and women of the U.S. Navy and the VFW Post 9571 of Ellsworth.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the professional care of the Rossi & Santucci Funeral Home, 4221 Market St. in Boardman (new location).

In lieu of flowers, material contribution may be made in Margaret's name to Masternick Memorial Health Care Center, C/O Activities Director, 5250 Windsor Way, New Middletown, OH 44442.

Margaret's family would like to express their heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to the entire staff of Masternick Memorial Health Care Center for all the exceptional care, along with providing a home for the last three years for their mother.

JEFFREY THOMAS BRADEN, 69

WARREN - Jeffrey Thomas Braden, 69, passed away at home Saturday, July 22, 2017, after a long and courageous battle with Lou Gehrig's Disease (ALS), surrounded by his loving family.

Jeffrey was born on July 25, 1947, in Greenville, Pa., to George and Stella Rose Braden.

Jeffrey spent most of his life in Newton Falls, and most recently, Warren and winters in their home in Naples, Fla.

Jeff was a graduate of Newton Falls High School. He earned an Associate Degree from Youngstown State University and a degree from NPAM as a Certified Purchasing Manager.

Jeffrey served in the U.S. Army from 1965 to 1967 and was honorably discharged.

He was employed at Sajar Plastics for many years and retired after 40 years from Venture Plastics as Materials Manager.

Jeff was an amazing athlete and enjoyed golf, bowling and baseball. He achieved four holesin-one, three 300 series and two 299 games while bowling, which few people knew as he was a humble man. He played for Newton Falls Merchants ASA District Slo-Pitch Baseball team that earned championships in 1971, 1972 and 1973. Jeff was an avid Cleveland Browns and Indians fan. He was a kind, generous and encouraging person to everyone he met and was very proud of his family. He had an infectious smile and a great sense of humor. To Jeff, every day was Friday, 75 degrees and sunny. As his illness progressed, he never complained and expressed, as he could, love and thanks to his family. Jeffrey was the beloved husband of Susan Braden, whom he married Aug. 27, 1982. He was the proud father of Renee (David) Hilditch of Erie, Pa. and Nicole (Shawn) Merz of Grove City. He was "Papa Jeff" to his five grandchildren, Braden, Brett, Lexi, Zachary and Mitchel; and was survived by brothers Allen (Mary Jo) Braden of Cortland and Thomas Braden of Warren; and sister Starla

(Todd) Gibson of Lordstown. He was preceded in death by his parents; brother Clark, fatherin-law Edward; and sister-in-law

Marion Groff. There will be no visitation and cremation has taken place.

All friends and family are invited to attend a memorial funeral Mass to be held at Blessed Sacrament Church, 3020 Reeves Road NE, in Warren at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 1. Immediately following Mass, a celebration of Jeffrey's life will be held at the Avalon Golf and Country Club, 9519 E. Market St. in Warren. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions in Jeff's name may be made to Dr. Stephen Selkirk, Spinal Cord Injury Center, 10701 E. Blvd., Room 6A-117, Attn: Fran McClellan, Cleveland, 0H 44106. Make checks payable to the The ALS Clinic, or to ALS Northeastern Ohio Chapter, 6155 Rockside Road, Suite 403, Independence, OH 44131, or donations can be made online at webnoh.alsa.org. The family would like to express a heartfelt thank you to the Louis Stokes Cleveland VA Medical Center, Spinal Cord Injury, Dr. Stephen Selkirk and his entire staff for the outstanding care they provided to Jeff throughout his journey. #### ANNE ADOVASIO, 89

GIRARD - Anne Adovasio, 89, passed away Friday evening, July 28, 2017, at Heritage Manor. following a brief illness.

Anne was born Sept. 14, 1927, in Youngstown, a daughter of the late John and Magdalen Melko, and was a lifelong area resident. Mrs. Adovasio dedicated her adult life to raising and caring for her family, and later worked for Dollar Bank for 10 years.

She was a member of St. Rose Church in Girard.

Anne loved to read, play bingo, and listen and dance to polka music. Her greatest joy came from the time she spent with her family, especially her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Her husband, Louis C. Adovasio, whom she married Oct. 20, 1951, passed away Dec. 28, 1999.

Mrs. Adovasio leaves to cherish her memory, eight children, Ellen Adovasio of Girard, William D. (Anna Marie) Adovasio of Hubbard, Mark (Rosemary Bruno) Adovasio of Austintown, Michael Adovasio of Girard, Louis J. Adovasio of Girard, Linda Adovasio of Niles, Susan Adovasio of Warren, and Patricia (Christopher) Streamo of Niles; two grandchildren, Laura (Jeremy) Elliott of Girard and William L. Adovasio of Hubbard; and two great-grandchildren, Caleb and Collin Elliott.

Besides her husband, two sons,

Robert and Charles Adovasio; a brother, John Melko; and a sister, Mary Durrett, preceded Anne in death.

Per Anne's request, there are no calling hours. A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 1, at St. Rose Church, 48 E. Main St. in Girard. Interment will follow at Resurrection Cemetery in Austintown, where Anne will be laid to rest next to her husband and sons. Anne's family thanks Dr. Bruce

Willner, and the staff of Heritage

JOHN L. SEMIVAN, 66

2017, at 9:15 a.m. at the Rossi & Santucci Funeral Home. 4221 Market St. in Boardman (new location), followed by a Mass of Christian Burial at 10 a.m. at Saint Dominic's Church, 77 E. Lucius Ave. in Youngstown with Fr. Bernard M. Timothy O.P., officiating for John L. Semivan, 66, who, per his wishes, passed away Thursday evening at home with family.

Born January 20, 1951, in Youngstown, John is the devoted son of the late John T. and Rita M. (Pelopeda) Semivan.

After graduating from Cardinal Mooney High School in 1969, and later, with an M.S. from Youngstown State University, he decided to build his own simple and lovely life within the town in which he grew up. To follow, he worked tirelessly for 37 years in the blood bank at both Southside and Northside Hospital to take care of the ones he loved so very much. After years of spreading magic about evervone he encountered. the kind and brilliant John has decided to continue his journey onward, bidding a fond farewell to this earth and is sailing from the western shores to join the elves, finally closing the book on his search for peace. He has kept a selfless and watchful eye on his family, and will continue so, as his proud and dear wife, Miss Mary, along with his two proteges, Jeanne Deedle and Raina-Roo, who still have work to be done. Luckily, John had allies in many areas. Particularly, his two brothers. James A. (Deborah) Semivan of Alexandria, Va. and Jerry E. (Suzanne) Semivan of Poland; and his sister, Rita M. (Frank) Spirato of Jacksonville, Fla. Last, but certainly not least, is his confidant and dearest friend, Mark Cerimele, with fondness and brotherhood extended to Jerry and Chris Ceri-

AMICO MARIANI, 76

AUSTINTOWN - Amico Mariani, 76, passed away Thursday evening, July 27, 2017, at Hospice House, after a courageous battle with AML (leukemia).

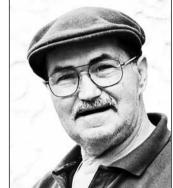

Amico was born Sept. 19, 1940, in San Pietro Avellana, Italy, the son of the late Adamo and Elvira Carlini Mariani, and came to America and Youngstown in December of 1956 with his family.

When he arrived in the U.S., Amico spoke no English, and was enrolled in St. Joseph School to learn the language, eventually graduating from Ursuline High School. After graduation, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps, and was discharged from the service as a lance corporal in 1963.

All through school, Amico worked odd jobs, always keeping busy, and became an assistant manager with Woolworth's. After the service, Mr. Mariani worked for Wean United, and retired from Warren Fabricating.

Just about more than anything, Amico loved to build and was considered a "renaissance man" and a master craftsman. He completely remodeled his home, built fountains, bridges, trellises, and structures in his yard to resemble an Italian village. A wonderful storyteller, Amico enjoyed bringing joy to others and generously opened his beautiful home every year for a traditional stomping of the grapes, the Bacchanalia.

Amico leaves his beloved wife of 37 years, his sought-after "green-eyed blonde," the love of his life, Patricia Johnson Mariani, whom he married April 18, 1980; a son, Todd (Nicole) Mariani; two stepchildren, Lori (Curt) Koch and Brian Waller: four grandchildren, Nathan Boals, Vince Koch, Nico Mariani, and Gina Mariani; two great-grandchildren, Eloise and Joseph Boals; and many, many friends.

He will be truly and sadly missed by all who knew and loved him. Besides his parents, an infant sister, is deceased. Family and friends are welcome to attend a memorial service celebrating Mr. Mariani's life on Sunday, Sept. 3, at 1:30 p.m., at Crossroads Church on South Meridian Road.

Special thanks are offered to Pat's sister, Judy Capirano, "the assistant" for her constant presence and source of comfort; to dear friends and family, Patty and Joe Houk, Mark Holmes, Nick and Kelly Shirey, Ryan and Ashley Reese, and to countless other family and friends. Thanks of gratitude are offered to Dr. Glenn Novak, and to the staff of Hospice House, for the kindness shown and care given to Amico and his family during his illness. Arrangements have been entrusted to Kinnick Funeral Home, 477 N. Meridian Road in Youngstown. Please visit kinnickfuneralhome.com to view and share this obituary, and to send condolences online to Amico's family.

Gene Shonce is a program supervisor for Community Corrections Association.

Green Gene – changing lots and lives

There are two things that sits atop a neon green him off. about Gene Shonce that Sharon Letson of Youngstown CityScape can guarantee when she calls him about a downtown need.

"I always know that when I call, it is going to be 'No.' But I know before I get off the phone, he will get to 'Yes.' And that next day, it will get done," she said.

Letson and Shonce are two of the three-person team that, by job and by passion, are downtown Youngstown's beautification caretakers. The third person is John Lapin of Ohio One Corp. – owners of most office sites on the east side of downtown.

The three of them ensure downtown grass, plants, flowers, pots, shrubs and more look as special as they do. It is Sharon and John out front on the outreach, and the funding, and the coloring, and the corporate partnering. And Gene? He just goes to work.

Gene is a program supervisor for Community Corrections Association - they of the many buildings and green spaces along Market Street dotted with white signs that tout "The CCA." Gene's core task with CCA is to manage 17 lots in and around downtown – some owned by CCA; others contracted to them.

downtown, Gene is easy to spot: a red pickup truck

T-shirt and blue jeans.

But what stands out most about Gene is his four-man They are all law offenders of some degree. Some are serving small time at CCA. Some have finished hard time at another facility and are transitioning back to society after a few months with CCA. When you drive by, they often look the part: Tattooed everywhere, hard-looking, tough stares, etc.

Those guys are his unofficial job ... or maybe his official one.

They're probably why he's been on the job 15 more years than the couple of years he suggested when Rick Billak hired him in 2000. And at almost 78 years old, those men might be why the fiercely loyal Gene is not ready to call it quits.

"I thank these guys every night. And I thank the good Lord every night for these guys," said Gene – a manager at BFI for 38 years, a former Austintown Township trustee, and now mentor to those who went wrong at some point.

He recalls one event that loyalty to the guys.

"Over by city hall one day, this guy came up to the truck and said 'Get your If you're an observer of convicts back to work,' Gene said.

Gene explained to the with a trailer of lawn gear guy that they are not conare affixed to him; he victs; they are clients of sports slicked-back hair CCA and .... The guy cut

'He said to me 'You heard me. Get the convicts to work.' I then opened my truck door, and he took off. I was going to get him and explain to him a little better," Gene said.

Travis Culler, Salem, is one of Gene's four crew guys now. Gene will have 70 such guys in a year. Travis said what makes Gene special is that he does not judge the men. "He gets to know you. He doesn't just judge you for the reasons that you are in here. He gets to know you and gives you the best advice he can give you on

Gene knows the guys did wrong in life. Getting to a point where he can talk to them is a process.

"I'm trying to get guys on the right track – get them away from the bad stuff. I try to turn around the negative tone," Gene said. "I don't judge; I don't ask. When they unload to me about their life and they want my advice, then I get into their life. And I don't say 'You should do this.' I try to say that they should Try this.

That's the side that many might best demonstrate his people don't get to see in Gene.

"His first appearance does not match who he is," said Dave Stillwagon, CCA executive director. "He comes off tough - but he is a softy.

"He wants to see the

Robert Pledge, president and editorial director of the Contact Press Images photo agency, told The Associated Press that Morris died Friday at a hospital in Paris, the city where he had been living for decades.

Among his proudest achievements, Morris edited the historic pictures of the D-Day invasion in Normandy taken by famed war photographer Robert Capa in 1944 for Life picture editor for The New York Times, he helped grant front-page display to two of the most striking pictures of Vietnam War by Associated Press photographers Nick Ut Cong Huynh and Eddie Adams. During a career span-

magazine. In addition, as ning more than half a century, Morris played a crucial role in helping to craft a noble role for photojournalism. He also worked for The Washington Post, National Geographic and the renowned Magnum photo agency.

His job as a photo editor included sending photographers to war zones or other reporting sites, advising them on the angles of their photographs, choosing the best shots in the stream of images transmitted and staging the selected images for the news outlets. Associated Press

After 24 days at sea and a journey spanning more than 6,214 miles, the Finnish icebreaker MSV Nordica has set a new record for the earliest transit of the fabled Northwest Passage.

The once-forbidding route through the Arctic, linking the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans, has been opening up sooner and for a longer period each summer due to climate change. Sea ice that foiled famous explorers and blocked the passage to all but the hardiest ships has slowly been melting away in one of the most visible effects of man-made global warming.

Records kept by Canada's Department of Fisheries and Oceans show that the previous earliest passage of the season happened in 2008, when the Canadian Coast Guard ship Louis L. St-Laurent left St. John's in Newfoundland on July 5 and arrived in the Beaufort Sea off Point Barrow on July 30.

More tourists evacuate NC islands

A "steady stream" of tourists left a North Carolina island Saturday under evacuation orders prompted by a widespread power outage, wiping out a significant chunk of the lucrative summer months for local businesses.

It could take days or weeks to repair an underground transmission line damaged Thursday by construction crews working on a new bridge between islands. The construction company drove a steel casing into an underground transmission line, causing blackouts on Ocracoke and Hatteras

An order for visitors to Hatteras Island, south of Oregon Inlet, meant up to 60,000 people had to evacuate starting Saturday, primarily north over the inlet bridge. This was in addition to an order that called for about 10,000 tourists to evacuate from Okracoke.

Judge blocks Ark. from enforcing abortion restrictions LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

A federal judge has blocked Arkansas from enforcing four new abortion restrictions, including a ban on a common secondtrimester procedure and a fetal remains law that opponents say would effectively require a partner's consent before a woman could get an abortion

U.S. District Court Judge Kristine Baker issued a preliminary injunction against the new restrictions, three of which were set to take effect Tuesday. The American Civil Liberties Union and the Center for Reproductive Rights had challenged the measures, suing on behalf of Dr. Frederick Hopkins, a Little Rock abortion provider.

Police disrupt plot in Australia to 'bring down plane'

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA Police disrupted a terrorist plot to bring down an airplane and arrested four men Saturday in raids on homes in several Sydney suburbs, the prime minister said today.

Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull said security had been increased at Sydney Airport since Thursday because of the plot. The increased security measures had been extended to all major international and domestic terminals around Australia overnight.

N. Korea's 2nd ICBM test augurs a new normal

Associated Press

For all its bluster and overthe-top propaganda, North Korea often does just what it says it will do when it comes to its weapons development. So it goes with lightningquick push to perfect an intercontinental ballistic missile. The clear message after Friday's late-night test, the second in a month of a missile that may be able to reach most of the U.S. main-the new normal.

So what exactly does that mean?

From the West's point of view, it portends more and scarier missile and nuclear tests, each one more powerful than the last; a dogged determination by the North to ignore, as it has for decades, financial sanctions and other outside pressure, including a slightly more forceful clampdown from its biggest enabler, China; and an increasing likeliland: Get used to this – it's hood that a determined.

unchecked North Korea will comes true. soon turn its rhetoric about being capable of nuking America's heartland into a reality.

All this is meant to force the United States to accept terms that Pyongyang favors: a formal end to the Korean War that would remove U.S. forces from the Korean Peninsula, weaken ties between Seoul and Washington, and make it much more likely that the North's ultimate dream of a Korea united under its rule Outsiders have long dismissed or ignored North Korea's atomic boasts and propaganda, even as they've failed through sanctions, threats and isolation to hinder the North's progress. It remains to be seen whether an effort led by a Trump administration distracted by political infighting can rise to the most serious challenge yet in what has been a decades-long nuclear standoff.

Unless Seoul, Washington and their partners can find a way to stop the North, the near future looks pretty

More tests. More instability. More pressure to pursue indigenous nuclear programs among North Korea's other presumed targets, Seoul and Tokyo, as they lose faith in the U.S. "nuclear umbrella." And more possibility that a miscalculation in one of the world's most heavily armed regions could lead to fighting.

That's the new normal.

The Capitol is seen during a heavy rain in Washington on Friday.

Congress and White House operate in different worlds

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

The White House sits 2 miles from the U.S. Capitol, but last week, it might as well have been a world

In Congress, Republicans labored around the clock in an ultimately futile bid to overhaul the nation's health care system. At the White House, officials labored to keep their jobs amid a highly public – and at times, shockingly vulgar - feud between President Donald Trump's senior advisers that culminated with Friday's firing of chief of staff Reince

Rarely has the gap between the priorities of a president and lawmakers in his own party been so stark. By week's end, Trump had become largely irrelevant as Republicans' tried to fulfill a seven-year promise to voters on health care. Trump's involvement was mainly limited to the occasional tweet. At a closed-

House Republican caucus Friday, at least one lawmaker bemoaned the impact of the White House's internal drama.

"That which is weird is getting weirder at the White House," Rep. Mark Sanford, R-S.C., said after the meeting. "Let's break through this stuff, let's produce results. The internal White House warfare is in fact an impediment to doing so.' The Pennsylvania Avenue divide stretched beyond the health care debacle this week. When the president issued a surprise edict-by-tweet banning transgender people from the military, several high-profile GOP senators rejected the decision. When Trump mused about firing Attorney General Jeff Sessions, Republican lawmakers quickly took

Sessions' side. Trump's flirtation with firing Sessions produced more blowback from Republicans than nearly any door meeting of the other matter this year. South Carolina Sen. Lindsey Ğraham said there would be "holy hell" to pay if Trump took that provocative step. Sen. Ben Sasse, R-Neb., said that if Trump was thinking about using a procedural move to temporarily replace Sessions without Senate confirmation, he should "forget about it."

Peter Wehner, a Trump critic who worked in three Republican administrations, said the GOP was moving into "uncharted territory" with a president who should be an ally, but often isn't.

"They have to embrace reality and begin to try to build a fence around him," Wehner said.

Some congressional Republicans have privately discussed the risks of continuing to stand with a president who sometimes appears to have no real loyalty to the party. But even at the end of a wild week, none expressed that sentiment publicly.

Scientists make key pancreatic cancer discovery

Newsday (TNS)

Scientists at Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory have discovered a key biological mechanism that drives the spread of pancreatic cancer and helps explain why one of the most common forms of the disease is so deadly.

The researchers, in the just-released issue of the journal Cell, describe how working with tiny pancreatic organoids - miniature living models of the pancreas – led to their significant step in understanding DNA sequences that underlie the spread of pancreatic ductal carcinoma.

Cancer of the pancreas has the reputation of being one of the most lethal malignancies because of its overwhelming tendency to metastasize, spreading to sites beyond the gland itself, researchers said.

Pancreatic ductal cancer, a widely diagnosed form of the disease, often is called a "silent killer" because it produces no overt symptoms in its early development.

There is no method of routine screening to detect the malignancy in its earliest evolution. By the time most pancreatic ductal cancers are found, the disease already has spread elsewhere in the body. Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory scientists in the lab of Dr. David Tuveson, director of cancer therapeutics, unmasked one of the cancer's longest-held secrets: Pancreatic cancer spreads because metastatic cells carry short sequences of DNA, called enhancers, that drive the cancer's spread.

A look at what didn't happen last week

A roundup of some of the most popular, but completely untrue, headlines of the week. None of these stories are legit, even though they were shared widely on social media. The Associated Press checked these out; here are the real facts:

Not Real: The 14 fake olive oil companies are revealed now - Avoid these brands

The Facts: The story from healthylivingthread.com cites a University of California study in stating that "almost 70% of olive oil on the American market is somewhat non-genuine."

It goes on to suggest that olive oils in the U.S. market are being diluted with sunflower and canola oils. In reality, the 2010 UC-Davis study found that 69 percent of samples taken from 14 brands of imported extra virgin olive oil on sale in California failed to meet by a Wisconsin man last year who put up billboards calling for such a wall. Even if Wisconsin wanted to ban Illinois residents from visiting the Badger State, such a move would be illegal since the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that the right for Americans to travel between states is guaranteed under the U.S. Constitution.

Trump: Repeal and replace or end the health payments

Associated Press

WASHINGTON President Donald Trump on Saturday threatened to end required payments to insurance companies unless lawmakers repeal and replace the Obama-era health care law.

In apparent frustration over Friday's failure by the Senate Republican majority to pass a bill repealing parts of the Affordable Care Act, Trump tweeted: "If a new HealthCare Bill is not approved quickly, BAIL-OUTS for Insurance Companies and BAILOUTS for Members of Congress will end very soon!"

No Democrats voted for the GOP bill.

Repeal-and-replace has been a guiding star for Republicans ever since President Barack Obama enacted the law in 2010. That goal, which Trump turned into a top campaign promise, remains out of reach even with Republicans controlling both the White House and Congress. The issue has dominated the opening months of Trump's presidency.

But Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said after the bill failed early Friday that he would move to other legislative business in the upcoming week.

Trump also tweeted: "Unless the Republican Senators are total quitters, Repeal & Replace is not dead! Demand another vote before voting on any other bill!'

The subsidies, totaling about $7 billion a year, help reduce deductibles and copayments for consumers with modest incomes. The Obama administration used its rule-making authority to set direct payments to insurers to help offset these costs. Trump inherited the payment structure, but he also has the power to end them.

Our VOICE

Ohio voters need objective analysis of drug-cost issue

N NOVEMBER, OHIO VOTERS WILL decide if state government agencies should be able to buy prescription drugs at prices no higher than what the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs

Åt first glance, the Ohio Drug Price Relief Act, a citizen-initiated statute, seems to be a no-brainer. After all, just about everyone believes the pharmaceutical industry is involved in price manipulation.

Yet, the ballot issue isn't as clear-cut as it would appear. The reason: Proponents and opponents are engaged in an intensive, expensive war of words via television commercials and in-depth newspaper stories.

Unfortunately, rather than providing much needed clarity, the point-counterpoint has served to muddy the wa-

Adding to the public's confusion is the fact that each side's campaign is being financed by very deep pockets. Ohio Taxpayers for Lower Drug Prices is leading the effort to pass the issue, and is sponsored by the California-based AIDS Healthcare Foundation. The $800 million foundation is presided over by Californian Michael Weinstein. The opposition, led by Ohioans

Against the Deceptive Rx Ballot Issue, is being funded by the pharmaceutical

Thus the question that has preoccupied members of The Vindicator Editorial Board after meetings with representatives of each campaign: Who

The bottom-line argument put forth by Ohio Taxpayers for Lower Drug Prices does resonate: At least 4 million Ohioans who receive their drugs through state agencies would pay less because the state would realize significant cost savings. The Veterans Affairs department receives a federally mandated discount of about 24 percent on prescription drugs.

The proponents have pegged the savings at about $400 million.

But Ohioans Against the Deceptive Rx Drug Ballot Issue has summarily dismissed the figure as having no basis of fact.

PRICE INCREASES

Indeed, the opponents warn that passage of the state issue in the November general election will result in increased drug prices for those Ohioans who do not get their prescription drugs from the state. They also contend that while the VA's discount of 24 percent would be applied, the federal agency negotiates other discounts with drug manufacturers that are not made public.

They also warn that Big Pharma, which is paying for the flood of television commercials urging Ohioans to vote no, could retaliate by curtailing the supply of important life-sustaining drugs in the state.

In response, the proponents argue that the pharmaceutical companies are not going to jeopardize one of their most lucrative markets by pulling out

As we said at the outset, the question that continues to baffle us is this: Who should we believe?

The League of Women Voters of Ohio will be issuing its Voters Guide in September that will contain a detailed explanation of the Ohio Drug Price Relief Act, along with the pros and cons of the issue from each perspective.

The league's review of the ballot issue will be "objective truth," according to Carrie Davis, executive director of the LWV of Ohio. However, the organization will not render judgment on the claims being made by the proponents and opponents, Davis said.

But that's exactly what Ohio voters need to make an informed decision.

We believe that objectivity is the key to such research and, therefore, urge one of the state universities to undertake this important assignment. Youngstown State University gets our vote.

There are many qualified, experienced public-policy researchers who would have little difficulty separating fact from fiction.

If there is a cost associated with such an analysis, we are confident both sides of the issue would be more than happy to foot the bill. They are spending a boatload of money to sway the voters.

Given the pharmaceutical industry's poor track record in setting prices for life-saving drugs, Ohioans should disabuse themselves of the notion that altruism is driving Big Pharma's opposition. The industry is worried about other states following suit.

On the other hand, the push by Weinstein and his AIDS Healthcare Foundation to win passage of the issue in Ohio after voters rejected a similar initiative in California prompts concerns about his intentions. Does Weinstein have a national agenda that goes beyond the prescription drug-cost issue? Objective research would provide the necessary insight to help Ohioans make the right decision.

Recent columns show de Souza's detachment

N HIS COLUMN ON June 11, 2017, titled "Why did Trump pinpoint Y'town?", Bertram de Souza stated that the third shift at the Lordstown assembly complex was eliminated because demand for small cars has been very weak as consumers switched to utility vehicles and trucks.

Having made that statement, why did he not question the creation of the third shift in the first place? Perhaps he should have questioned the judgment of GM executives who failed to properly anticipate public demand for their product. If you have too much product, it is next to impossible to create a market where there is none.

Then, de Souza, in his article of July 23, 2017, titled "Trump owns the job losses" misses the mark on more than one level. In this column, he uses these words: "The easily impressed blue collar region.'

Sure, we may like shiny things, but it appears he has little respect for hard-working

He also mentioned the bailout of General Motors and Chrysler. This should have been a clue that the management of these two companies were not in tune with the desires of the buying public.

Finally, Bertram's use of the adjective "jingoistic" speech tells me that he prefers to use big words to impress his readers rather than logical content. It is just another way that he reveals his detachment from ordinary people.

Buy America policies make sense for Valley

URING THE 1920S, our region was second only to Pittsburgh in quantity of steel production. We've seen good times and hard times, but we've always persevered. The Youngstown-Warren area has seen recent economic revitalization, and we at the Columbiana Area Chamber believe the proposed Buy America policies will continue our progress.

Buy America policy is simple: Our tax dollars are spent on public projects in our own communities, not being sent to another country. Our businesses provide quality goods here at home and our government should be purchasing them, as well as encouraging private businesses to do the same. These policies encourage homegrown economic activity.

The Chinese steel industry holds approximately 50 percent of the entire market, a 40 percent jump in 15 years. This didn't just happen overnight. Cheap lines of credit, preferential tax treatment, an artificially cheap currency and sometimes direct subsidies from the Chinese government have created the rampant steel industry that now exists. Due to these factors, China "dumps" its steel into America at costs far cheaper than American companies can even produce. Eventually it gets to be too much, and our neighbors have to close their company doors for good.

Our government needs to make trade enforcement a top priority to ensure that hardworking Americans are no longer victimized by predatory, mercantilist governments like China. We were pleased to see the Department of Commerce take this issue seriously with its investigation into Section 232 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, which is reviewing whether imports of steel and aluminum are negatively impacting U.S. economic and national security. We here in Youngstown are certainly seeing this effect, and we hope the government does Investigations into trade policy, as well as policy goals such as Buy America, are fantastic steps being taken to ensure the strength of American industry. Not only is China dumping its steel into our country, but in turn, that means we're dumping our money into China's economy. Let's stop playing by their rules and make our own.

Sound off against parole for convicted Valley killer

ALLEY RESIDENTS may recall June 3, 1979, the day the lives of the Poullas Family changed forever. Our cousin, Elaine Poullas, suffered a violent and senseless death at the hands of David Jacobs (A156579) and Charles Teague (A156577-SB2). Elaine was kidnaped, raped, robbed and murdered by these convicted killers.

It has been brought to our family's attention that after 20 years, these men are once again eligible to receive a hearing to grant their release from prison.

Those of you who knew Elaine understand what a joy she was to be around. We were deprived of her life, and she was prevented from earning her college degree and career, marriage, children and the love and support of her family and friends.

I recently reviewed a book of the events surrounding Elaine's untimely death created and updated by her mother, Mary Poullas, until she passed away in 2014. The first page is a handwritten letter from Mary requesting her book be put in our hands to continue the campaign to keep her daughter's murderers incarcerated for the full term of their sentences, life.

After their last parole hearing in 1997, I specifically recall Aunt Mary telling us that she would probably not be around for the next parole hearing and asked us to continue our fight. In the past 20 years, Elaine and her heinous demise have far from been forgotten by our family and community. Our reality has once again surfaced as these men are once again eligible for freedom with their parole hearings scheduled this September. We are asking our community for their assistance in helping us convince the Ohio Parole Board to deny release of these inmates. Letters of concern and support can be mailed or submitted to this address/web address:

Parole Board, 770 W. Broad St., Columbus, OH 43222; www. DRC.Ohio.gov/parole-board/

Their inmate numbers must be included with your letters or emails. Any correspondence received for inmates is retained in their permanent file for future In closing, we would like to thank you from the bottom of our hearts for your time and consideration in helping us keep these individuals in prison for their heinous and senseless actions.

Coaches should ensure all team members get to play

AM A BOY SCOUT IN Troop 9022. I am working on my Communications Merit Badge. I want to talk about how all football players on a team should get played.

I feel coaches need to play all of the players during games so the coaches can see all the players' potential, not just always the main group of key players being played.

Coaches need to realize putting all the players in the game will give the players more confidence which will make them develop better skills and become better players.

Finally, the most important reason is if the players do not get played, then the players will feel sad and left out, which will make them possibly quit the team or not play that sport ever again.

My hope is in the future all coaches need to realize that playing on a team is better than leaving them out of the game. Winning should not always be most important in sports.

Dems need a 'decent' Trump*

(*The political phenom-enon, not the individual)

While the keyword in the headline is "decent," the underlying premise should be self-evident: The Democratic Party will not defeat Republican President Donald J. Trump in his reelection bid in 2020 with a political insider as its candidate.

The point was driven home Tuesday evening when Trump came to the heavily Democratic Mahoning Valley and delivered a fire-and-brimstone sermon to a raucous crowd of 7,000 inside the Covelli Centre in downtown Youngstown.

For almost an hour, Trump reprised his usagainst-them stump speech that proved so effective last year. He attacked the political establishment in Washington, Democrats and Republicans in Congress, illegal immigrants and, of course, the news media. His repeated references to "fake news" had the crowd howling at the moon.

The event was portrayed as a political rally and organizers went so far as to insist it was a private affair. The message was clear: Trump detractors would be unceremoniously tossed out - and they were.

But it was Trump's willingness to tap into his supporters' basest instincts that led this writer to conclude that for this president, the long-standing rules of the game are irrelevant.

Nothing is off limits. Personal attacks are now part of his political rhetoric, victimization is the accepted excuse for his supporters' economic dislocation, and bigotry in all forms is encouraged.

ASSESSMENT OF TRUMP

A year ago, on July 31, 2016, just days after the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia, this writer offered the following assessment of Republican Trump's candidacy: "Let us give the supporters of Donald Trump the benefit of the doubt – that they're for him not because he's a racist, a misogynist, a chauvinist and a religious bigot, but because they agree with his positions on the important issues of the day.

'Yes, it's a leap of faith to believe that the backers of the Republican nominee for president have given much thought to the challenges the next leader of the world's lone superpower will face. But this writer is willing to take that leap for the sake of this column.

So, to begin.

'One of the main issues that has endeared Trump to millions of voters is his unabashed protectionist attitude when it comes to global trade. The New York City billionaire businessman – he claims he's worth $10 billion – has said that as president he will cancel all agreements with America's trading partners and will demand new terms that benefit this nation. 'Trump, who is making his first bid for elected office and won the GOP primaries and caucuses by playing on the fears and frustrations of the voters, has refused to answer repeated questions about what he would do if countries around the world retaliated with their own protectionist moves. "But there's a larger problem with the GOP nominee's stand on trade that his followers choose to ignore. It's hypocritical. 'There is, fortunately, one person who knows Trump the businessman better than most Americans - and he has some very poignant opinions of him." Who is that person? The "decent" version of President Donald J. Trump.

He is Michael Bloomberg,

$55 for two people to see a movie? That's just a start By TERRI AKMAN so far, so why do theaters Chris Pine enjoyable, and it The Philadelphia Inquirer need to run ads before the A Wonder Woman fan main event? I get the cute bit reluctantly agreed to join me, so we headed to the theater for a late-afternoon show. When I asked for two tickets, the clerk rung up $34.56. I thought she was mistaken. Alas, it was after 3 o'clock (we saw the 4:10 show), and it happened to be in 3-D, which is an upcharge.

Incredulous, I gasped but handed over my credit card.

Of course, we couldn't cheer on Wonder Woman without some snacks to munch on. We chose a small bag of popcorn to share, a bottle of water, and a medium seltzer water. Ka-ching – an additional 20 bucks.

When did the cost for two people to see a movie hit $55? How do the parents who also need to pay a baby sitter, or who choose to get dinner with their movie, afford the night out? Or the parents who take their kids along and are now spending the opening credits. When upwards of $100, depending on the size of their brood?

I feel very old and crotchety as I write this.

For me, though, it's about the customer experience. You get cozy in your seat, excited for the movie, but then realize you have to pay to play. First it's the ads, then the coming attractions - by now you're a half-hour in and the movie hasn't even started. And I hate when I've finished my popcorn before the movie finally did play, it was on the longer side at

was fun to see Robin Wright kicking butt. My childhood hero didn't disappoint. I loved cheering on a female superhero, and the story kept my attention despite the movie's length.

I'm not sure the 3-D at $4 or $5 more per ticket was necessary. Maybe the thrill of 3-D has worn off, or I'm just no longer impacted by arrows that seem to shoot right at me. I would have thought that with so much action, 3-D would have added a lot to the experience, but I think the plot was strong enough that the special effects weren't necessary. I suppose there are options.

I could go to a pre-3 p.m. matinee or surreptitiously smuggle in my own snacks. Or I could wait a few months and pay $5.99 for the whole family to watch the movie on-demand on my bigscreen TV from the comfort of my couch. But I know the popcorn wouldn't taste quite as good, and the fun of going to the movies is getting out of the house. And what would I talk about at the water cooler when everyone else is raving about or dissing the latest blockbuster?

Jets debut first female coach

FLORHAM PARK, N.J.

Collette Smith made some coaching history with the New York Jets.

The first female coach in franchise history made her debut as a defensive assistant Saturday during the team's opening practice of training camp.

The 44-year-old Smith is serving as a coaching intern on Todd Bowles' coaching staff through the summer.

She will work as an assistant under defensive backs coach Dennard Wilson.

Smith is the third woman to coach in the NFL, joining Kathryn Smith, who was a quality control coach in Buffalo last year, and Jen Walter, who was a coaching intern for Arizona during training camp in 2015.

Smith, a native of Queens, New York, grew up rooting for the Jets, according to an interview with the New York Daily News. She played three seasons with the New York Sharks in the Independent Women's Football League.

She also served as an assistant defensive backs coach with the Sharks, as well as working as the team's director of marketing.

Darvish vows to stop tipping pitches

ARLINGTON, TEXAS

Yu Davish says the tweet was right. The Texas Rangers righthander did indeed tip off some of his pitches when allowing a career-high 10 runs in his last start.

Darvish says he's not sure why a scout would have shared that, since it's hard to discover. But Darvish, who saw it on video, said it's something that he can easily fix.

Yahoo Sports baseball columnist Jeff Passan tweeted earlier Saturday that two scouts and an executive said the Miami Marlins knew what was coming from Darvish in their 22-10 win Wednesday night in Texas.

After responding to the tweet with his own saying "Thanks for sharing this," Darvish stood at his locker in the Rangers clubhouse before Saturday's game.

He had his red glove on his left hand and a baseball in the other, showing how he was moving the ball and making a slight pause with his hands before throwing a

The Arizona Diamondbacks have put All-Star lefty Robbie Ray on the seven-day concussion disabled list, a day after he was hit in the head by a line drive in a game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ray was in the clubhouse Saturday before Arizona played at Busch Stadium.

Arizona manager Torey Lovullo said Ray had symptoms of a concussion, but that his cognitive testing and balance were good. Ray will remain with the Diamondbacks for the remainder of the road trip and be examined by the club's training staff and medical team on a daily basis.

Ray is 9-5 with a 3.11 ERA in 20 starts. He left Friday night's game in the second inning after being struck by a line drive from rookie Luke Voit.

Will Power won his fifth pole of the season and fellow Team Penske driver Josef Newgarden qualified second for Sunday's Honda Indy 200 at the Mid-Ohio Sport Car Course.

Power won the Fast 6 qualifier Saturday with a lap of 126.672 mph compared to 126.407 for Newgarden as Chevrolet took the top two spots.

For Power, it was his third pole at Mid-Ohio and the 49th of his career to tie Bobby Unser for fourth all-time among IndyCar drivers.

Team Penske earned both of the spots on the front row for the fifth time in 13 races this season.

Takuma Sato of Andretti Autosport drove his Honda to the third position. Local favorite Graham Rahal (Honda) of Rahal Letterman Lanigan Racing was fourth.

LONG POND, PA.

Christopher Bell grabbed a late lead and held on to win the Truck Series race Saturday at Pocono Raceway.

Bell passed John Hunter Nemechek and held off Ben Rhodes over the final two laps to win for the fourth time this season. Bell crashed out of one race but hasn't otherwise finished worse than ninth in 12 races this season.

Rhodes was second, followed by Ryan Truex, Nemechek and Johnny Sauter.

The 22-year-old Bell leads the series in wins, poles, playoff points, laps led and top-10 finishes in the No. 4 Toyota for Kyle Busch Motorsports.

Busch led most of the race until he made contact with Justin Ferrari got a huge boost as Sebastian Vettel took pole position for the Hungarian Grand Prix with a blisteringly fast lap, while teammate Kimi Raikkonen was second on Saturday.

"Yes, pole position, numero uno," his Ferrari team shouted over race radio as the German driver clinched the 48th career pole of his career.

The four-time F1 champion clocked a best lap of 1 minute, 16.276 seconds, while Raikkonen was .168 behind in front of large contingent of flag-waving Finnish fans.

Vettel stood on top of his Ferrari and waved to the crowd. The championship leader had extra reason to be happy, with both Mercedes cars trailing behind Valtteri Bottas was third, .254 behind, while Lewis Hamilton could only manage fourth. .431 behind as the British driver missed out on equaling Michael Schumacher's all-time pole record of 68.

Vettel leads Hamilton by just one point after 10 races. Hamilton won the British GP two weeks ago, while Vettel could manage only seventh. This time, it appears that Mercedes is on the back foot.

Tomlin: Young defense is finally all grown up

Associated Press

LATROBE, PA.

Mike Tomlin's word choice was specific. That way, nothing would get lost in translation.

The Pittsburgh Steelers coach believes the generational shift his defense was forced to undergo over the last five years is officially over. No more grinning and

"We set lofty goals and we want to hit them," said defensive end Cam Heyward, who missed the second half of last season with a torn pectoral muscle. "But we're not going to be measured by what anybody else says. We have our goals in mind and what we want to do on the field. The only way to accomplish that is to go out and do it. The talking is done."

And — the Steelers hope -the learning curve the defense was forced to endure as the likes of Troy Polamalu, Brett Keisel, Ryan Clark and Casey Hampton retired is starting to level off.

The 2012 defense led by Polamalu that finished No. 1 in yards allowed featured seven starters over 30 and none under 25.

How quickly things have

Only one of Pittsburgh's 11 projected defensive starters — seemingly ageless 39-year-old linebacker James Harrison — will be over 30 when the Steelers visit Cleveland in the season opener on Sept. 10. Seven will be under 26. Oh, and none will be rookies.

'We're young and experienced, that's freaking scary, right?" said defensive end Stephon Tuitt, who wants to reach double-digit sacks in 2017 after four last fall.

Six months later, the pain remains fresh. The lessons learned too.

Pittsburgh wants to have its secondary play more press coverage in 2017.

The evidence was on the field at Latrobe High School on Saturday as second-year cornerback Artie Burns shadowed Brown all over the field, challenging Brown in a way he rarely did as a rookie last summer.

'I'm going to try and follow him wherever I can, as much as I can," Burns said. "If I want to try and be the best I've got to guard him."

That's what Tomlin had in mind when he decided to spend the opening days of camp watching Burns keep Brown's ever-elusive No. 84 within arm's reach. Burns won as much as he lost, which was kind of the Embarrassed by the Browns' deplorable record during his tenure as owner, Jimmy Haslam promised patience will guide him going forward.

During his annual press conference at training camp, Haslam acknowledged last season's 1-15 record was "harder than we thought" but he's convinced he's hired the right people to turn around a Cleveland franchise that think I've said it's embarrassing. At the same time, we have learned a lot. In life, I've learned you learn a heck of a lot more through the hard experiences than the easy ones. I now think we're positioned to put the organization, the team in a much better place than we've been."

There's no way to go but

The Browns were barely competitive last season, losing their first 14 games before beating San Diego on Christmas Eve to avoid joining the 2008 Detroit Lions as the only teams to go

The losing took its toll on Haslam, who has already made three coaching and team from Randy Lerner in 2012.

"We're very realistic about where we are," he said. "We're going to be patient and we're going to do it right. We're going to build through the draft, selectively use free agency and not take shortcuts and try to produce a team that will consistently win games.

It's not Haslam's nature to be patient. But he's had to learn to control his impulse to overhaul at the first sign of trouble.

And while the Browns are in the "early stages" of another rebuilding project, Haslam is convinced that coach Hue Jackson, executive vice president Sashi Brown, player personnel director Andrew Berry and chief strategy officer Paul DePodesta, have the blueprint that leads to victories.

"Our group is functioning together and I think very well," he said.

"They've now been together for about a year and a half and I think A.B., Sash, Paul and Hue are working together extremely well and I think this year's draft was an example of this and I think everybody knows the assets we've accumulated for next year' draft, so we feel good about that."

The Browns have two first-round picks and three second-round selections in 2018, when Haslam expects the team to be closer to competing for a playoff

In the meantime, he's not making any promises

'None of us are exactly sure what'll happen this year, I know we'll be a better team," he said. "So I think 2018 — and I'm not hedging my bets — 2018, 2019 you should see a substantially better football

But I think it's how our team performs. Do we come back? Do we win close games? Do we come from behind and win a game? Do we beat a good team? Do we win a game on the road? Are younger players getting better? It's a collection of all those types of things."

Spieth's rally at Augusta one for ages

What a week for golf. I didn't plan on talking about another national golf story this week, but after watching Jordan Spieth's British Open victory, how could I not?

A lot of focus has been paid to Jordan Spieth winning three majors before the age of 24. Jack Nicklaus is the only other person to accomplish that. It's an unbelieveable feat. But Spieth's win record is not what I want to focus on.

Rather, I want to try to get to the mental side of his victory. For the life of me, I can't imagine the switch Spieth was able to flip for the last five holes of that tournament.

And I don't want to overstate this, but I honestly believe that the last hour of that tournament could be a career-defining stretch for Spieth.

I probably need four or more columns to properly dive into all the different components this column should cover, but I'll try to make due with one.

The Background: In April 2016, Jordan Spieth had an opportunity to run the table with a wire-to-wire Masters victory. Back-to-back victories that would have cemented his place in golf history at the ripe age of 22. He played with the lead the whole tournament and gave a few shots away early on Sunday. Then made two infamously bad swings on 12 en route to a quadruplebogey 7. The loss was crushing.

Devastating. His secondplace finish and defending champion status meant he not only had to endure the loss. But that he had to do it publicly by sliding "his" jacket onto Danny Willett's shoulders in front of the entire world. Commentators all asked the same question: How would Spieth handle himself should he ever get to that position again?

Six majors later, we all waited for the answer. Spieth once again found nimself with the lead heading into the final round of a major. Again there were a few shaky swings and some uncharacteristic misses on the green. It was evident from the start he didn't have the same game with which bogey on 13, Spieth found himself on the wrong side of the leaderboard for the first time since his round on Thursday. He was 4 over for the day and trailed the steady Matt Kuchar with just five holes to play.

certainly possible, if not probable, that he would lose the tournament. Can you imagine what the golf world would have said had Spieth made a few more bogeys down the stretch and lost the tournament? He'd have been called a choke artist. He'd have been labeled unable to win the big one. Even his U.S. Open victory from 2015 would have been re-examined and viewed as a Dustin Johnson loss instead of a Spieth win.

And then it happened. A long iron almost went in off the tee on the par 3 14th lead to birdie. He had a near 50-foot bomb for eagle on 15. He made another 25-foot birdie putt on 16. And his "anything you can do I can do better" dagger to Kuchar matched his already-in birdie on 17. The resulting two-shot lead let him coast down the difficult 18th and two-putt for a three-shot victory.

I can't remember watching someone flip a round like that, especially in a competitive situation. Spieth was the final group of a major on Sunday — a career-defining situation.

runner in the history of the game. But I can't remember a mid-round comeback Spieth won his third major this past Sunday. Three majors before the age of 24 is amazing. But that midround comeback will go down as one of the greatest rallies of all time.

ASSOCIATED PRESS Caeleb Dressel celebrates after winning the gold medal in the men's 100-meter butterfly final at the World Aquatics Championships in Budapest, Hungary, on Saturday.

Dressel takes 3 gold medals in one night

Associated Press

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY Caeleb Dressel knows the comparisons are coming.

After pulling off an unprecedented Triple Crown at swimming's world championships, it's time to take on the legacy of Michael Phelps.

The 20-year-old Dressel established himself as America's newest star of the pool Saturday, becoming the first swimmer to win three gold medals on a single night at either the worlds or the Olympics.

Not even Phelps managed such an audacious

"The comparisons are probably inevitable," Dressel said. "But I'm not the same person as Michael."

Yet it was downright Phelps-like the way he pulled off a remarkable night of swimming at Duna Arena. Dressel raced three times over the course of about two hours — and won every time. Not to mention, he had to find time to warm down and get to three medal ceremotwice," Dressel said with a smile.

The University of Florida student — yep, he's got an algebra exam coming up Monday that he'll be taking online — has won six golds medals in Budapest.

That gives him a shot at moving into more rarified territory: Phelps is the only swimmer to win seven golds at a world championships, which he did at Melbourne in 2007 as a prelude to his record eight golds the following year at the Beijing Olympics.

Dressel will be a virtual lock to win his seventh when he competes on the 4x100 medley relay Sunday, the final event of the championships.

Again, those comparisons to Phelps.

"It's a tough question," Dressel said. "I don't know if I welcome them. But I know they're going to come. I don't think it puts any pressure on me. I just want to keep doing my thing at this meet and for the future." Phelps was certainly im-

He texted his congratulations shortly after Dressel led off a world-record performance in the 4x100meter mixed freestyle relay, capping a night that also included victories in the 50 free and the 100 butterfly.

"This kid is on fire!!" Phelps wrote on Instagram, including a picture of him celebrating with Dressel during a gold medal-winning relay they were both on last summer at the Rio Olympics. "So damn fun to watch buddy!!!!"

Dressel started the night with a furious dash from one end of the pool to the other, adding the 50 free world title to the 100 free he already had. He came back about a half-hour later to nearly break Phelps' world record in the 100 fly, post-"I think I only had to run ing a time of 49.86 that was iust four-nunareaths off the mark set in 2009 at the rubber suit-aided championships in Rome.

The final relay was merely a coronation, the Americans romping to gold in 3 minutes, 19.60 seconds eclipsing by nearly 3½ seconds the mark they set two years ago at worlds.

"Man, that was a lot of fun," Dressel said.

He even managed to overshadow Katie Ledecky, who won her fifth gold medal of the meet by cruising to victory in the 800 free. Yet Budapest will be remembered as bit of a disappointment for the star of the 2016 Summer Games. who settled for silver in the 200 free and didn't come close to breaking any of her personal bests.

the bat of Hosea Nelson. The Crosscutters answered with a four-run third. The big blow of the inning was a two-run homer off the bat of Jhailyn Scrappers leadoff hitter

Samad Taylor had an RBI base hit in the fourth. In the ninth, Taylor plated Nelson with a sacrifice fly, but Williamsport closer Luis Ramirez retired the final two batters of the game to earn his fifth save of the season. Taylor collected six hits and seven RBI in his last two games.

Lauritson noted that Tayextremely eager to learn,'

These guys all have the ability, that's why they are here," Lauritson said. "But they also all have to adjust to this level of the game. It's a grind. It's a process. But the nice thing is that this young group is eager and willing to learn. If you give them the right information, they just eat it up. They absorb it all."

Lauritson noted that the current group of Scrappers are also willing to put in the overtime in order to improve their game. They realize this is a job.

This is a profession. If they need to be here at 11 a.m. to put in the extra work, they are here. They want to move up," Lauritson said. The Scrappers begin a

Saturday's other MLB games

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Tigers 5, Astros 3

Jose Iglesias hit two RBI doubles, Matt Boyd pitched into the seventh inning and the Tigers beat the Astros. Iglesias' second runscoring double tied the game at 3 in the seventh. Ian Kinsler then flared a single to center to give Detroit the lead. Kinsler followed up the single with a spectacular defensive play, racing down the right-field line and leaning into the stands to catch Josh Reddick's pop fly. Martinez made it 5-3 with an RBI single in the eighth. Boyd (5-5) allowed three runs on eight hits in 71/3 innings.

Angels 6, Blue Jays 5

Cliff Pennington drove in the tiebreaking run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning and the Angels beat the Blue Jays. Trailing 5-3 against Blue Jays closer Roberto Osuna (3-1), the Angels took the lead with a three-run ninth. Kole Calhoun hit a one-out single, Martin Maldonado was hit by a pitch, Ben Revere hit an RBI double, and pinch-runner Kaleb Cowart scored on a wild pitch, sending Revere to third. Revere scored the go-ahead run on Pennington's sacrifice fly to shallow center.

TORONTO

Yankees 5, Rays 4

NEW YORK Brett Gardner hit a bases-loaded single in the ninth inning to give the Yankees their sixth straight victory. With the game tied at 4, Chase Headley started the ninth with a leadoff walk off Brad Boxberger (2-3). Pinch-runner Jacoby Ellsbury stole second and Todd Frazier was hit by a pitch. Adeiny Hechavarria and Tim Beckham miscommunicated on a grounder for the second time in the series to load the bases, prompting a pitching change. Gardner, who homered in the 11th inning to give the Yankees a 6-5 victory on Thursday, calmly stroked Dan Jennings' 0-1 fastball up the middle for his second gamewinning hit of the series.

NATIONAL LEAGUE Rockies 4, Nationals 2

WASHINGTON

German Marquez carried a perfect game into the sixth inning, Trevor Story homered and the Rockies beat the Nationals in a matchup of playoff contenders. Marquez (9-4) set down his first 16 batters before allowing three hits in a span of four hitters in the sixth inning. The right-hander struck out a career-high 10 while allowing two runs and three hits in seven innings.

Phillies 4, Braves 3, 11 innings PHILADELPHIA

Ty Kelly singled home the winning run with two outs in the 11th inning to lift the Phillies. Odubel Herrera hit a tying home run with one out in the ninth off Braves closer Jim Johnson, who blew his eighth save. Herrera finished with three hits and two RBIs. The Phillies loaded the bases in the 11th against Rex Brothers (1-1). and Kelly lined the second pitch into left-center to score Tommy Joseph from third. Hector Neris (3-4) pitched two scoreless innings of relief to earn the victory.

Marlins 7, Reds 3

the Reds.

Adam Conley won consecutive starts for the first time this season, Christian Yelich hit a threerun homer and the Marlins beat the reeling Reds. Dee Gordon had three hits, Giancarlo Stanton drove in two runs and Marcell Ozuna doubled twice for the Marlins, who have won four straight. Conley (4-3) went 72/3 innings, allowing two runs and five hits while striking out a season-best seven. Joey Votto hit his 27th home run and Adam Duvall hit his 23rd for

Dodgers 2, Giants 1 LOS ANGELES

Corey Seager had three hits, Cody Bellinger drove in two runs and the Dodgers won their seventh straight. Rich Hill (8-4) pitched two-hit ball into the sixth inning as the major leagueleading Dodgers won for the 38th time in 44 games. At 73-31, they are 42 games over .500 for the first time since finishing 102-60 in 1974. Kenley Jansen worked the ninth for his 26th save in 27 opportunities. Diamondbacks 7, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS Paul Goldschmidt homered and drove in three runs and Zack Greinke pitched seven strong innings for the Diamondbacks. Greinke (13-4) limited the Cardinals to one run and four hits to improve to 5-0 in his last six starts. He struck out nine and walked one. Goldschmidt hit a two-run homer, his 22nd, and J.D. Martinez followed with a solo shot, his 21st, to give the Diamondbacks a 3-1 lead in the fourth. INTERLEAGUE

Mariners 3, Mets 2

SEATTLE

Yovani Gallardo took a shutout into the sixth inning and the Mariners beat the Mets, ending Jacob de-Grom's eight-start winning streak. Gallardo (5-7), banished to the bullpen in mid-June, allowed one run and five hits in 52/3 innings.

Plus League provides free instruction to young people in hitting, pitching, fielding and other aspects of the sport, noted Dave Smercansky of Poland, league president.

Hawkins, a service specialist with Liberty Mutual Insurance in New Castle and a longtime Pittsburgh Pirates and Mets fan, began playing baseball when he was five. He said after the recent game in which the Fog beat the Youngstown Astros 12-3.

lack Hav. league secre tary and a retired Boardman High English teacher, provided six solid innings of pitching during the seveninning contest.

The league's 18 teams are in three divisions, including one for those 58 and older, and the season runs from early May through the Labor Day weekend, followed by a double-elimination tournament, Smercansky explained. Games are seven innings and do not include base stealing because of concern for players' safety, he continued.

Players, some of whom are in their 70s, come from diverse backgrounds – everything from pharmacists to school principals — said Smercansky, who retired after having served 12 years as Boardman High's athletic director and who has been a member of Youngstown State University's Athletics Hall of Fame since 1995.

fessions who have a love of baseball," he said.

Smercansky, who listed Cleveland Indians pitcher Andrew Miller as his favorite active player, also fondly recalled a doubleheader between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Los Angeles Dodgers at Forbes Field his father had taken him to. Starting the two games were legendary Dodgers pitchers Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, he remembered.

"I've been here 12 years. There aren't too many opportunities to play when you're this old," said Chuck Nardone, 64, of Aliquippa, Pa., who played center field for Boardman.

Nardone, a huge fan of Pittsburgh Pirates great and Hall of Famer Roberto Clemente, said he played baseball in college and until age 40, at which time he began coaching his kids' teams. Twelve years later, he picked up a dat and dall and resumed playing, Nardone said.

Among his favorite Major League Baseball moments were having watched on a black-and-white TV the 1960 World Series between the Pirates and New York Yankees, in which Bill Mazeroski famously hit a ninth-inning walk-off home run in Game 7 to make the Pirates World Series champions, as well as seeing Clemente play.

"I loved the way he approached the game," Nardone said of the legendary right fielder. "He never let up or took a day off, so to speak."

The Boardman Fog players may take some days off, but that neither dims their desire to continue playing nor to engage in the camaraderie that comes with their experiences on the field. 'It keeps me in shape; it keeps me playing," Hawk-ins said. "I enjoy the team and the all-around fun. I will "We have a wide range of play until I can't play any-clarer had to decide how best to deal with it. Drawing trumps right away wouldn't work, as there would be no entry back to dummy once the clubs were established. Even two rounds of trumps were too many on this deal. The 4-1 trump split meant that the defense would succeed as long as West was patient and didn't ruff any clubs. This deal was played recently in a team competition, and the declarer at one table found the winning line. He won the opening club lead in his hand, cashed the king of spades, and then led his remaining club toward dummy. West could not profit by ruffing, so he discarded a heart as dummy's ace won the trick. Declarer led a low club and ruffed it with his queen before leading a low spade to dummy's jack. South now cashed dummy's king of clubs and continued running the good clubs. West could ruff whenever he liked, but the ace of spades was still in dummy for an entry as well as to draw the last trump. Well done!

A guide for when addiction hits home

By GUY D'ASTOLFO dastolfo@vindy.com

Robert Hobbs had always been an achiever.

The McDonald native was an executive for an Internet services company in Atlanta iust a few years ago.

A marathon runner, he had a track record of overcoming obstacles.

Then heroin found its way into his life and tore his world

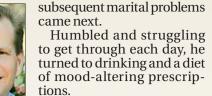

On the morning of Feb. 25, 2014, Hobbs' 22-year-old son overdosed in the bathroom of their home in an uppermiddle class suburb. Hobbs held his lifeless body in his arms as he waited for help, overwhelmed with emotion.

The young man was revived by the first-responders, of stress that would prove to be more than he could bear.

There were feelings of inadequacy for not knowing how to help his son, and shame for his perceived failures as a parent. Eventually, the feelings of helplessness and constant dread would submerge him, as he blamed himself for his son's woes and struggled to help him. The loss of his job, his own brother's untimely death and Eventually, he suffered a nervous breakdown.

"It was a slow erosion," he recalled. "One day I woke up and realized how messed up my life was." When the smoke cleared,

Hobbs was humbled and changed. He also had a crystal-clear picture of the heroin scourge that was gripping the nation, and more importantly, how it can devastate

So he decided to share his knowledge, and the solutions, to other families who find themselves in the same

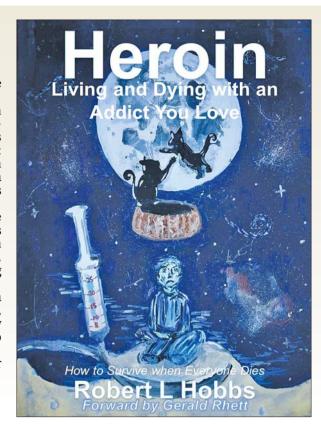

He tells his own story - in unflinchingly honest fashion – and also offers priceless advice in his book "Heroin: Living and Dying with an Addict You Love" (Paduka Press) published earlier this

In alternating chapters, he vividly and bravely details his and his family's struggle with their son's heroin addiction, describing every wrenching emotion.

The book also serves as a guide for other families who, like himself, would not know where to turn or what to do in a time of extreme duress.

Businesses, cities cash in on total solar eclipse crowds

This photo of the 2012 solar eclipse is seen as the sun sets behind the Rocky Mountains from downtown Denver. Destinations are hosting festivals, hotels are selling out and travelers are planning trips for the total solar eclipse that will be visible coast to coast Aug. 21.

BARTLETT, TENN.

Millions of eyes will be fixed on the sky when a total solar eclipse crosses the U.S. in August, and it's likely many of them will be safely behind the special glasses churned out by a Tennessee company.

American Paper Optics ramped up production for this year's eclipse and expects to make 50 million paper and plastic eclipse glasses. John Jerit, the company's CEO and president, said they began preparing about two years ago. During his almost 27 years making safety glasses, he's only seen one total solar eclipse, in France in 1999, but will be going to Nashville for this

"It's a life experience," Jerit said during an interview at his company's office in the Memphis suburb of Bartlett. "When that two minutes is over, or however long you've got, the question that you really want to hear is, 'When is the next one?"

His company is one of many businesses - hotels, campgrounds and stores - taking advantage of the total solar eclipse – when the moon passes between Earth and the sun. The moon's shadow will fall in a diagonal ribbon across the U.S., from Oregon to South Carolina. The rest of the U.S. will experience a partial eclipse, along with Canada, Central America and a bit of South America.

Cities and towns along the path of totality – where there will be about 21/2 minutes of darkness - are gearing up for the crowds. St. Joseph, Mo., population 76,000, is in a prime location and officials are bracing for tens of thousands of eclipse watchers to descend on the city, said Beth Conway, spokeswoman for the St. Joseph Convention & Visitors Bureau.

The city's restaurants, gas stations and stores are preparing for the onslaught – the city's largest arts and music festival with the nickname "Total Eclipse of the Arts" is scheduled on the weekend leading up to the eclipse

"I've worked at many places, and after 20 years, you just know when it's a good fit. It's a beautiful building, wonderful faculty and the board made me feel so welcome."

The downtown school had been without an artistic director since the departure of Stas Kmiec at the start of 2016. Its five faculty members handled the creative duties on a temporary basis.

Tricia Perry, president of the BWR board of trustees, said the school had been searching for the right person and finally found her in Palermo.

'This is essentially our Super Bowl," Conway said. 'If we see anywhere near the amount of people that they're telling us, it will probably be the biggest event in our history.

Why you still can't ditch your cable box

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK

Not that long ago, the clunky cable box looked like it was on its way out. The federal government was pressuring cable companies to open up their nearmonopoly on boxes to more competition, and industry leader Comcast promised apps that could render some boxes obsolete.

That was then. Today, the vast majority of customers still need to rent a box to get full service from cable providers, and those box-replacing apps remain elusive. Here's what happened.

DITCHING THE BOX

In 2015, tech companies and consumer advocates were pushing the Federal Communications Commission to open up the cablebox market. The goal was to let you buy a cable box the way you'd pick up a new smartphone, sparing you the expense of leasing them from cable companies for about $6 and up a month.

The cable industry and Hollywood hated the FCC's February 2016 plan to "unlock the box." They pointed out that TV-watching apps were already available more on that below – and laid out an industry proposal for new apps that could replace cable boxes.

Amid industry pushback, the FCC's proposed rules languished ahead of the 2016 election. Afterward, President Donald Trump's new FCC chairman, Ajit Pai, shelved them permanently.

The industry is no longer pushing its app proposal with the FCC, said Brian Dietz, a spokesman for the cable lobby group NCTA. And he noted that some cable and satellite companies have launched apps that let customers watch video without a cable box.

WHERE, OH WHERE, ARE THOSE

APPS? But most cable TV customers still need a box. The industry has little motivation to get rid of rented cable boxes or to keep its promises without pressure from regulators, said John Bergmayer, senior counsel of the public advocacy group Public Knowledge, in a filing to the Above is a cable box on top of a television set in Philadelphia. Not that long ago, the clunky cable box looked like it was on its way out. The federal government was pressuring cable companies to open up their near-monopoly on boxes to more competition, and industry leader Comcast promised apps that could render some boxes obsolete. But today, the vast majority of customers still need to rent a box to get full service from cable providers, and those box-replacing apps remain elusive.

that it was working with Roku and Samsung to develop apps that, later that year, could replace cable boxes. And it did start testing a Roku app in January, although customers still need a cable box while the service is in "beta." One more drawback: Using the Roku app won't be free if customers want it to work with more than one TV.

The Samsung app remains under development.

In 2015, Charter and Time Warner Cable started offering apps that could replace cable boxes in some markets. Nearly two years later, Charter says it's "testing" such an app, Spectrum Stream, in nearly all markets. (Charter bought Time Warner Cable in 2016.) When the app was requested in New York City, a customer service rep pushed a more expensive traditional "triple play" TV, internet and phone package instead.

AT&T, the owner of DirecTV, and Verizon have no apps that can replace boxes entirely for traditional cable and satellite TV service. Separately, in 2015, Comcast launched a box-free cable service in Boston called Stream, designed for phones, tablets and computers and aimed at younger users. At the time, the company said it Comcast said in April 2016 would roll out to all users by TV on a TV, you probably early 2016. Stream remains limited to Boston and Chicago, although Comcast said recently that it's going to roll out a revamp, "Instant TV." aimed at digital users, in the second half of the year.

The company says net neutrality rules and regulators under the Obama administration hindered Stream's rollout. It wants the FCC to spike these rules, which bar internet providers from favoring their own

CABLE-BOX FREE TV GALORE

The cable lobby is right to point out that there are plentv of box-free TV apps available. Like Comcast's Stream, they're just not really aimed at the 94 million traditional cable and satellite customers stuck with box fees. They're for "cord cutters."

Online-cable services from Dish, Sony, Hulu and YouTube let you watch live TV and record it for later. (AT&T's DirecTV Now's DVR hasn't launched yet.)

These services don't fully replace traditional cable service. Major channels aren't always available, there have been some service quality glitches, and they've only attracted an estimated few million subscribers.

COMCAST: THE BUNDLE EFFECT

In the second quarter, Comcast lost 34,000 video customers, a deeper loss than last year. It added customers for the full year in 2016, its first annual increase in a decade. Overall, cable and satellite TV have lost 4 million customers over the past two years, says research firm SNL Kagan.

Comcast's internet customers rose 175,000. Revenue from the internet arm could get a further boost if Trump's FCC rolls back net neutrality rules, as expected. Comcast is also opening new lines of business, such as a new cellphone service that started in May.

The film and theme park businesses in the NBCUniversal arm also grew sharply

In Dallas, EY opens center for advanced cybersecurity

PRNewswire

EY announced that it will soon open an advanced, multimilliondollar cybersecurity innovation and operations center in Dallas. The center will be part of EY wavespace, a global network of growth and innovation centers that bring together multidisciplinary teams, unique capabilities and intellectual property in collaborative working environments, focusing on disruptive growth, optimization strategies and technologies.

The $10-million, 14,000-square-foot facility in downtown Dallas is the latest addition to EY's global footprint of cybersecurity centers.

As well as serving as a home for EY's team of cybersecurity managed services analysts, the new center will also host EY's Cyber Academy and help facilitate collaboration between clients, EY specialists and EY technology alliances, allowing case and test innovations and approaches within real-world environments.

Upstate Shredding-Ben Weitsman of New Castle, Pa., recently announced the hiring of George Ostendorf, a veteran in the metalsrecycling industry.

Ostendorf is now the new general manager of Ben Weitsman of New Castle. He will be responsible for overseeing and managing all operations and employees at Ben Weitsman, a division of Upstate Shredding.

Before joining Upstate Shredding, Ostendorf spent just under a decade with scrap company Metalico.

Does anyone still need cable?

New streaming services can deliver your favorite TV shows for a lot less money than cable, and many Americans are experimenting with "cord cutting" to get a better deal. Close to 800,000 Americans dropped their traditional pay TV package in the first three months of 2017, according to research firm Moffett-Nathanson.

Today's consumers have more options, from familiar services such as Netflix to new takes on streaming from Sling TV, HBO and others, says Consumer Reports. These choices are exciting, but they also can be hard to navigate – and industry jargon doesn't help. Even the term "cord cutting" is misleading. # Al Gore on environment and 'Inconvenient Sequel'

Associated Press

NEW YORK

Al Gore admits he was frustrated upon hearing the news last month that President Trump was pulling out of the Paris Climate Accord, but since then, he's become more optimistic.

Gore worried that a U.S. withdrawal from the treaty would compel other nations to opt out of the historical pact for adopting clean energy solutions. But that's not what happened.

"The whole rest of the world has redoubled their commitment. And in this country, the governors and the mayors and the business leaders have all said, 'We're still in the agreement, and we're gonna fill the gap. We're gonna meet the U.S. commitment, regardless of what Donald Trump does," Gore told the Associated Press recently at a special screening for "An Inconvenient Sequel: Truth to Power."

It follows the 2006 Oscarwinning documentary, "An Inconvenient Truth," and continues the conversation of finding solutions for the effects of climate change, including an emphasis on renewable energy. Much like the first film, Gore is front and center in leading the discussion.

It's been a remarkable second act for Gore since winning the popular vote, but losing the Electoral College in the 2000 presidential election.

There's no question that Gore was devastated from the loss, but his stature as an important voice for environmental issues has proven equally successful, as he

"I'm under no illusion that there's any position with as much chance to do good as president of the United States, but I'm very grateful to have found another wav to serve the public interests. I'm devoting my life to this and hoping to make a big difference," Gore said.

CNN Legal Analyst Jeffrey Toobin, who also attended the premiere, agrees that Gore "had done pretty well for himself" after the disputed 2000 presidential election.

"Al Gore could have done many things after he was not inaugurated in 2001, but what he did was become the leading global spokesman for perhaps the most important scientific and environmental cause of our lifetime, and he won a Nobel Prize in the bargain. So I don't think anyone could quarrel with how Al Gore has decided to live his life,"

A big part of Gore's mission depends on convincing people that climate change is not a hoax. Instead, it's based on science that shows the global mean surface temperature continues to rise, due in part to an increase in greenhouse

So while global warming is immune to politics, the topic remains a partisan issue in the United States. That's something the for-amassed a mer vice president blames on corporate funding for political campaigns.

"The truth about the climate crisis is still inconvenient for the big carbon polluters, and the politicians that they support with their big campaign contributions and lobbying activities are scared to cross them. That's the main reason. They've spent a lot of money trying to put out false information about it," Gore said.

Still, he remains confident that the problem can be fixed.

"People are seeing through this now. Twothirds of the American people want to solve this big time. We are gonna solve it. We just need to move faster on it," Gore said.

Gore feels that change will come from the "grass roots up." That's why he spends a great deal of time training climate activists around the globe.

"We need to get more people involved. That's one of the real purposes of this movie. To tell people what they need to know, to show them that there is hope and there are solutions now, and inspire them to get involved," Gore said.

Davis Guggenheim directed the first film to box office and Oscar glory, bringing climate change into the mainstream.

The sequel, directed by Bonni Cohen and Jon Shenk picks up the conversation with more of a battle cry for saving the planet.

Knowing he was stepping into big shoes for this film, Shenk noted the importance of his predecessor's film.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Happy Birthday! In The Next Year: This solar return brings a childlike wonder: what you've experienced is only part of how it really is. Your mind will be increasingly open to new levels of depth and feeling. The social life picks up in September. A change in vour family will shift around all the roles in a fun way. You'll be honored in December. Libra and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 49, 2, 22, 48 and 17. CELEBRITY PROFILES: Fanciful friend Lisa Kudrow is a typical Leo on a mission to entertain and delight, most recently in the blockbuster comedies 'The Boss Baby" and "Table 19." Kudrow's natal sun and Mercury are in theatrical Leo, indicating that she is vibrantly happy in the spotlight. Her Sagittarius moon brings a cheerful spirit of expansion, experimentation, sophistication and worldly insight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You don't know your power. That's not your fault, though Your power has a lot to do with forces beyond your control. Stretch out and exercise vourself on many levels to find out what you can do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Stressful moments constrict your creativity and mental processing. Laughter gets everything flowing again. Keep looking for the humor. That's when you'll be at your very best.

** GEMINI (May 21-June 21) It's not selfish to want to put your best foot forward. Address your social concerns. Most center around your own self-image. This is the moment to make an improvement or nip a problem in the bud.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Record and explore new ideas. You will put some of these to the test and wind up inspiring others (through both success and failure) as you have been inspired by the greats. ∠ LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). One thing you find bothersome is pressure from people to agree to something before you're ready. A noncommittal attitude could save you down the road when you change your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Put something great on the schedule for later. To forestall your reward is to give yourself the added pleasure of anticipation. Thinking about how wonderful it will be to finally indulge may be even better than the indulgence itself.

ಭರ LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). There's nothing like a little identity crisis to wake you up to the truth. If you momentarily forget who you are today, here's a hint: The answer is somewhere close to your childhood idea of yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). For those who have access to a library and/or the internet, education is free. The will and motivation to study? Priceless. You possess this precious drive, and you will make the most of it.

*SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). One strategy is to ignore the stuff that isn't working for you and give extra nice attention to the stuff that is. Encourage all behavior that's even remotely headed in the right direction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) What energizes you will be something other than what you think it will be. So try different ways of getting your mojo flowing. Substitute a walk for a nap, a glass of water for a cup of coffee.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Either you're getting better at handling stress or you're getting better at handling life. You'll be calm, cool and collected in the very situation that used to unnerve you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Bring in something new, and throw out something old, though not necessarily in that order. Being open to change in one area of your life will lead to change in several. The next version of you 19 "Hallelujah" is coming together.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The first change of the week will be a change of heart. Venus, the love goddess of the sky, has been radiating her charms through the realm of Gemini, and it's stirred up quite a nice social swirl for many. Being the sign of sharp wit, neat trends and zippy fun, what Gemini adds to love is the addition that feels like subtraction -- levity. Communication has been easier and quicker. Romance is a breezy thing, more a meeting of like mind than a dramatic love story. But when Venus slips into her moon-child mode Monday, things begin to intensify. Cancer is the sign of mothers, and the maternal energy, which everyone reading this was born from, can be a highly complex influence over our lives. Regardless of how nurturing our mother was (or wasn't) there is always a strong imprint regarding the role of the person we relied on for life in the very earliest and most vulnerable stages of growth. Venus doesn't glide through this part of the sky so much as evolve through it, changing constantly as she comes to realize and manage the vast ocean of emotion that is relationships. No one comes out of this next Venus cycle unchanged.

The "Prime Suspect" prequel about a young Jane Tennison originally aired in England in six episodes under the name "Prime Suspect 1973." For American telecast on "Masterpiece," it was edited into three 90-minute installments, which a "Masterpiece" representative said were created by the show's producer. The change could lead to confusion, and not only for you. For example, my DVR listed the three U.S. "Tennison" installments as parts one, three and five – since each was made from two episodes.

The recent release of "Tennison" on DVD and Blu-ray contains the version that aired in Britain. (This is hardly the first time a "Masterpiece" series has gotten a trim. The same thing happened to the beloved "Downton Abbey," with its U.S. releases on disc containing the "original UK edition.") But this appears to be the end of the line for "Tennison," since ITV has decided not to make more.

In 1972, the legendary composer ("Peter Gunn," "Moon River," the "Pink Panther" theme) began hosting a syndicated TV series called "The Mancini Generation." The weekly program featured Mancini with an orchestra and celebrity guests. It ran just one season.

Is Dinah Shore still alive? When and where was she born? Any marriage and children?

The singer, TV personality and screen actress was born in Winchester, Tenn., in 1916. She died of cancer in 1994. She was married twice, first to the actor George Montgomery, with whom she had a son and a daughter. That marriage, and a brief one to Maurice Fabian Smith, a contractor and tennis player, ended in divorce. Shore also had a long relationship with actor Burt Reynolds.

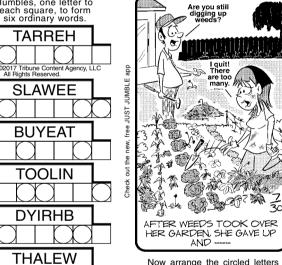

While The Washington Post called her movie career "uneventful," she was a hugely popular singer in the '40s and '50s with decades of TV work. Her TV programs started in 1951 with a variety show (known for a time as "The Dinah Shore Chevy Show") and continuing both in variety and in talk. The last series aired on the old Nashville Network from 1989 to 1991.

Stopping suicidal thoughts with ketamine

Is ketamine infusion safe for the elderly? My son's mother-in-law (age 69) has been diagnosed with major depression. She has made two suicide attempts.

I am not sure what she is taking now, but she seems apathetic, worries about everything and interacts inappropriately with family. She is almost completely unresponsive to her grandchildren. This is a total change from her personality five years ago, when she was devoted to her family and engaged with the world.

Major depression takes a térrible toll on the individual, family and friends. Suicide attempts are a clear signal that your son's mother-in-law requires expert medical intervention.

Ketamine (Ketalar) is a fascinating drug that has been used since 1962 as a general anesthetic. Over the past several years, researchers have discovered that this medication has profound antidepressant activity that kicks in within hours instead of the usual weeks of standard drugs.

A recent meta-analysis found that ketamine is effective in reducing suicidal ideation within four hours (Neuroscience and Biobe*havioral Reviews*, June 2017). Unfortunately, research has not yet shown how long this effect may last.

There is inadequate research on ketamine infusion in older patients (Expert Opinion on Pharmacotherapy, April 2017). Since this medication may alter blood pressure and heart rate, the latest recommendations from the American Psychiatric Association call for monitoring so that immediate care may be provided if necessary (JAMA Psychiatry, April 1, 2017).

My cholesterol is elevated (268). For years, my doctor has been trying to get me to take a statin. I gave in and take pravastatin at bedtime. I really am against taking a statin. Is it OK to take red yeast rice in addition to the pravastatin?

You should not take both red yeast rice and a statin. There is no significant benefit to adding red yeast rice, but the combination might be more likely to cause side effects.

Why not try the pravastatin to see if you tolerate it? Many people do. If you want to switch to red yeast rice later, be sure to discuss your plans with your physician.

You can learn more about this and other ways to reduce your cardiovascular risk in our Guide to Cholesterol Control and Heart Health. For a copy, send $3 in check or money order with a long (No. 10), stamped (70 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Graedons' People's Pharmacy, No. C-8, P.O. Box 52027, Durham, NC 27717-2027. It also can be downloaded for $2 from our website: www.

peoplespharmacy.com. My mom, who is 81, has taken a cough syrup containing promethazine and codeine for years to treat a persistent cough. Her doctor said she's been on it too long and refused to renew her prescription.

She woke up in the night with nausea and diarrhea and has not felt good since she ran out of syrup. She has chronic back pain. Are these withdrawal symptoms? Might the codeine have been helping her back pain?

Your explanation sounds plausible. Codeine is a relatively weak opioid, which might explain why her doctor didn't want her to continue on it. Stopping suddenly may have triggered her symptoms. Your mother's doctor should investigate the cause of her long-lasting cough.

Control the controller, defeat the addiction

Have you ever heard of an addict who was cured of his or her addiction because someone limited, but did not eliminate, their access to the substance or behavior in question? No, you have not. Is an addiction to gambling less harmful if the addict is only allowed to gamble five hours a week? No, it is not. The proposition is absurd.

Before I continue, a digression: I am allowed, by law, to call myself a psychologist; therefore, I am a psychologist. However, I am ever-increasingly aware that I do not have much in common with most people in my nominal profession.

In this regard, I am of the experienced opinion (38 years) that clinical psychology is more ideology than science, more fad-driven than fact-driven, and that the facts are not impressive. Does several years of supposedly harmless and graduate school make one a better advice-giver? Is any form of psychological therapy reliably effective? These questions, and many more, remain unanswered to a satisfying degree.

My digression underscores a story recently passed along to me by a highly reliable witness. A psychologist, speaking to a group of North Carolina parents, recommended against taking video-game controllers away from pre-teen and teen boys who are obviously obsessed with video games for the very reason that they are obsessed.

To be clear: Because playing video games is, according to said psychologist,

"so very important" to these they get up in the middle boys and gaming is their main social activity to boot, the controllers should not be taken away. Again, the proposition is absurd.

In the early 1980s, I publicly asserted (in this column) on the basis of observation alone that video games were addictive. I was generally dismissed, even ridiculed. The ridicule, by the way, came primarily from - you may have guessed it - other psychologists. A growing body of research now confirms my theory. Over the years, hundreds of parents have sought my advice concerning teenage boys (never a girl, by the way) who want to do nothing but play video games.

Their grades have plummeted, their personal hygiene has collapsed, they are sullen and do not want to participate in family activities, even mealtimes, of the night to "game," and they become threatening toward parents who even suggests that enough is enough.

My advice is always the same: While the boy is in school, confiscate the controller, smash it and toss the pieces in a dumpster located at least 10 miles from home - and do not ever, under any circumstances, allow one of these nefarious devices back in said household.

Without exception, the child has either gone starkraving insane or he locks himself in his room and won't come out, sometimes for days; in either event, proving that he is indeed addicted.

It generally has taken several weeks for withdrawal to run its demonic course, after which the child begins to act like, well, a child

One teen boy, upon discovering that his controller was gone, destroyed his room and would not speak to or interact with family for two weeks. Finally, he thanked his parents, telling them that he felt much, much better and was now aware of the damage he'd been doing to himself. I've heard many similar stories of recovery. Video games are doing many children great harm. The many children in question constitute a significant number of boys in the upand-coming generation.

For these boys to become authentic men, they need to be rescued. They are not going to rescue them-

McArthur among first to make aluminum furniture

ANTIQUES & COLLECTING Terry Kovel

Sometimes a designer becomes very popular with a new design, sells his products, becomes wealthy and then his designs become commonplace and he eventually goes bankrupt.

That is the sad story of Warren McArthur, a talented designer of the 1930s who was among the first to make aluminum furniture.

McArthur (1885-1961) was born in Chicago and grew up in a house designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. He went to Cornell to study mechanical engineering, and by 1914, he had filed for 10 patents for lamp designs.

He moved to Phoenix and, with his brother, owned car dealerships, a radio station and built the Arizona Biltmore. He also patented a useful adapter for a car radiator. All were

In 1929, he moved to Los Angeles and started a metal furniture business. He improved the manufacturing process with his inventions, including an aluminum that didn't tarnish and a way to permanently color the metal. The brightly colored metal furniture was popular in Hollywood, and was featured in movie theaters and

During the Depression in the 1930s, McArthur moved to New York City, and he moved to Connecticut two years later. His company made airplane seats during World War II, but went bankrupt in 1948. McArthur died in 1961.

I have a 22-piece chocolate set in excellent condition. It's marked with an "R," "Bavaria, Germany" and "warranted 18 carat gold." Each plate has a 1-inch border of gold, the cups are gold and the pitcher with lid is gold. Does the gold trim make it very

The gold trim does not mean ■ it's very valuable. The words "18 carat gold" indicate the alloy used for the gold trim is 75 percent gold, but there is very little gold used on the porcelain. A chocolate set should have a pot, creamer, sugar, six small plates, and six cups and saucers. It would sell for less than $50.

I have a large bowl marked "Z. S. & Co." with a wiggly line underneath and the word "Bavaria" under the line. The bowl is decorated with roses and has a scalloped rim. If my pieces are worth anything, I won't turn it into a bird bath.

This mark was used after 1880 bv Zeh, Scherzer & Co., a porcelain factory in Rehau, Bavaria, Germany. The company became part of Allerthal A.G., an investment company, in 1991 and porcelain production stopped in 1992. Porcelain is too fragile to be a bird bath. If the patterns is attractive, your bowl might sell well at an antiques shop. A bowl

It was smuggled into the U.S. inside tin cans that were opened with a key. Chicken Cock was a popular whiskey in Prohibition-era speakeasies such as the Cotton Club in New York City. Jazz great Duke Ellington wrote about Chicken Cock in his memoirs, referring to it as the "brand that was served in a tin can." After Prohibition, the brand was trademarked by American Medicinal Spirits Co., but in the 1950s, a fire in the distillery meant the end of production. A few years ago, the brand was revived, and Chicken Cock blended whiskies are now being made in Charleston, S.C., and sold in metal cans. Your Chicken Cock pint flask is worth

I have heard that some antiques and vintage items are dangerous to own. Is this true? I am afraid to use my orange Fiesta dishes because friends say they were made with uranium and are radioactive.

Yes, some antique medicines, Yes, some antique income cosmetics and other objects can be dangerous or even fatal. Most vintage or antique things you buy at shops or shows have been cleaned or checked for dangerous things. Some are mercury (barometers), flammable materials (stove polish that explodes when heated), arsenic (cleanser for complexion), opium (medicine to relieve pain), morphine (to sooth teething babies), alcohol (a high percentage in bitters, medicines, etc.) and, of course, anything in a bumpy poison bottle or a bottle labeled poison. Uranium was used in the clay or glaze of some items before the strict food and drug laws were passed in the U.S., but some countries still use glazes that are not safe. Your orange dishes are safe to use. If you find forgotten drugstore stock, clean it carefully in a well-ventilated area. Empty all medicine bottles; children may try to drink something.

Some types of fumes can damage paper. Don't store your collection near the kitchen, garage, barbecue pit or freshly painted areas.

George RR Martin working on next 'Song of Ice and Fire'

George RR Martin says the next "Song of Ice and Fire" book has a real chance of coming out in 2018. But don't count on it yet.

In a weekend posting on his website, Martin wrote that he's working hard on "The Winds of Winter." the long-awaited sixth volume in the series adapted into the HBO hit "Game of Thrones." He added that he has "good days and bad days" and is still months away from finishing. Meanwhile, he thinks it's "likely" that he'll have his first "Fire and Blood" book out by late 2018 or early 2019. The new book is a history of House Targaryen, which has the motto "Fire and Blood.' His conclusion: one, maybe two Westeros books in 2018.

'William' tries to be buddies with his woman friends

Dear Annie: Am I being selfish and perhaps jealous, too?

My partner of five years, "William," says he is more comfortable in the company of women than men. William has revealed to me that while he was growing up, his father was domineering and not compassionate or understanding. Instead, William had a close and supportive relationship with his

William is kind, and successful in his field, and we have a warm and loving relationship.

But I feel myself tense up when he makes an effort to become buddies with my female friends. When he "notices" them (pays attention to them in an innocent way) one can see they are flattered and, of course, are drawn to him. I am not comfortable with him developing rapports with my friends.

I would appreciate knowing what you would suggest. Perhaps I should add that I do not fear he'd ever be unfaithful with any of these friends.

NEED ADVICE

Dear Need Advice: Your partner's warmth toward your friends is an extension of his love for you. Count yourself lucky; I'm sure many women reading this wish their boyfriends or husbands would make more of an effort with their friends. As long as you trust him, and it sounds like you do, you have nothing to worry about. Try to use positive seij-taik (about yourseij and your relationship) to combat negative, insecure thoughts. The more you indulge in speculation, the more you feed your jealousy – and that greeneved monster has a way of wreaking havoc where there was none.

Dear Annie: I go out to eat with girlfriends often. One friend in particular has the habit of pulling out her phone halfway through the meal. She then proceeds to show everyone the latest video clips she likes on Facebook or pictures of her grandkids. I feel like this is thoughtless and rude, but I don't know what to say!

The other day at brunch, several other friends copied her after she initiated it and started doing the same thing. Am I the only one who likes conversation anymore or am I out of step?

SPEAK UP OR PUT UP?

Dear Speak Up or Put Up: I believe phones belong on the table during a meal no more than elbows do. But I think you might have to let this go for two reasons. One, your friend isn't ignoring everyone at the table to stare at her phone; she's using it as a way to share things. Think of it as the modernday equivalent to passing around wallet photos of the grandkids. And two, you're outnumbered. You might try proposing a nophones rule, but be prepared for the group to veto Senior Corps Retired Senior Volunteer Program, located in First Presbyterian Church of Youngstown, 201 Wick Ave., is under the Corp. for National and Community Service. It is a volunteer program with the mission of linking volunteers, age 55 and over, with a variety of volunteer opportunities within their community. There are sites throughout Mahoning and Trumbull counties with opportunities such as senior companionship, transportation to museums, meal delivery for homebound seniors and construction. There is no maximum requirement of volunteer hours. There is a short application, and the program coordinator will meet with volunteers to match them with their preferred site based on their interests, skills and location. Also needed are tutors for Project M.O.R.E. (Mentoring in Ohio for Reading Excellence) in the Youngstown City Schools. Tutors will receive one hour of training and work one-on-one with a student in a 30 minute session. Training will be scheduled this summer, and tutors are needed for a fall start at all Youngtown City PK-8 buildings. George Gund III, who died in 2013 from stomach cancer, donated 55 pieces of Japanese and Korean art to the Cleveland museum. A portion of that donation is on display.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported that Gund coowned the Cavaliers with his brother Gordon Gund from 1983 to 2005.

Items displayed in the exhibition primarily include paintings in ink on paper, large ceramic jars and delicate porcelain containers used to store tea.

Bear-paw moccasins stitched by Native Americans in the 1700s and pieces of pottery from three centuries before will be part of an exhibit about New Orleans' early decades for the city's tricentennial next year.

The 15th-century Mississippian pottery lent by the University of Mississippi and the moccasins lent by the Musie du quai Branly in Paris are among dozens of objects lent by museums for the free exhibit, which opens Feb. 27 at The Historic New Orleans

"New Orleans, the Founding Era" will begin with the Native American tribes in the area before French settlers arrived and continue with different groups of European settlers and the forced arrivals of enslaved Africans

The museum also is preparing a third building with the largest exhibit space it's ever had, with plans for fall 2018 opening of "Art of the City: Postmodern to Post-Katrina."

Museum, man team up for endowment to maintain lighthouse

JAMESTOWN, R.I.

A museum in Rhode Island is working with a Jamestown resident to establish an endowment to maintain the historic Beavertail Lighthouse.

Resident Jim Buttrick has agreed to match every donation up to $500,000 made to the Beavertail Lighthouse Museum Associations - creating a potential $1 million endowment. The Newport Daily News reports the effort has raised about $200,000 so far, with an expected additional $200,000 from pledges.

The endowment will be solely dedicated to the maintenance and upkeep of the lighthouse at the southern end of Conanicut Island.

Buttrick says he loves old buildings and wants to save the lighthouse since it's one of the oldest of its kind in the country.

More RI beaches closed to swimming due to bacteria

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Several more Rhode Island beaches have been recommended closed to swimming by public health officials due to high bacteria counts.

The Department of Health on Wednesday recommended closing Hazards Beach in Newport, Plum Beach in North Kingstown and Sandy Point Beach in Portsmouth.

More than half a dozen beaches statewide are closed because of poor water quality. Those include Oakland and Conimicut Point Beaches in Warwick; Third Beach and Peabody's Beach in Middletown; and Warren town beach. The department says it's recommending reopening Barrington town beach.

Tourism in Newark? 50 years after riots, city says it's time

A COMEBACK STORY

By BETH J. HARPAZ AP Travel Editor

NEWARK, N.J.

Tourism in Newark? You might not think of it as a destination, but boosters say Newark is ready for visitors as part of a comeback

A company called Have You Met Newark? has taken more than 2,000 visitors on walking tours and bar crawls. Tour company founder Emily Manz points out everything from Nasto's ice cream parlor, made famous in an episode of "The Sopranos," to a church, St. Stephan's, that appeared in the movie "War of the Worlds.

The Greater Newark Convention and Visitors Bureau has started taking travel writers to see attractions such as the Newark Museum and the Ironbound, a neighborhood known for taurants and shops.

And in August, the "100 Things to Do Before You Die" series will publish a Newark guidebook written by Lauren Craig, who fell in love with Newark while attending Rutgers Law School and calls herself the city's "glambassador."

But this summer also marks 50 years since riots scarred the city.

"The perception of Newark being unfriendly, dangerous, dirty is something that has been ingrained in people for many years," Craig said. "I fight against that every day.

HAHNE & CO. A SYMBOL OF REBIRTH

Officials point to a massive brick building, vacant since the Hahne department store closed in 1987, as a symbol of Newark's rebirth. The Hahne building reopened this year with apartments and businesses, including a Whole Foods. Celebrity chef Marcus Samuelsson plans a restaurant there. An arts incubator, Express Newark, hosts workshops and exhibits onsite, including a jazz history show organized by Rutgers University's Institute of Jazz Studies.

On a recent day, another downtown gem, Military Park, was busy with kids riding a carousel, a jazz band playing and the after-work crowd mingling at a trendy park eatery, BURG.

"I've been waiting for this," said Jeremy Johnson, executive director of Newark Arts. "No one is asking me if the National Guard is going to protect them when they come to Newark. They asked me that 20 years ago. So this is the dream."

ATTRACTIONS, HOTELS

Destination Newark has a lot to offer: New Jersey Devils hockey games and more at the Prudential Center, concerts and shows at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center and Newark International Airport, among America's 20 busiest airports.

Newark Penn Station is just 20 minutes from Manhattan via PATH, NJ Transit or Amtrak trains. That makes Newark a viable lodging option for visitors to New York City. Downtown Newark hotels include the historic Robert Treat, which has hosted four U.S. presidents; the Hilton at Newark Penn Station, popular with airline crews; and the Indigo boutique hotel.

Treasures at the Newark Museum, a 10-minute walk from Newark Penn Station, include an 1885 mansion called the Ballantine House, a room of paintings by Joseph Stella, a Tibetan altar visited by the Dalai Lama and impressive collections of Native American and African-American art. 'I go there as much as I can," said Hrag Vartanian of Brooklyn, N.Y., editor-inchief of online arts publication Hyperallergic.com. "But it's amazing to me how many people have never heard of the Newark Museum.'

Before hopping the train back to New York, Vartanian heads to the Ironbound, where dining options range from old-school bacalhau at Seabra's Marisqueira to tapas with a hipster vibe at Mompou.

The Ballantine House and the Ironbound are featured in Craig's "100 Things to Do

Lauren Craig, who calls herself the "glambassador" of Newark, N.J., points to a "Newark Vs Everybody" T-shirt on display at the Off the Hanger and ANE boutique on Linden Street in Newark. Craig is the author of the new travel guidebook "100 Things to Do in Newark Before You Die" and says the store, which sells fashion, art and decor, is one of her favorite local spots.

in Newark Before You Die" book, too. On a recent day, she also took a visitor to the Off the Hanger boutique, where "Newark Vs Every-body" T-shirts are prominently displayed; the Jimenez Tobacco cigar lounge and bar; Casa D'Paco, an Ironbound restaurant; and Gateway Project Spaces, an art gallery adjacent to Newark Penn Station.

At one point on Craig's whirlwind tour, a taxi driver disputed the idea that Newark was ready for tourists.
"I beg to differ," Craig said politely, then said to a guest, You see what I'm fighting against?"

THE CITY PAST AND PRESENT

Of course, problems persist. Newark's population declined from 400,000 in the 1960s to 280,000 today. Thirty percent of residents live in poverty. Crime remains a top concern, though it's decreasing: Newark is statistically safer than Washington, D.C., Atlanta and Memphis, Tenn.

But Newark's decline in the last half of the 20th century wasn't isolated. Many urban areas lost population as factories closed and white middle-class Americans fled to the suburbs. Even Newark's riots were part of a larger pattern: Riots rocked more than 100 cities in 1967, and many - including Newark's, which erupted after the arrest of a black cabdriver – were sparked by allegations of police brutality amid racial inequality and lack of opportunity in black communities. More than 20 people died in Newark's riots; millions of dollars in property damage was sustained.

Karin Aaron, CEO of the Greater Newark Convention and Visitors Bureau, left the city in the early '90s because she "didn't see any progress," even though her mother of-ten spoke about "how great Newark used to be." Aaron moved back in 2016 and believes a renaissance is underway, saying: "Everybody loves a comeback story."

Trick-roof Mazda should make good fit for the MX-5's expanding fan base

By MALCOLM GUNN www.wheelbasemedia.com

PORTS CARS REPRESENT DRIVING fun in its most passionate form, and the Mazda MX-5 has helped bring enjoyment to more than one million enthusiasts around the world since

For 2017, the current MX-5 (née Miata) roadster is joined by the MX-5 RF, which stands for Retractable Fastback.

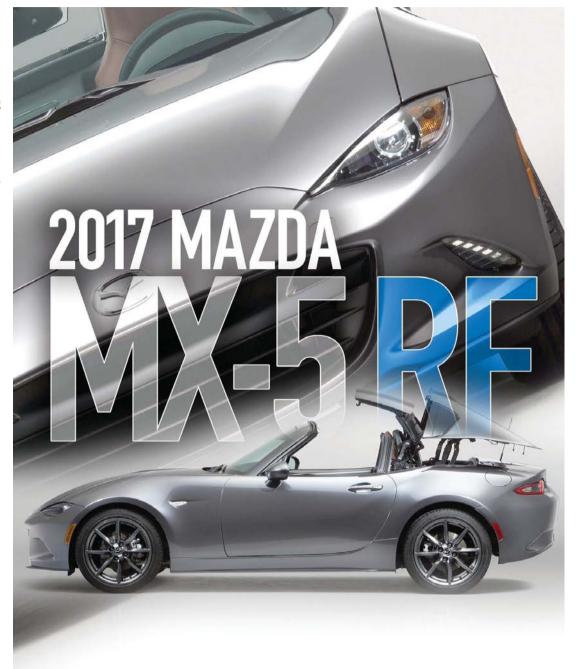

Although the RF looks like a coupe, Mazda couldn't help but fiddle with the MX-5's formula to create a degree of open-top touring, as it did with the previous generation's Power Retractable Hard Top (PRHT) variant.

This time, though, the two-section top folds and drops in behind the seats in a power-operated ballet that involves briefly raising the rear roof portion. Once the lid is stowed, the remaining roof drops back into place. The driver can monitor the process from the leftside gauge pod that live-streams the

Would it have been simpler and cheaper for Mazda to install targa-style detachable roof panels? Probably, but stowing them in the trunk would have eliminated much of the already limited luggage space. As such, trunk volume for regular convertible and the RF are identical.

Whether the roof is in place or stowed, the RF is a sweet-looking coupe. The flying buttress roofline (the rear window is inset) is reminiscent of the 1980s Ferrari 308's faux fastback, which isn't a bad thing. MX-5 roaster owners

What makes some cars last longer than others?

By Ray Magliozzi

Dear Car Talk:

Reading the recent question from Coop about his '95 Mini that's crapping out after 99,500 miles made me wonder why some brands of cars start falling apart at 100,000 miles, and others (Hondas, for example) trundle along with few problems for 200,000 or even 300,000 miles. Is it good genes, good diet, clean living or what? Your comments, please. - Steve

Yes. It's mostly good design and good manufacturing.

I remember as recently as 10 years ago, we'd have a Toyota Camry in the shop with 180,000 miles on it, and the engine would be running as quietly as if it had 18,000 miles on it; you might not even know it was running. And in the next bay, there'd be another car with 80,000 miles on it that was rattling like a loose set of false teeth in the outhouse on a cold morning.

Now, all cars have gotten better in the past few decades. It's important to give credit where it's due. Overall, all cars are more reliable, better made and last longer than ever. But some still are better than others. Consumer Reports (which tracks reliability as well as anyone) lists the 10 most reliable cars every year. And in its most recent list, Toyota (which also makes Lexus) took five of the top 10 spots.

Why is that? Well, we know that Toyota long ago decided to stake its reputation on reliability. It made that the top priority. It could have prioritized styling - and if you've seen a Camry in the past 35 years, you know it didn't do that. It could have emphasized exciting performance – and if you've driven a Camry in the past 35 years, you know it didn't do that, either.

What it did do is put a lot of effort into designing parts that last, manufacturing them well and assembling them so that the spaces between the moving parts (called "tolerances") are tiny. That makes engines run quietly and run longer, since the pieces aren't knocking the heck out of each other a thousand times a minute.

In some cases, those improvements involved better design and engineering. In some cases, they involved training and incentivizing employees. And in other cases, they involved spending a little more money on parts or materials.

Other manufacturers had other top priorities. Some focused on performance, some on styling, some on the next quarterly return for their shareholders. Toyota bet that if it could gain a reputation for building cars that were reliable and lasted a long time, it would eventually pay off. And

Now, there still are people for whom reliability is not the very first thing on their wish list. Some are moved more by styling, some by fuel economy, comfort, safety or high performance. And some just say, "Screw the reliability ratings, I want that cute little Fiat!" And there's nothing wrong with that. Caveat emptor.

But the reason Toyotas and Hondas have long been leaders in reliability and durability is because they made those things priorities over many years, and measured and improved them month after month after month. And while others have gotten closer, they're still working to catch up.

Chevy Camaro stays true to its roots after 50th anniversary

By Casey Williams Chicago Tribune (TNS)

As the 50th anniversary celebration winds down for the Chevrolet Camaro, it's right back where it started: playing second wheel to Ford's Mustang in the sales charts. Yet Camaro carves a distinct place in pony car Americana both past and present, renowned for stoplight sprints, countless first dates, and pacing the Indianapolis 500 nine times.

'Customers appreciate engine horsepower and better handling and how it makes them feel inside," said Todd Christensen, Camaro marketing manager. "There's a lot of passion with Camaro owners that they bring into the Chevy brand."

Camaro was launched for model vear 1967 to counter Ford's Mustang and give baby boomers something unique in Chevy showrooms.

Chevrolet already offered the Corvair, Chevelle and Corvette, but the Camaro was sportier than a Chevelle, more powerful than the Corvair and was affordable, unlike Corvette. It was quick too. Car and Driver ran a 1968 Z28 0-60 mph in 5.3 seconds, one-tenth quicker than a Mustang with the same-sized 302 cubic-inch engine.

Designers abandoned Coke-bottle styling with the second generation in 1970, conveying Camaro from the muscle car era, through disco, and into the Reagan administration. Styling initially cribbed Ferrari with large egg-crate grilles and fastback rooflines, but added plastic bumpers and a lot more weight to comply with safety regulations. By 1980, V-8-powered Camaros ran 0-60 mph in 9.5 seconds.

Times had changed, but Camaro was relatively quick and looked handsome. Unlike Mustang, which evolved from a big muscle car to the ridiculous Mustang II - the Pinto-esque Shetland of pony cars – Camaro was unswerving.

"Among classic Camaros, I have come to appreciate the second-generation cars with their Ferrari-like front ends," said Larry Edsall, author of "Camaro: A Legend Reborn." "Camaro never went through a Mustang II phase."

The smaller, sharper third-generation 1982 Camaro needed less fuel to be fun. Base models had four-cylinder engines, but the 235-horsepower IROC filled the dreams of teenagers' minds and walls. A sleek 1993 restyle eventually begat the 325-horsepower SS. Performance was back, but sales were kneecapped by SUV popularity, sending Camaro on hiatus after 2002. Sales were about one-third of

The restrained styling of the first generation was gone, replaced by ever-longer noses, greenhouse canopies and cheap plastic. Camaro needed to return to the style and performance that originally made it popular.

Soul-searching took eight years, but when Tom Peters' retro-modern fifth-generation debuted for 2010, sales surpassed Mustang's (81,299 vs. 73,716). Buyers drew quick connections to the first-generation models and throttled engines as diverse as a 30-mpg V-6 or 580-horsepower supercharged V-8. An independent rear suspension placed ride and handling beyond Mustang's reach (temporarily).

"The fifth and sixth generations took more of their lineage from the first generation," Christensen said. "It got us into the pony car wars, set the standards. We sold high performance for those who value that, plus affordable models with smaller engines – same as today."

No automotive rivalry is more intense than Mustang vs. Camaro. While the original Mustang sold 559,451 in 1965, Camaro's first year saw just 220,906. Camaro out-sold Mustang when new models were introduced, but trailed after.

Solid rear axles diminished ride and handling on both, but Mustang's styling created a closer bond to the original. Virtually no design traits were shared between 1967 and 2002 Camaros. It was a car young people did not understand, and for which older generations felt Camaro sales led after the 2010 overhaul, but the redesigned 2015 Mustang debuted with a standard independent rear suspension and drove like an Audi. Ford vanquished its foe in 2016. Compared with the Mustang's wide exotic stance, Camaro's conservative restyle on Cadillac's ATS architecture did nothing to halt the sales slide.

"The worst thing Chevrolet could do is start discounting Camaros in order to bump sales numbers up," said Ed Hellwig, executive editor at Edmunds.com "It needs to stick to its plan and drum up interest with small upgrades and special edition models, a tactic Ford has traditionally used with Mustang."

For 2018, the 1LE Track Package adds a carbon fiber wing, front dive planes and adjustable suspension.

"Sales wars are nice, but at the expense of incentives, not so much," Christensen said. "The car is selling at a pretty good clip. The current sixth generation went more upscale; the base price is higher. The affordable 2.0-liter engine does well, but we lost some who bought the cheaper trim before."

For some, there's no substitute for a Chevrolet Camaro.

"While Ford's Mustang had a big head start, the Camaro was a Chevy, and no self-respecting Chevrolet fan would ever own a Ford," Edsall said. "It went out of production for a few years, but when it came back, it established a format for the 'modern muscle car."

Camaros now handle as well as they accelerate and are loaded with technology like Bose audio, wireless phone charging, Wi-Fi hotspots, and Apple CarPlay/Android Auto. Drivers continue to complain about blind spots, but rear cameras and blindspot sensors help. Available Magnetic Ride Control adjusts the suspension in real time.

Camaro serves as Chevrolet's affordable sport coupe with the turbofour at $25,905, a junior Corvette in SS trim under $38,000, and all-out track beast ZL1 for $61,140. Choose the base turbo-four that achieves 31 mpg or the ZL1's 650-horsepower supercharged V-8 that shoves it 0-60 mph in 3.5 seconds.

"The Camaro is one of Chevrolet's longest-running and most well-known nameplates," Hellwig said. "Even if people don't buy it in big numbers, it's a stylish highperformance coupe that makes it an aspirational car – something every brand needs."

No matter what, Camaro will remain true to its mission.

"It should stand for the same things: Beautiful styling and performance value," Christensen said. "It has to have that recipe. Tastes change, but it will remain an enthusiasts' get noticed, but RF owners will draw crowds. With the right tires on the RF, owners might also be encouraged to drive the RF all year long instead of garaging it for the winter. That's where most roadsters outside Sunbelt areas tend to

Other than the added top-mechanism switch, the roadster and RF interiors are identical. Both require a degree of entry/exit dexterity with the tops in place and the seats are snug fitting, but at least there's plenty of legroom for taller drivers. Obvious drawbacks include a pair of cup holders between the seats, placed so far back that they're virtually impossible to access. Same goes for the CD slot – located just above the cupholders - below the storage cubby that's sunk into the rearmost interior wall. Note that there's no glove box or even map pockets lining the door panels.

Drivers will likely be too engaged in piloting their steed and absorbing the engine's sweet sounds to concern themselves with such matters. As with the roadster, the RF runs with a 2.0-liter four-cylinder that makes 155 horsepower and 148 pound-feet of torque. The previous MX-5's 2.0-liter was rated at 167 horses and 140 pound-feet.

There's a choice of a six-speed manual transmission or a six-speed automatic, but those who prefer selecting the gears themselves will revel in the shifter's short travel and the clutch pedal's equally direct action.

Fuel economy is equal to the roadster's at 26 mpg in the city and 33 highway (26/35 for the automatic).

In other ways, the RF behaves much like the roadster. Both excel at taking the curves with great precision and absorbing road bumps and lumps without becoming unsettled. While the ride quality is astounding, the road noise at low speeds is pronounced and even

The RF weighs about 115 pounds more than the roadster, so there is, technically, a slight performance penalty, but it's not noticeable. To tell, you would need drive both cars back to back.

What's very apparent are the rear blind spots that are due to the RF's wide roof pillars. You'll need to properly adjust the outside mirrors and pay close attention to the blind-spot monitor that, fortunately, is standard equip-

The base RF Club lists for $32,400 (about $2,750 more than the soft top). This includes a complete array of comfort/convenience/safety items, plus a premium nine-speaker Bose, brand audio system.

The cushier RF Grand Touring deletes the sport-tuned suspension and limited-slip differential in manualtransmission Club versions, but adds heated leather-trimmed seats, climate control, navigation system and lanedeparture warning.

A Brembo-brand brake package is optional, but again only with the RF Club.

Ultimately, the RF lends an air of sophistication to an iconic sports car that originally shunned such measures. But with changing styles and attitudes, the trick-roof Mazda should make good fit for the MX-5's expanding fan base.

A message from the Home Builders & Remodelers Association of the Valley

What to know about home inspections

by RICH ABEL Special to The Vindicator

HETHER YOU'RE closing on your first house or your fifth, buying a home can be both exciting and overwhelming at the same time. But don't let your long to-do list deter you from completing one of the most important items: scheduling a home inspection.

Although not required by law, many lenders do require a home inspection, which helps protect the large investment you are about to make. It's important to learn as much as you can about the physical condition of the home before you buy it, to ensure it's a sound investment. And while an inspection cannot guarantee the condition of a home, the inspector can alert you to items that need repair or any safety

Here are a few things to keep in mind about the home inspection process.

Inspections Should Happen As Soon as Possible

It is the buyer's responsibility to schedule and pay for the inspection. You should schedule the home inspection as soon as you can after your offer has been accepted. This ensures you'll have enough time to request repairs or to get out of the contract if the inspector discovers a deal-breaker for you.

INSPECTIONS DESCRIBE THE BASIC PHYSICAL CONDITION OF A HOME

An inspector's job is examine the current condition of a house. This includes pointing out what components and systems may need major repair or replacement. The inspector will examine the home's exterior, including steps, porches, decks, chimneys, roof, windows and Inspectors also look inside the home to examine the attic, electrical components, plumbing, heating and air conditioning, basement/crawlspaces and garages. A home inspection will not include cosmetic issues that do not affect the working condition of the home.

BE THERE ON INSPECTION DAY

As the buyer, it's important for you to be at the home for the inspection. Ask the inspector if you can follow him or her around to better understand what they are examining and to ask questions if needed. This is a great way for you to get to know your new home and become familiar with areas that may need

After the inspection, the inspector will provide you with a report. You can then determine if you will ask the seller to make any repairs or give you a credit to make the repairs on your own. It's important to keep in mind that no home is perfect. But the inspection report should help you determine if it's the perfect home for you.

INSPECTIONS FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION HOMES

If you're buying a newly constructed home, the process is slightly different than the inspection for existing homes. Before you go to settlement, you and your builder will do a walk-through to conduct a final inspection. This walkthrough provides an opportunity to spot items which may need to be corrected or adjusted, learn about the way your new home works and ask questions about anything you don't understand.

Create a checklist when inspecting the house. The list should include everything that needs attention, and you and your builder should agree to a timetable for repairs. It is important that you be thorough and observant during the walk-through. Examine the surfaces of counters, fixtures, floors and walls carefully for possible damage. Sometimes disputes arise because a buyer may discover a gouge in a counter top after move-in, and there is no way to prove whether it was caused by the builder's workers or the buyer's movers.

Agents inducted into Howard Hanna President's Circle of Excellence

Special to The Vindicator

Howard Hanna has accounced that Geri Castor of the Canfield office and Karen Skerkavich of the Poland office are both now members of the company's exclusive President's Circle of Excellence.

CASTOR

The elite group celebrates the most successful and committed veteran agents of Howard Hanna.

Once a year, they meet to network, celebrate achievements, plan for the next year, and elect new members or officers.

To be considered for membership in the President's Circle, an agent must meet the following criteria:

- have been with the company for at least 15 years;
- had $65 million in sales or 600 units sold during that time; and had $4.5 million in sales or 40 units sold each year for the past three years.

Gina Shutrump, Manager of the Canfield office, is proud of Castor for her accomplishment.

"Geri Castor has been one of the top producing agents at Howard Hanna for many years. We are very proud of her induction into the President's Circle of Excellence," said Shutrump. "Based on her many career achievements, Geri is well deserving of this prestigious Rebekah Rouser, Poland office Manager, is also delighted that Skerkavich will be joining this admired group.

"The amount of experience that Karen has cannot be matched. President's Circle is an excellent way to recognize her experience, loyalty and sales production," she said.

Smart conservation strategies for drought

by METROSERVICES

Special to The Vindicator

Drought can affect just about any area of the country at any time. Water conservation remains the most important consideration during times of drought. Drought preparedness can make riding out the weather that much easier.

The National Drought Mitigation Center defines drought as "a deficiency of precipitation over an extended period of time." Drought indices vary depending on geographic location. What would be a drought in one area may be entirely normal conditions in another. Surviving drought that results in a water shortage and impacts quality of life may require government intervention and the cooperation of citizens and homeowners.

Even if drought is not typically accompanied by the kinds of warnings associated with floods and certain storms, it remains dangerous. Statistics Brain reports that, between the years of 1980 to 2014, roughly 19,000 people a year lost their lives due to the effects of drought.

Drought may be most associated with arid regions, but it is not exclusive to deserts. For instance, drought is a problem in Canada, a country often associated with cold weather. As early as the end of March 2017, the Canadian Drought Monitor indicated large areas of abnormally dry conditions in British Columbia, Alberta, Yukon, and Saskatchewan, with smaller pockets of abnormally dry areas in Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Novia Scotia, Newfoundland and Labrador.

Conserving water is the utmost priority during times of drought. Just a few changes to daily habits can have a sizable impact.

- · Check all plumbing for leaks and have any leaks repaired.
- Install aerators and flow restrictors on faucets.
- · Choose energy- and water-efficient appliances.
- Install low-volume toilets, which can use less than half of the water of
- Reduce reliance on sink disposals for getting rid of food waste.
- Never use fresh water when recycled water can be used safely. For example, collected rainwater can be repurposed to water plants and outdoor landscapes.

- Only wash dishes in a dishwasher with a full load.
- Rely on compostable or recyclable paper dishes during times of big water restrictions to cut down on dishwashing.
- Collect "cool" water when heating up the shower or sink water for washing. Use it to clean areas of the home or water plants.
  - Decline water at restaurants unless you plan to drink it.

- Spread mulch in garden beds and aerate the lawn to help the landscape conserve water.
- Store drinking water in refillable containers in the refrigerator.
- Install irrigation devices that channel rainwater, or use root-delivery systems to water landscapes more efficiently.
- Cover pools and spas to reduce water evaporation.
- Use a commercial car wash that recycles water.
- Share successful water-saving strategies with others in your community.

Items to improve outdoor living spaces

by METROSERVICES

Special to The Vindicator

The popularity of outdoor living spaces has been growing for years. A 2014 study from the home remodeling and design platform Houzz found that 56 percent of homeowners were making updates to improve their yards for entertaining. Similarly, nearly 60 percent of architectural practices surveyed by the American Institute of Architects in 2016 said outdoor living spaces were popular features in the homes they built.

Outdoor living spaces may also be sound investments for homeowners looking to improve the resale value of their properties. According to Remodeling magazine's 2017 "Cost vs. Value" report, outdoor living spaces returned between 55 and 71 percent of homeowners' initial investments at resale.

When planning an outdoor living space, homeowners with ample back-yards have much to work with. However, to make the most of the space while simultaneously hoping to get as strong a return on their investments as possible, homeowners should look to create spaces that offer broad appeal and are not too personalized. The following are some popular outdoor living space features homeowners may want to consider.

OUTDOOR KITCHENS

Outdoor kitchens allow homeowners to prepare more than just traditional backyard barbecue fare. A standalone charcoal grill in the backyard might get the job done, but a built-in gas grill complete with burners and surrounding granite countertop makes for a more functional outdoor entertaining space.

BARS

Indoor entertaining areas often include bars, so it makes sense that homeowners want to include a place to prepare and serve beverages to their guests. Homeowners with room in their budgets may want to install wet bars where they can rinse mixers, glasses and other items needed to prepare drinks for their guests.

WARMING FEATURES

Features that can keep homeowners and their guests warm after the sun sets include outdoor fireplaces and firepits. A 2016 survey conducted by the American Society of Landscape Architects found that fireplaces and firepits were the most popular outdoor design element in 2016. Such features can provide a focal point in the backyard while also extending the outdoor living season into autumn and even early winter.

PORCH SPACE

Outdoor living spaces are often found in the backyard, but homeowners with bigger front yards than backyards may want to expand or open their porch spaces to create more space outside. Porch swings and rocking chairs provide a great place to relax, and porch spaces are covered, meaning homeowners can continue to enjoy time outside even when it begins to rain.

Outdoor living spaces are growing in popularity. Homeowners who want to capitalize on this trend can do so in various ways.

mand a robot to do your chores or finish your homework? Inventors have been dreaming of artificial people for centu-

chanical knight more than 500 years ago. Today, robots do all kinds of jobs (although the chore-and-homework robot may still be in the future). This week, The Mini Page explores the different ways these mechanical tools are used. WHAT'S A ROBOT?
