Remains of woman found in Campbell; Youngstown police investigate

YOUNGSTOWN

A man and a woman, both of Youngstown, are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court today facing abuse-of-a-corpses charges in connection with the discovery of human remains that had been in a basement freezer in a Campbell home for a week.

Arrested by Youngstown Police on Saturday and Sunday, respectively, and incarcerated in Mahoning County jail were Arturo Novoa, 31, and Katrina Layton, 34, both of 1625 Mahoning Ave.

Novoa was arrested at his job in the kitchen of a Boardman restaurant and Layton at her residence, both without incident. Layton may also be charged with obstructing justice, said Youngstown Police Lt. Doug Bobovnyik.

The detective said the cause of death and identity of what is believed to be a female found in the freezer will be determined by an autopsy performed by the Cuyahoga County Coroner's office.

Bobovnyik said he expects the results of the autopsy to be known more quickly than usual because of the high-profile na-

CAMPBELL

When Delphine Baldwin-Casey first joined the Youngstown Police Department in 1978, she used to pray that she could fade into the background during roll call at the start of every shift.

Baldwin-Casey

Baldwin-Casey, who was then 27, had joined the department just as women were first being permitted to go out on patrol. Some of the veteran cops were not happy about the changes, Baldwin-Casey said.

"The sexist things that they would say, you would be sued for now," Baldwin-Casey said. "It was all geared to make women fail."

Baldwin-Casey, who describes herself as "stubborn," said those remarks hardened her resolve. She said the other officers took her on the types of calls that rookies wouldn't ordinarily see.

She remembers one instance, when her co-workers told her to check out a basement. There was a man inside with his head blown off. When she came back outside, Baldwin-Casey acted nonchalant and quipped that the man had a problem because he could no longer wear a hat.

She then walked around the corner, so the other officers wouldn't see her throw up.

Baldwin-Casey, who retired from the Youngstown Police Department in 2010, was the first woman to become a front-lines supervisor there. She is marking another milestone this year, as the first black female officer

US must pull 755 out of Russia

PUTIN RETALIATES AGAINST US SANCTIONS WITH EMBASSY OUSTERS

Associated Press

MOSCOW

Russian President Vladimir Putin said Sunday the United States would have to cut its embassy and consulate staff in Russia by 755, heightening tensions between Washington and Moscow three days after the U.S. Congress approved sanctions against Russia.

Putin

In response, the U.S. State Department deemed it "a regrettable and uncalled for act."

Russian's Foreign Ministry ordered a reduction by Sept. 1 in the number of U.S. diplomatic personnel in Russia. It said it is ordering the U.S. Embassy to limit the number of embassy and consular employees in the country to 455 in response to approval of the new package of American sanctions. The White House has said U.S. President Donald Trump would sign those sanctions into law.

The legislation, which also targets Iran and North Korea, seeks to punish Moscow for meddling in the 2016 U.S. election and for its military aggression in Ukraine and Syria.

"We had hoped that the situation will somehow change, but apparently if it changes, it won't be soon," Putin said in an interview televised on Rossiya 1, explaining why Moscow decided to retaliate. "I thought it was the time to show that we're not going to leave it without an answer."

Rookie, veteran YPD cops enjoy run-ins on field

City police renew old softball rivalry

By JORDYN GRZELEWSKI
jgrzelewski@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

Friendly insults volleyed across the field just as fast as softballs when city police officers played recently at Pemberton Park on the city's South Side.

The game brought back a long-standing tradition that pits veteran police officers against officers who recently joined the city police department. The game hasn't been played for several years, and with an influx of new hires in recent years, officers decided it would be a good time to bring it back.

"It's a new rivalry," said Lt. Gerard Slattery, who helped organize the game. "We've had a lot of new officers hired the last few years, and they're itching to take on the old men."

"They're in for a rude awakening," he joked.

The players on the rookie team were even more confident in their abilities. From the sidelines and the dugout, the younger officers were quick to point out their superiors' ages, cracking jokes about AARP cards

Budget Director Mick Mulvaney gestures as he speaks during the daily press briefing at the White House in Washington. The White House is stepping up demands that the Senate resume efforts to repeal and replace former President Barack Obama's health care law. Asked if no other legislative business should be taken up until the Senate acts again on health care, Mulvaney on Sunday responded "yes" and suggested the Senate continue working through August if necessary.

Pass health bill now or else, White House tells Senate

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
The White House stepped up demands Sunday for revived congressional efforts on health care and suggested senators cancel their entire summer break, if needed, to pass legislation after failed votes last week.

Aides said President Donald Trump is prepared in the coming days to end required payments to insurers under the Affordable Care Act as part of a bid to let "Obamacare implode" and force the Senate to act.

It was all part of a weekend flurry of Trump tweets and other statements insisting the seven-year GOP quest to repeal former President Barack Obama's signature legislative achievement was not over.

"The president will not accept those who said it's, quote, 'Time to move on,'" White House adviser Kellyanne Conway said. Those were the words used by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., after the early Friday morning defeat of the GOP proposal.

Conway said Trump was deciding whether to act on his threat to end cost-sharing reduction payments, which are aimed at trimming out-of-pocket costs for lower-income people. "He's going to make that decision this week, and that's a decision that only he can make," Conway said.

For seven years, Republicans have promised that once they took power, they would scrap Obama's overhaul and pass a replacement. But that effort crashed most recently in the Senate on Friday, and that's when McConnell said it was time to focus on other policy matters.

Republicans have a 52-48 majority in the Senate, where no Democrats voted for the GOP bill and three Republicans defected in the final vote Friday. One of the GOP defectors, Sen. John McCain, has since returned to Arizona for treatment for brain cancer,

"Don't give up Republican senators, the World is watching: Repeal & Replace," Trump said in a tweet.

White House budget director Mick Mulvaney, when asked Sunday if no other legislative business should be taken up until the Senate acts again on health care, responded "yes."

While the House has begun a five-week recess, the Senate is scheduled to work two more weeks before a summer break. McConnell has said the unfinished business includes addressing a backlog of executive and judicial nominations, coming ahead of a busy agenda in September that involves passing a defense spending bill and raising the government's borrowing limit.

"In the White House's view, they can't move on in the Senate," Mulvaney said, referring to health legislation. "They need to stay, they need to work, they need to pass something."

Trump warned over the weekend that he would end federal subsidies for health care insurance for Congress and the rest of the country if the Senate didn't act soon. He was referring in part to a federal contribution for lawmakers and their staffs, who were moved onto Obamacare insurance exchanges as part of the 2010 law.

If a new HealthCare Bill is not approved quickly, BAILOUTS for Insurance Companies and BAILOUTS for Members of Congress will end very soon!" Trump tweeted.

The subsidies, totaling about $7 billion a year, help reduce deductibles and copayments for consumers with modest incomes.

British TV to air Diana's recordings on her failed marriage

LONDON

A British television channel is broadcasting a new documentary on Princess

Diana using controversial videotapes in which she candidly discussed her marital problems and her strained relationship with the royal family.

The recordings of Diana talking to her public speaking coach, Peter Settelen, in the early 1990s included her description of how Queen Elizabeth II reacted when she asked the monarch for advice about her failing marriage with Prince Charles.

"So I went to the top lady, sobbing. And I said, 'What do I do? I'm coming to you, what do I do?' And she said, 'I don't know what you should do,'" Diana said. "And that was it. And that was help."

This year marks the 20th anniversary of Diana's death in a Paris car crash Aug. 31, 1997.

Diana and Charles married in 1981 and divorced in 1996 after having two sons, Prince William and Prince Harry. The tapes include her discussing Charles' relationship with Camilla Parker Bowles, whom Charles later married in 2005.

The documentary airs Aug. 6 on Channel 4.

Jolie: Casting story is false, upsetting

LOS ANGELES

Angelina Jolie says accounts of her casting process for children to appear in her film "First They Killed My Father" are false and upsetting. An excerpt from a Vanity Fair profile of the director sparked backlash online last week from people who criticized the methods as being cruel and exploitative.

The article described a scene in which casting directors in their attempt to find a child actress to play the lead role presented money to impoverished children only to take it away from them as an acting exercise.

Jolie and producer Rithy Panh issued joint statements Sunday responding to the outrage and refuting claims that the production was exploitative through a representative from Netflix, which is producing and distributing the film.

and Velcro sneakers.

Despite the smack talk, respect from both sides was evident.

"They're really good young officers," Slattery said.

The team of rookie officers ended up winning handily. The final score wasn't really the point of the game, though.

"A lot of these guys, we don't always see them on a daily basis," said Patrolman Ken Garling, who started at Youngstown Police Department four years ago. "And it's usually in a professional environment. Just to do this when we're not at work is forming a bond."

Heading the younger officers' team was Patrolman Joe Burnich, who started working on the squad 3½ years ago and said the main motivation for the game was rivalry.

"A lot of the older guys like to talk about how good they were, and they talk about how there was an annual younger vs. older game, so we wanted to get it set up again," he said.

Rivalry might have been part of it, but the main point, Slattery said, was to build camaraderie.

"It's been tough the last few years with public perception and everything else," he said, referring to nationally publicized incidents that have put police in a negative spotlight.

Now that the custom has been revived, YPD officers plan to once again make it an annual game.

"It's just a way for us to get a little closer," Slattery said.

ture of this case.

Youngstown police believe the death occurred in Youngstown, after which the body was moved to a home in the 300 block of Devitt Avenue in Campbell.

Bobovnyik said the people who found and reported the freezer's contents "have cooperated fully" and are not suspects in connection the body.

The remains of what appears to be a female was discovered at about 4:30 p.m. Saturday when the home owner became suspicious because the freezer, which had been there about a week, was locked.

The homeowner was keeping the freezer for an acquaintance, Novoa, who said his electricity was off and he needed to keep it plugged in so the contents would not spoil, Bobovnyik said.

When the homeowner discovered the remains, it was reported to the Campbell Police Department, which in turn contacted the YPD, thinking it might be connected to a missing-person case there.

"Our investigation led us to Novoa and Layton, and after speaking with witnesses, to their arrest," the detective said.

Bobovnyik said police are working with the city prosecutor to determine charges to file against Novoa and Layton, and that further charges may be pending the results of the autopsy, the cause of death and positive identification.

Novoa has had several brushes with the law.

In July 2006, he was charged with aggravated arson and obstructing official business after throwing a flaming object onto the porch of a home on Cooper Street, where Novoa lived. In 2010, 24 at the time, Novoa was indicted by a Mahoning County grand jury on

According to 21 WFMJ-TV, The Vindicator's broadcast partner, one female missing was known as Novoa's girlfriend, Shannon Elizabeth Graves.

Graves' sister, Debbie DePaul, said Shannon would never leave without her dog

Graves was reported missing June 22, and family members then said she had not been seen since last Christmas.

Delphine Baldwin-Casey, a longtime member of the Youngstown Police Department, is now working in the Campbell Police Department.

OFFICER

in the Campbell Police Department's history.

She was sworn-in in Campbell this summer as a part-time patrol officer, earning $10.50 hourly. She is a Campbell native.

Campbell has 14 full-time police officers, including one woman. Baldwin-Casey is currently the only black police officer in the city.

Twenty-one percent of Campbell's population identifies as black and close to 16 percent identifies as Hispanic, according to the most recently available data from the U.S. Census Bureau.

"Campbell has a lot of Greeks, a lot of Spanish, a lot of blacks, a lot of Italians, so we do need diversity," said Campbell Police Chief Dennis Puskarcik, in response to a question about diversity within his department.

"Color never enters my mind. It's about quality of the applicant. I could never ask for a more qualified person than Delphine."

Those qualifications include Baldwin-Casey's work for the Catholic Diocese of Youngstown as a victims' assistance coordinator. The position involves reviewing sexual-abuse allegations against priests and other church personnel.

Baldwin-Casey helped found the Youngstown Crisis Intervention Unit in 1996 and feels passionately about assisting victims of sexual and domestic violence.

When she was a rookie, Baldwin-Casey said some of her shift partners instructed her not to get involved with domestic-violence cases involving police officers, especially if the officer had a higher rank.

"I had a hard time with women being abused by their spouse, but not just by their spouse, but by the judicial system from the police department on up," Baldwin-Casey said.

Additionally, Baldwin-Casey teaches in the police academy at Youngstown State University and works as a diversity and cultural awareness consultant to other police departments.

When she leads diversity training, Baldwin-Casey often uses herself as an example. At first glance, people categorize her only as a black woman, she said, and don't realize she has a grandmother from Czechoslovakia and a grandfather from Saudi Arabia.

"It didn't matter what I said to people," Baldwin-Casey said of her early life. "They didn't see the richness of the diversity in me. They saw the skin color."

She says her upbringing in Campbell was key to shaping her perspective on life.

"I always wanted to come back here to work," Baldwin-Casey said. "I view this as going home."

tions like eating paprikash, a dish of onions and egg-dumplings in sauce," said Jovica Solic of Austintown.

It was a beautiful day and turnout, and we sold most of our food," said Mike Andjelkovich, chairman of the picnic, who noted that the annual foodfest was originally took place at Idora Park.

Like many churches, the Holy Trinity Serbian Orthodox Church struggles to keep its music program together.

The choir has only a handful of regular members, including its president, Phyllis Kulics, and her husband, Terry, its director. Two other musical stalwarts are Barb Rogich and Daisy Doerr.

The priest of the church for 18 months, Father Bosko Stojanovic, was enjoying his second annual picnic.

"It does raise money and presents our food and music, but more importantly it gets people together," he said.

"The lamb is sold out. You get an awesome one-pound serving," said Youngstown Councilman Mike Ray, representative of the 4th Ward in which the church resides.

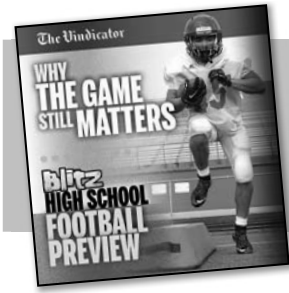

"It's fun to see and feel the flavor of the neighborhood and harken back to when the nearby steel mills were booming," he said.

Father Bosko Stojanovic, priest at Holy Trinity Serbian Orthodox Church, and Igor Milosedic of Poland talk during the Serbian fair and festival at the church Sunday.

Third-generation firefighter retires after 43 years on job

By SARAH LEHR

GIRARD

Nathan Walker III earned the nickname “Bud” when he was a toddler underfoot at the Girard fire station. When his father, Nathan Walker Jr., brought his son to work, he referred to the boy as his “buddy.”

The nickname stuck and Bud, now 61, is ready to retire after 43 years with the Girard Fire Department.

His last day Saturday marked the end of 85 years of continual service by his family. Walker is a third-generation Girard firefighter. His father, Nathan Walker Jr., worked there for decades and his grandfather, Nathan Walker I, was a fire chief in the 1930s.

The third Nathan Walker plans to spend his retirement working construction jobs on the side and taking road trips with his wife. He says he'll miss the camaraderie of the fire station, but not the 24-hour shifts. Geographically, however, the fire station, at 105 E. Liberty St., will never be far from his sight. Walker grew up on East Liberty Street, just blocks away from the fire station. As an adult, he bought a house across the street from his childhood home. As a result, walking to work was a constant for Walker. Some things have changed, though, over his more than 40 years with the department. Decades ago, firefighters lived part-time above the fire garage and they rode to calls on the truck's tailboard. Nowadays, there are fewer fires and more medical calls for EMT assistance. The worst types of calls, Walker said, are those involving children in danger. “I look at it this way,” Walker said. “If I’m busy, somebody’s having a bad day. You spend a lot of time waiting around, and then you might get a call to pull someone out of a burning building. It’s sheer boredom to sheer excitement.” It takes a certain temperament to be a firefighter, Walker acknowledged. “You have to be able to see sort of the blood and guts of it,” Walker said. “You see it all with this job.”

“I LOOK AT IT THIS WAY. IF I’M BUSY, SOMEBODY’S HAVING A BAD DAY. YOU SPEND A LOT OF TIME WAITING AROUND, AND THEN YOU MIGHT GET A CALL TO PULL SOMEONE OUT OF A BURNING BUILDING. IT’S SHEER BOREDOM TO SHEER EXCITEMENT.”

Ex-NASA agent fears gold lunar module will be melted down

Whoever broke into an Ohio museum late Friday and stole a solid-gold replica of the Apollo 11 lunar module likely intends to melt it down for the value of the gold instead of trying to sell what could be a collectible worth millions of dollars, said a Texas attorney and retired federal agent with NASA who has helped recover and locate stolen moon rocks worth millions of dollars.

The 5-inch high replica was discovered stolen after an alarm sounded just before midnight Friday at the Armstrong Air and Space Museum in Wapakoneta, the boyhood home of astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first person to set foot on the moon in July 1969.

Replicas made by the French jeweler Cartier were presented to Armstrong and fellow Apollo 11 space voyagers Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins in Paris after they returned to Earth.

The NASA agent, Joseph Gutheinz Jr., told The Associated Press on Sunday there's a moon rock in the museum from the Apollo 11 mission that's much larger than other rocks given away or loaned to museums or foreign countries that could easily be smuggled out of the country, where a geologist could verify its authenticity. He said it would be worth millions of dollars to a collector into space items.

"Either they didn't have easy access to the moon rock, or they weren't into collectibles," Gutheinz said of the thief or thieves.

Gutheinz ran an undercover sting operation in 1998 that led to the recovery of a moon rock from the Apollo 17 mission originally given to the Honduran government. The seller offered the rock to Gutheinz for $5 million. He more recently has led a group of criminal-justice students from the University Phoenix in a project that has identified 79 missing lunar samples and rocks from the Apollo 11 and Apollo 17 missions.

At an auction of space items July 20 at Sotheby's in New York, a lunar collection bag Armstrong carried on the moon sold for $1.8 million, a value enhanced by tiny amounts of moon dust engrained in the bag.

It will be difficult to catch the thief if the replica is melted down, which Gutheinz said would be a "damn shame." It's unclear how much gold the replica contains.

Researchers create warning system for toxic algae in lakes

By JOHN SEEWER
Associated Press

TOLEDO

Satellites in space and a robot under Lake Erie's surface are part of a network of scientific tools trying to keep algae toxins out of drinking-water supplies in the shallowest of the Great Lakes.

It's one of the most wide-ranging freshwater monitoring systems in the U.S., researchers say, and some of its pieces soon will be watching for harmful algae on hundreds of lakes nationwide.

Researchers are creating an early warning system using real-time data from satellites that in recent years have tracked algae bloom hotspots such as Florida's Lake Okeechobee and the East Coast's Chesapeake Bay.

The plan is to have it in place within two years so that states in the continental U.S. can be alerted to where toxic algae is appearing before they might detect it on the surface, said Blake Schaeffer, a researcher with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"You don't have to wait until someone gets sick," said Schaeffer, one of the leaders of the project.

Across the nation, farm runoff, sewage overflows and lawn fertilizers have washed into lakes and rivers and left behind unsightly algae blooms that can sicken people and pets and harm wildlife.

But often the first reports of harmful algae on a lake come from boaters seeing something strange in the water, said Rick Stumpf, of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

He began using satellites in 2008 to monitor algae on Lake Erie. That work took on a new urgency after a bloom near Toledo's shoreline contaminated the drinking water for more than 400,000 people three years ago.

The EPA in recent years has been testing using the satellite data to watch for algae in lakes in California, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Earlier this year, the data helped detect an algae bloom in a Utah Lake near Salt Lake City before officials on the ground knew about it.

"That's exactly what we we're trying to accomplish," Schaeffer said.

The system in development will cast a wider net at a time when many states can't afford to monitor every lake threatened by harmful algae. The goal is to use the satellite data to watch for algae on 1,800 lakes across the nation and provide four different types of water quality measurements on close to 170,000 lakes.

What satellites can't measure is the amount of toxins in the water. That's where samples gathered by researchers come into play. That too can be expensive, so researchers have developed an underwater lab that sits at the bottom of Lake Erie and both collects water and tests the levels of toxins before sending the results back remotely.

The whole process takes four hours – much less than the day or two it takes to test samples from a boat.

"We call it the 'lab in a can,'" said Tim Davis, a Great Lakes researcher with the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

The first robotic lab was launched this summer and two more are in the works. While it's still in the early stages, Davis said it could work in other lakes plagued by algae.

Other researchers are testing drones on Lake Erie to see if digital images they capture can be effective monitoring the algae blooms. Already in use on the lake are buoys that measure algae in the water.

USW, Goodyear reach tentative contract

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.
The United Steelworkers and Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. have reached a tentative contract agreement that covers about 7,000 workers at five plants.
Goodyear says the five-year agreement covers workers at plants in Fayetteville; Akron; Danville, Va.; Gadsden, Ala.; and Topeka, Kan.
The agreement was reached late Saturday, just before union officials said workers were ready to go on strike.

Cellphone service could be spotty for rural eclipse watchers

ST. LOUIS
If you plan to livestream next month's solar eclipse from one of the prime viewing spots, here's a thought: Stick the cellphone in your pocket, put on your paper glasses and enjoy the celestial wonder.
Otherwise, frustration is possible since the best places to see the eclipse Aug. 21 are largely in rural areas with spotty cell coverage. Even as the major cellphone companies temporarily upgrade service, there are no guarantees you'll be able to post to social media as quickly as you'd like.
The solar eclipse will be seen first in Oregon and cut diagonally across 14 states to South Carolina. It will be the first seen coast-to-coast since 1918.
Cellphone companies plan to bring in temporary towers to boost connectivity at some of the big eclipse-watch events.

Companies: Apple removed privacy apps

WASHINGTON
China appears to have succeeded in eliminating software programs that enable its people to view an uncensored internet.
Companies that let people avoid the government filters said Saturday that their programs have been removed from Apple's app store in China.
ExpressVPN, one of the companies, posted on its corporate site a message from Apple saying that its program was illegal in China. The British Virgin Islands-based software company says that all major virtual-private network apps were removed from the Apple app store in China. ExpressVPN claimed Apple was "aiding China's censorship effort."

Attack leaves 8 dead

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA
Fighters with the al-Shabab extremist group ambushed an African Union convoy in southern Somalia and killed at least eight soldiers Sunday, a Somali military officer said. The attack came hours after a car bomb in the capital killed at least five people, most of them civilians, shattering a month of relative calm in Mogadishu.
The al-Qaida-linked al-Shabab fighters attacked the convoy near Bulo-Marer town in Lower Shabelle region, Col. Muhyadin Yasin said.

BARCELONA, SPAIN
A huge fire at a music festival in Spain forced the evacuation of more than 20,000 concertgoers and incinerated the event's stage in Barcelona, the government said Sunday.
The fire Saturday night consumed the large outdoor stage at the "Tomorrowland" electronic music festival at Barcelona's Parc de Can Zam. Firefighters extinguished the flames just before midnight. Firefighters said they were investigating the cause. They said there were no serious injuries.

Child advocates urge back-seat alarms as 2 die

Associated Press

A proposed law that would require carmakers to build alarms for back seats is being pushed by child advocates who say it will prevent kids from dying in hot cars.
The law also would streamline the criminal process against caregivers who cause the deaths – cases that can be inconsistent but often heavier-handed against mothers.
The latest deaths came in Arizona on triple-digit degree days over the weekend, with two baby boys found forgotten in vehicles in separate incidents.
More than two dozen child and road safety groups are backing the U.S. Senate bill introduced last week aimed at preventing those kinds of deaths by requiring cars to be equipped with technology that can alert drivers if a child is left in the back seat once the vehicle is turned off.
It could be a motion sensor that can detect a baby left sitting in a rear-facing car seat and then alert the driver, in a similar way that reminders about tire pressure, open doors and seat belts now come standard in cars.

"The technology would help because if you're in a vehicle, your child is in the back seat, and you ignore that alarm: Go to jail. Do not pass go. You had a chance," said Janette Fennell of the advocacy group Kids and Cars.org. "You talk to any of the judges, they'll tell you, they're beyond the hardest things they have to deal with."
Police say 1-year-old Josiah Riggins was in the car for hours Saturday, discovered dead only after his father drove roundtrip, twice, between their suburban home and a Phoenix church to drop off the mother and a sibling.
Zane Endress, who was 7 months old, died Friday in Phoenix after being left in the car in the driveway at home, as his usual daycare drop-off routine was lost by his grandparents.
No charges have been filed against the caregivers in either Arizona case, as police say the death investigations are underway.

After North's 2nd test, US bombers fly over S. Korea

Associated Press

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA
The United States flew two supersonic bombers over the Korean Peninsula on Sunday in a show of force against North Korea following the country's latest intercontinental ballistic missile test. The U.S. also said it conducted a successful test of a missile defense system in Alaska.
The B-1 bombers were escorted by South Korean fighter jets as they performed a low-pass over an air base near the South Korean capital of Seoul before returning to Andersen Air Force Base in Guam, the U.S. Pacific Air Forces said.
It said the mission was a response to North Korea's two ICBM tests this month. Analysts say flight data from the North's second test, conducted Friday night, showed that a broader part of the mainland United States, including

Los Angeles and Chicago, is now in range of Pyongyang's weapons.
Vice President Mike Pence said Sunday during a visit to Estonia that the U.S. and its allies plan to increase pressure on North Korea to end its nuclear program.
"The continued provocations by the rogue regime in North Korea are unacceptable and the United States of America is going to continue to marshal the support of nations across the region and across the world to further isolate North Korea economically and diplomatically," Pence said. "But the era of strategic patience is over. The president of the United States is leading a coalition of nations to bring pressure to bear until that time that North Korea will permanently abandon its nuclear and ballistic missile program."

Trump travel ban keeps orphan children from US foster families

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO
Tianna Rooney has already bought the poster board for the sign she'll wave when the 16-year-old refugee boy her family is taking in arrives in the United States. Rooney knows the exact words of welcome she'll write on it, in the teenager's native language from the African country of Eritrea.
But Rooney's family is leaving the sign blank, for now. She and her husband, Todd, fear actually writing the words "Welcome Home" could break her heart.
The foster son they're waiting for is part of a small, three-decade-old U.S. program for so-called unaccompanied refugee minors that has been halted by a series of new refugee bans and travel limits imposed by the Trump administration in the name of fighting terrorism.
By blocking the program, the U.S. travel bans have stranded more than 100 refugee children who were already matched to waiting American foster families. Without parents or other adult relatives, those kids are living on their own in countries of temporary refuge, in limbo while their U.S. foster parents hope for a court ruling that will allow the children to finish their journeys.

Since the June day a refugee agency matched the Rooneys with their foster son, which turned out to be the same day of the first Supreme Court ruling barring him, "we have experienced this very unexpected ride of grief in our family," says Rooney, a 39-year-old family therapist and mother of two from Brighton, a suburb of Detroit.
Meanwhile, the boy who fled his home country at 13 to avoid widespread forced military conscription of children continues to fend for himself on the streets in his temporary refuge in another African capital, with no phone or internet for the Rooneys to reach him to explain the delay.

"There's part of me that really hopes he knows a family wants him," Tianna Rooney says.
Since the 1980s, the program for orphaned refugee children has brought in more than 6,000 refugee children, including 203 last year.
"These are kids on their own, and struggling to survive," said Elizabeth Foydel, policy counsel with the International Refugee Assistance Project, a Washington, D.C., legal-aid group for refugees.
The program for orphaned refugee children from around the world is different from one started by the Obama administration in 2014 for Central American children fleeing a surge in violence there.

In Venezuela, a voter-turnout dispute

Associated Press

CARACAS, VENEZUELA
Venezuelans stayed away from the polls in massive numbers Sunday in a show of protest against a vote to grant President Nicolas Maduro's ruling socialist party virtually unlimited powers in the face of a brutal socio-economic crisis and a grinding battle against its political opponents and groups of increasingly alienated and violent young protesters.
The government swore to continue its push for total political dominance of this once-prosperous OPEC nation, a move likely to trigger U.S. sanctions and new rounds of the street fighting that has killed at least 122 and wounded nearly 2,000 since protests began in April.
Venezuela's chief prosecutor's office reported seven deaths Sunday in clashes between protesters and police across the country.
Late Sunday, a key ally of Maduro's said there was "record" participation in Sunday's election for a constitutional assembly that he says will surprise the opposition, whose leaders contend turnout was exceptionally low.

Ruling socialist party leader Diosdado Cabello says that while the official National Electoral Council results are still being counted, "I can assure you there was record participation."

However, organizers with Venezuela's opposition say they stationed observers at every polling site and the preliminary results show Sunday had a small fraction of the turnout seen in previous elections voted.

Deadly crashes spur calls for tractor-trailer guards

Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y.
Fifty years after actress Jayne Mansfield died in a Buick that slammed underneath a tractor-trailer, auto-safety advocates say regulations inspired by that gruesome crash need updating to prevent hundreds of similar deaths annually.
"We're asking Congress to pass a bill that would mandate comprehensive underride protection, not only on tractor-trailers but on single-unit trucks," such as dump trucks, said Marianne Karth, who lost two teenage daughters, Anna-Leah and Mary, when her Crown Victoria crashed beneath a tractor-trailer in Georgia in 2013.
After two cars skidded under a jackknifed milk tanker truck in northern New York on July 6, killing four people, U.S. Sen. Charles Schumer called on federal regulators to order big trucks to be equipped with side guards to prevent cars from sliding beneath them in a crash.
According to the Insurance Institute for Highway

Safety, 301 of the 1,542 car occupants killed in collisions with a tractor-trailer in 2015 died when their vehicle struck the side of the rig. Another 292 died when their vehicle struck the rear. The institute's researchers estimate that half the fatal crashes between large trucks and passenger vehicles involve underride, which makes air bags and other crash protection ineffective because the top half of the car is sheared off.
Under regulations enacted after Mansfield's death, big rigs are required to have rear underride guards to keep cars from traveling beneath the back of a trailer in a collision. Known as "Mansfield bars," they consist of two vertical steel bars supporting a horizontal bar less than 2 feet from the ground.
Side guards aren't required by federal regulations, but at least three cities – Boston, New York and Seattle – mandate them on city-owned trucks to eliminate deaths and injuries, particularly among pedestrians and bicyclists.

Emotional ceremony for Hall of Fame inductees

5 more make it to Cooperstown

Associated Press
COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. “Pudge” Rodriguez stared out at his father, wiping away tears as he spoke.

“I love you with all of my heart,” Rodriguez said. “If I’m a Hall of Famer, you’re a Hall of Famer — double.”

Those words punctuated Rodriguez’s speech as he was inducted Sunday into the Baseball Hall of Fame. Jeff Bagwell and Tim Lincecum, along with former commissioner Bud Selig and front-office guru John Schuerholz also were enshrined on a picture-perfect summer day in front of over 27,000 fans.

“It’s always emotional when you see the fans cheering for you, and my whole family in front of me,” Bagwell said. “I’m an emotional person. It’s a dream just to be part of this beautiful group. Now I have that plaque forever. It’s unbelievable.”

Before he started, Rodriguez received a standing ovation from hundreds of fans, many wearing red-and-white jerseys with Puerto Rico emblazoned on the front, and proceeded to give half his speech in Spanish.

“This is such an incredible honor for me,” Rodriguez said. “A little kid from Puerto Rico with a big dream. Never let them take your dream away from you.”

The 45-year-old Rodriguez holds major league records for games caught (2,427) and putouts by a catcher (12,376). He hit 311 homers and batted .296 in his career. He’s also only the second catcher elected on the first ballot, following in the footsteps of his childhood idol, Cincinnati Reds star Johnny Bench, who was seated on the dais behind him.

After speaking in Spanish, Rodriguez went back and repeated in English, concentrating on a message to youth. “You have the right to dream,” he said. “Everything in life is possible. I speak from experience.”

YSU EYES ANOTHER RUN AT FCS TITLE

Penguins hoping to do one better

Youngstown State football coach Bo Pelini leads a spring practice at the WATTS facility on campus.

YSU's Hunter Wells, shown here in a playoff game last December, is the starting quarterback heading into the season opener.

THE YOUNGSTOWN STATE football team didn’t reach the top of the Football Championship Subdivision mountain, but the Penguins have a good idea how to get there. The Penguins will go for its first back-to-back trips to a national title game since the 1993-94 seasons this fall. Last year’s 12-4 campaign featured four different starting quarterbacks, four suspensions at the worst time and five victories that came by a touchdown or less.

“I thought we were close. I hear a lot of coaches talking about how close some these games are in [the Missouri Valley Football Conference] and there’s no doubt about it,” head coach Bo Pelini said. “The difference between last year and the year before was we won a lot of those games.”

“It was the ability to step up to overcome adversity and the mental toughness that’s required to win close games to get over the top is key.”

The Penguins return a mostly intact offense and a defense that is missing two NFL-caliber talents in Derek Rivers and Avery Moss.

Despite using four different quarterbacks in 2016, Pelini is looking at just one to be his starter. Senior Hunter Wells got the vote of confidence from his head coach.

“Hunter is obviously our starter going in,” Pelini said. “He had a heck of a year. I thought

Kyle Busch breaks drought

2015 Cup champion nudges Harvick out of the way, holds on

Associated Press
LONG POND, PA. Kyle Busch used a bump-and-run on Kevin Harvick to take the lead and held on to snap a 36-race losing streak and win the NASCAR Cup race at Pocono Raceway on Sunday.

Busch won for the first time this season in the No. 18 Toyota and won for the first time ever at Pocono. Busch had led more than 1,000 laps this season entering the race. He was racing for the lead last weekend in the Brickyard 400 when he wrecked with Martin Truex Jr., which led to a pit road altercation between members of both teams.

Busch won from the pole and gave Toyota its 100th Cup win since its 2007 debut.

Busch, the 2015 Cup champion, had never gone a full season without winning a race. Charlotte Motor Speedway is now the only track where he’s failed to win.

“I never thought this day would happen,” Busch said.

He also won his 176th career NASCAR race over the Cup, Xfinity and Truck series.

“We’ve all been fighting all year long and just wasn’t sure why,” Busch said. “This is something I’ve been waiting for for a long, long time. It’s been a frustrating year but an awesome day today.”

Harvick finished second, followed by Truex, Denny Hamlin and Brad Keselowski. Harvick, who hasn’t won in 34 career races at Pocono, said he had nothing for Busch down the stretch.

“There was no battle. He was way faster than we were,” Harvick said.

Busch had seven top-five finishes and was runner-up to Austin Dillon in the Coca-Cola 600. All the near misses have gnawed at Busch, who won the All-Star race. He

Scrappers take division lead with victory

NILES Sunday was a day of rest for many, but for the Mahoning Valley Scrappers, it was a typical workday.

In fact, the Scrappers were eager to put in a good day’s work following a sloppy 5-4 loss to Williamsport on Saturday.

“We have a mindset where we just want to flush a bad game away, and pick things up and start fresh the next day,” Scrappers center fielder Clark Scolamiero said. “Some players don’t like day games after a night game, but we were anxious to come out here and correct our mistakes. We wanted to get right back at it.”

Indeed, the Scrappers did return to their winning form, this time to the tune of a 4-1 win over Batavia in front of 2,408 fans at Eastwood Field.

The Scrappers’ win, combined with a West Virginia loss, puts the Scrappers (24-15) atop the Pinckney Division of the New York-Penn League. They lead the Black Bears by one-half game.

On Sunday, the Scrappers struck early, scoring a pair of runs in the first inning to take a lead they would never relinquish.

Oscar Gonzalez and Nolan Jones led off the bottom of the first with back-to-back doubles. Jones’ two-base hit scored Gonzalez. Jones then came around to score on an Austen Wade single.

King Jr. matches father with second victory

HARTFORD

Sharon Speedway was completed a "Steel Valley Thunder" weekly event after three straight rain outs, special events, and two scheduled nights off. Celebrating in the Hovis Auto & Truck Supply victory lane were Rex King, Jr.-Hovis Auto & Truck Supply Big-Block Modifieds, Chris McGuire & Chris Schneider-Penn-Ohio Pro Stock Championship Series, Chas Wolbert-HTMA/Precise Racing Products RUSH Sportsman Modifieds, and Steve Haefke-Summit Racing Equipment Econo Mods. The four-division program brought out 109 cars.

Defending track champion, Rex King, Jr., took the lead on lap nine and drove off to the 25-lap Hovis Auto & Truck Supply Big-Block Modified feature win. With the win, the Bristolville native matched his father with his second victory of the season—tied for tops in the division, and took one step closer to his third title in four years with just one more of point racing remaining.

Stakes at WV Derby top $1.3 million

NEW CUMBERLAND, W.V.

When the afternoon of Aug. 5 rolls around, there will be plenty of money on the line at Mountaineer Casino, Racetrack & Resort.

Headed by the $750,000 West Virginia Derby for 3-year-olds, the Saturday program will include six other stakes with purses of $200,000 to $75,000.

Total stakes money for the day will be $1.325 million. The other two races on the traditional nine-race card are expected to be West Virginia-bred allowance races that would take total purses for the day to $1.375 million.

When the Derby was revived in 1998 after a seven years on the shelf, the purse was $200,000.

Penguins re-sign Sheary for $9 million

PITTSBURGH

The Pittsburgh Penguins have agreed to terms with forward Conor Sheary on a $9 million, three-year deal.

Sheary will count $3 million against the salary cap through 2019-20. General manager Jim Rutherford announced the contract for the restricted free agent Sunday.

Sheary has been part of Pittsburgh's back-to-back Stanley Cup champion teams, putting up 17 points in 45 games. He spent significant time as a linemate of Sidney Crosby's during the 2016 Cup run.

The 25-year-old signed with the Penguins as an undrafted free agent. Since then, the 5-foot-8 winger has 30 goals and 33 assists for 63 points in 105 games.

Last season, Sheary had 23 goals and 30 assists in 61 games. His 53 points were fourth on the team behind Crosby, Evgeni Malkin and Phil Kessel.

Newgarden dominates in second IndyCar win

LEXINGTON

Josef Newgarden dominated at the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course on the way to his second straight IndyCar victory at the Honda Indy 200 on Sunday.

Newgarden was not challenged most of the day on the 90-lap, 2.2-mile course and finished 5.156 seconds ahead of Team Penske teammate Will Power, the pole-sitter. Newgarden won at Toronto on July 16 and has six career wins, three this season.

Local favorite Graham Rahal was third and 2016 champion Simon Pagenaud finished fourth.

Patriots' Ninkovich caps 11-year career

FOXBOROUGH, MASS.

New England Patriots defensive stalwart Rob Ninkovich capped his 11-year NFL career by announcing his retirement Sunday after the team's morning practice at Gillette Stadium.

Since joining the Patriots in 2009, Ninkovich had proven to be one of the team's most durable and dependable players.

A defensive end and linebacker, he was a two-time co-captain and won two Super Bowls with New England. But he didn't take the easiest route to get there.

A fifth-round pick by the New Orleans Saints in 2006, he was waived four times by the Saints and Miami Dolphins before joining the Patriots just before the start of the 2009 season — after spending that offseason trying to make the Saints as a long snapper.

Bagwell, who played his entire 15-year career in Houston, took the dais to an extended applause from the Astros fans who made the trip.

Bagwell started his speech by thanking his family, singling out his parents and wife.

"Mom, you are just the most amazing person in the world," he said. "You've been a pillar for me. I can't tell you how much I love you and what you mean to me. My father, Bob. There's something about a dad. You brought me to love this game of baseball. Something my father instilled in me was to never quit. Deep inside, I just never gave up. That drive got me a long way."

The 48-year-old Bagwell was one-third of the famed "Killer B's" of the Astros, along with Hall of Famer Craig Biggio and Lance Berkman. Together they helped transform the Astros from a last-place team to the World Series in 2005, the first team from Texas to do so. Elected in his seventh year on the ballot, Bagwell is the only first baseman in history with 400 career home runs and 200 stolen bases.

Bagwell ended his career with 449 home runs and from 1996-2001 had at least 30 home runs, 100 runs scored and 100 RBIs per season, only the sixth player in major league history to reach those marks in at least six straight years.

Raines was greeted by scores of fans from Canada, many of whom came aboard several buses. He thanked his mom and dad, who were seated in the front row and later focused on Hall of Famer Andre Dawson, his teammate with the Montreal Expos when he first broke into the major leagues in the early 1980s.

"Without Andre Dawson there's no telling where I'd be," said Raines, who fought cocaine problems early in his career. "I wanted to kind of be like you and he finally accepted and I followed. Thank you so much for making me the player I became."

The 57-year-old Raines, a switch-hitter, batted .294 and had a .385 on-base percentage in his 23-year career, finishing with 2,605 hits, 1,571 runs and 808 stolen bases. His stolen base total is the fifth-highest in major league history and included 70 or more steals in each season from 1981-86, a streak that stands alone in baseball history. And his 84.7 percent success rate tops the list among players with at least 400 steal attempts.

For Selig, who was celebrating his 83rd birthday, it was a reversal of roles. For more than two decades he gave out the Hall of Fame plaques on induction day.

"It's an overwhelming, stunning feeling," said Selig, who dropped his speech midway through it but never skipped a beat. "You're getting the highest honor."

Selig left a large imprint during more than 22 years as the leader of the game. He was instrumental in the approval of interleague play, the expansion of the playoffs, splitting each league into three divisions with wild cards, instituting video review and revenue-sharing in an era that saw the construction of 20 new ballparks.

His tenure also included the Steroids Era and the cancellation of the 1994 World Series amid a players' strike, but he left baseball in excellent shape economically — without labor strife and with a strict drug-testing policy that has helped clean up the game.

In 26 years as a GM for the Kansas City Royals and Atlanta Braves, Schuerholz stood alone. His teams won 16 division titles, six pennants and two World Series, one in each league, a first. He credited divine providence and fate for his good fortune, starting with a case of German measles that left him deaf in his right ear at age five, which he said forced him to be more attentive.

he really came along and made a lot of significant improvements from the year prior. I feel comfortable with Hunter going in."

A heck of a year may be underselling it a bit. Mays entered his junior season as the fourth string quarterback and didn't see action until week 9 against Indiana State. He threw for 1,714 passing yards, 11 passing touchdowns and five picks as he started the team's final nine games.

Pelini said he is also comfortable with sophomore Nate Mays backing up Wells. Senior Trent Hosick returns in a reserve role and while senior Ricky Davis is listed on YSU's roster as a quarterback, he spent spring practice as a wide receiver.

There's about 2,500 rushing yards and 18 touchdowns to replace with the departures of leading rushers Jody Webb and Martin Ruiz. Only two other running backs saw the field in 2016. Junior Tevin McCaster got a big stage to show what he was capable of in last year's national semifinal against Eastern Washington, where the Newcastle native piled up 154 yards on the ground and three touchdowns. South Range graduate Joe Alessi has decent sample of stats, 223 rushing yards and two TDs on just 11 carries. Some incoming freshman to watch at that position include Farrell's Braxton Chapman and Cincinnati La Salle's Christian Turner. Champman is Farrell's all-time leading rusher with 3,067 yards and has made a Class A state finals appearance in his career. Turner compiled roughly 1,400 all-purpose yards — split even between rushing and receiving — and scored 13 touchdowns as La Salle won the Division II state title in 2016.

With the exception of Darien Townsend, who left the team in April after his junior season ended with a suspension during last year's playoffs, all of YSU's wide receivers and tight ends are back. Senior Alvin Bailey leads the returning wideouts in catches, yards and touchdowns with a line of 47 catches for 511 yards and five TD's.

Senior tight end Kevin Rader returns after making arguably the greatest catch in YSU history to send the Penguins to the National Championship game. He's joined by fellow seniors Shane Kuhn and Anthony Parente as well as Virginia Tech transfer Chris Durkin.

Pelini was a bit cagey when discussing his offensive line. Starting center Vitas Hryniewicz and guards Justin Spencer and Gavin Wiggins are back, but Pelini is not naming someone to the remaining two spots just yet.

"When we get into camp, I'll get more specific as we move along," Pelini said, I'd be remiss to name names because you never know how things will turn out. Everyone is going in with a clean slate."

DEFENSE

It's a big ask to replace defensive ends Derek Rivers and Avery Moss, who are now in the NFL training camps with the New England Patriots and New York Giants, respectively. The only knowns with the Penguin defense is its linebackers and the interior of the D-line. The rest will have to be sorted out through August.

Just because the program's all-time leaders in sacks are gone doesn't make for a change in how the Penguins play defense.

"We're not going to change how we play. We've had a lot of success over the years playing how we played and we have guys on our roster who will fit right in," Pelini said. "It's not that you can easily replace guys like [Rivers and Moss], but we have some able guys that are ready to step up and do their thing."

The likely guys to take the end spots, junior Johnson Louigene and senior Fazson Chapman have a combined 15 tackles last season. Pushing them will be Florida transfer Justus Reed.

Juniors Savon Smith, Cody Squiric and senior Donald Mesier all return at defensive tackle.

Dellovade

The team's leading tackler, junior Armand Dellovade, returns to the middle linebacker role as the only Penguin in 2016 to record 100-plus tackles with 105. Senior Lee Wright — the team's top tackler in 2015 — is also back. Some of the younger names to look at are sophomores Christian Randall-Posey, Malachai Newell and red-shirt-freshman Curtis Parks.

The secondary will see all new faces at safety and corner. Senior Warren Harding graduate Jayln Powell is the most experienced of the bunch with 49 tackles in 2016. Junior Avery Larkin and senior D.J. Thomas have seen first-team reps at corner this past spring.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Mahoning County has the punting and kicking market at YSU cornered. Springfield sophomore Mark Schuler returns as punter and Cardinal Mooney's Zak Kennedy reprises his role in the kicking game. The most experienced kick and punt returner coming back is Bailey, who averaged 20.4 yards on nine kickoff returns.

won for the first time since the 2016 Brickyard 400.

Busch earned a spot in NASCAR's playoffs. There are just three open spots and five races left before the field is set.

Other items of note at Pocono:

THE BIG ONE

An eight-car wreck on the first lap knocked Eric Almirola and Matt DiBenedetto out of the race. Matt Kenseth got loose and spun to trigger the accident.

Almirola missed two months of the season with a fractured vertebra suffered in a race at Kansas.

"Sort of a bummer not to even make a whole lap," he said.

JOHNSON WRECK

Jimmie Johnson wrecked and did not finish for the third time in the last four races. Johnson connected with Hendrick Motorsports teammate Kasey Kahne and was spun into the wall.

The seven-time Cup champion also crashed out of the first Pocono race in June.

DOUBLE DUTY

NASCAR held qualifying before the race instead of earlier in the weekend. Pocono had no Cup cars on the track Friday during the condensed schedule. NASCAR will try the two-day show again next week at Watkins Glen and Oct. 29 at Martinsville.

"Just thankful for the opportunity to have the two-day shows," Busch said. "We love spending time with our families, and being on the road, that is sometimes difficult."

UP NEXT

The series shifts to the road course at Watkins Glen. Denny Hamlin is the defending race winner.

NFL

Hoyer seizes opportunity as starting QB for 49ers

Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, CALIF.

It took nine NFL seasons and sixth franchise for Brian Hoyer to come into training camp as the unquestioned starting quarterback of his team.

Signed by the San Francisco 49ers back in March to replace the departed Colin Kaepernick, Hoyer is entrenched as the starter to begin the team's first camp under coach Kyle Shanahan.

With a familiar coach who believes in his ability after a successful season together in Cleveland in 2014 and a rebuilding team that has only untested Matt Barkley and third-round rookie C.J. Beathard behind him on the depth chart, Hoyer won't need to win a training camp battle to earn the starting job this season.

"You don't have to deal with the unknown a little bit when it comes to that," Hoyer said. "That's always nice, especially being a human being. You can tell yourself not to worry about things as much as you want to, but you know those thoughts creep up in your mind. So now just to be able to go out and focus and take control and know this is my team, this is my offense. It kind of eliminates that and you can just focus on the football side of it."

Hoyer has seized that leadership role by organizing an informal summer workout in Texas with many of the team's receivers to build up chemistry in the down period between minicamp and training camp.

How long he has it remains to be seen. The 49ers gave Hoyer only a two-year contract and could easily move on from if they make a run at Kirk Cousins next offseason and return him to his more usual backup role if they draft a quarterback in the first round.

Hoyer has heard that speculation but isn't dwelling on it.

"I know from being in this league it's about what have you done lately, so one whole year can change a lot of aspects on how people think about things," he said. "So for me, like I said, to be able to go into training camp and not have to worry about a quote unquote competition, to be the guy to have gotten all the reps in the offseason, I feel very confident and very excited about going into this season."

He has also served as a tutor to many of the players because of his deep knowledge of Shanahan's offense from their year together with the Browns when Hoyer won seven of his 13 starts, throwing for a career-high 3,326 yards with 12 touchdowns and 13 interceptions.

That marked one of only two times that Hoyer has been an opening day starter in a career that began in New England as an undrafted free agent out of Michigan State in 2009.

After three seasons as one of Tom Brady's backups with little chance of ever seeing the field, Hoyer moved on to Arizona in 2012 where he made his first career start before making stops in Cleveland, Houston and Chicago as part of his nomadic career.

Jones regains UFC title belt

ANAHEIM, CALIF.

Jon Jones reached the pinnacle of mixed martial arts and then fell harder than just about anyone ever had before.

When he got back on top Saturday night by stopping his greatest rival in dramatic style, Jones vowed to appreciate everything he had lost and regained.

Jones reclaimed his UFC light heavyweight title by stopping Daniel Cormier in the third round with a vicious head kick and a finish on the ground at UFC 214, completing his rocky journey back to the top after 2½ years of drama with his 14th consecutive victory.

He fended off a stiff challenge from Cormier (19-2), who held the belt for most of the past two years while Jones (23-1) dealt with self-inflicted setbacks outside the cage. His title belt has been stripped twice, and he endured a yearlong suspension for a doping test failure before returning to beat Cormier for the second time.

"I feel like I'm leaving my past behind me and I'm erasing everything I've done before," Jones said. "I feel like this is a step to a new career, a new championship, and I want to be a better champion than I was in the past."

After 2½ rounds of even, high-level striking, Jones landed a left head kick that caught Cormier leaning in. The champion staggered backward and then around the cage with Jones in pursuit, and Jones finished the fight on the ground with a series of merciless strikes.

Jones was widely considered the world's top pound-for-pound mixed martial artist while he held the belt for nearly four years from 2011-15. He beat Cormier by clear decision in their first bout in January 2015, but had fought just one time since.

Jones praised Cormier afterward.

"I want to thank Daniel for being my biggest rival and my biggest motivator," Jones said.

White Sox halt Indians' winning streak at 9

Associated Press

CHICAGO

After the Chicago White Sox continued their tear-down on Sunday, two players they hope will be part of the eventual rebuild led them to a much-needed win.

Matt Davidson hit his first career walk-off home run, Carlos Rodon had his longest start of the season and the White Sox beat Cleveland 3-1 to end the Indians' nine-game winning streak.

The White Sox snapped a seven-game home losing streak and won for just the second time in 16 games. The team also traded fan favorite Melky Cabrera to Kansas City shortly before the first pitch as part of a roster overhaul.

Jose Abreu got the ninth-inning rally started with a double off Bryan Shaw (4-5) to set up Davidson's heroics, his 21st home run of his rookie season.

"It's been a rough go for us, so to get that feeling and get that win was huge for us," Davidson said. "We needed it really bad. We're working hard, but it's been a tough go. That's why these things probably mean more than just a normal win."

Tyler Clippard (2-6) pitched a scoreless ninth to earn the win, the first for the White Sox at Guaranteed Rate Field since July 2. That game featured strong pitching from Jose Quintana and David Robertson, both of whom have since been traded.

Rodon allowed one run and struck out nine in 6 2/3 innings. He has 20 strikeouts over his last two starts.

"The outing that he had today, based on the skill set that he has, is what we're hoping that he will continue to become," White Sox manager Rick Renteria said. "Obviously, everybody knows what he can do with the baseball. A very strong man with great life on his pitches."

Indians starting pitcher Josh Tomlin throws against the White Sox during the first inning of their game Sunday in Chicago.

Francisco Lindor extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a third-inning homer, his 16th, giving first-place Cleveland a 1-0 lead. The Indians were 1 for 14 with runners on base.

Josh Tomlin threw four innings of no-hit ball before being removed from the game because of left hamstring tightness. He allowed two baserunners. It was Tomlin's first scoreless start since Sept. 20, 2015 against the White Sox, and it was the third game in five days where the opposition took a no-hitter into the fifth inning against Chicago.

Indians manager Terry Francona said Tomlin hurt himself fielding a ground ball in the fourth.

McCutchen’s 3 homers carry Cole, Pirates

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO

Andrew McCutchen paused a bit as he rounded first base after hitting his third home run Sunday, wanting to make sure that it was indeed gone before finishing his trot.

It was. The ball hit the right-field foul pole and bounced onto the field, causing a moment of confusion before one of the ump's signaled homer.

"I just wanted it to stay fair," McCutchen said after the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Diego Padres 7-1 to snap a four-game losing streak. "I didn't know if it was going to stay fair or not. I just kept running until someone signaled something.

"It feels great," said McCutchen, who had his third career three-homer game.

"I'm in a good position to hit. I wasn't missing anything; getting pitches to hit and hitting them and being able to hit them with some power. It felt good. I had a good day at the plate. It was an all-around good day."

McCutchen's big day backed Gerrit Cole, who pitched seven innings of five-hit ball for the Pirates.

It was just the second win in eight games for the Pirates, who ended the Padres' four-game winning streak.

McCutchen, a five-time All-Star and the 2013 NL MVP, has 22 homers. He connected with two outs in the first off left-hander Clayton Richard, with the ball clearing the fence just out of the reach of center fielder Manuel Margot. He homered into the Padres' bullpen in left-center in the eighth off rookie Jose Torres and then homered with two outs in the ninth, again off Torres.

"It feels good, man," McCutchen said. "I've done it before so it's cool to be able to do it again. To have that opportunity to go out there and do it for the third time in my career, that's pretty cool."

This was McCutchen's third multihomer game of the season and 15th of his career. He also made a nice diving catch in center field to end the eighth.

"They're special days, and I told him that as he came off the field," said manager

McCutchen

Clint Hurdle, who turned 60 Sunday. "I've got to see him do it a couple times now, three homers in a game. He creates a wake in everything he does. To have your best players and have the performance they had today, Andrew and Cole, makes the game look easy, and it's not.

"I've watched players play at an elite level and Andrew's as good as any of them."

McCutchen scored four runs.

"He's a perennial All-Star," Richard said. "He's one of the top players in the league for a reason. You have to give him credit. Like you saw today, he hits with power to all fields, he has speed. He's a really good player.

"I fell behind McCutchen a couple of times and I think that's really what changed the game," he said.

Pinch-hitter Josh Bell homered in the ninth, his 19th.

Cole (9-7), who lives in Santa Ana and played at UCLA, won his second straight start and third decision in a row. His only big mistake was allowing a home run by rookie Dusty Coleman to center field with one out in the seventh, his second. Cole struck out eight and walked two.

Cole was a happy witness to McCutchen's big day.

"It's a lot of fun," the right-hander said. "Using all three parts of the ballpark. Pretty special hitter."

Leading 2-1 in the seventh, the Scrappers tacked on a pair of insurance runs. Scolamiero laced a triple to center field to start the frame. He scored on a Tyler Friis sacrifice fly. Then following back-to-back base hits by Jones and Wade, Ulysses Cantu collected his 17th RBI with a run-scoring double.

"It was nice to pick up those runs, because Batavia had just scored in the top half of the inning," Scolamiero said. "It felt good to get that triple. It seems like every night a different player on this team steps up and contributes in some way. It was nice to go up there and do my part."

Scolamiero was selected by the Cleveland Indians in the 17th round of the June draft out of North Greenville University (SC).

"You hear a lot of stories about the big adjustments from college to the pros, but honestly I feel like it's been a pretty smooth transition," Scolamiero said. "We put in a lot of work at the collegiate level, so in that regard it's not that big a difference. The bus rides and playing every day,

RBC CANADIAN OPEN

OAKVILLE, ONTARIO

Jhonattan Vegas successfully defended his RBC Canadian Open title Sunday at Glen Abbey, beating Charley Hoffman with a birdie on the first hole of a playoff. Vegas' approach from the left bunker in the playoff on the par-5 18th hit the grass just above the sand lip and went through the green. The 32-year-old Venezuelan chipped to a foot — after racing a chip past the hole in regulation from the same area en route to a par — and won when Hoffman's birdie try from the back bunker slid past the hole. Vegas closed with a 7-under 65 to match Hoffman at 21-under 267. Hoffman, the third-round leader, birdied the 18th for a 68. Vegas has three PGA Tour titles, also winning the 2011 Bob Hope Classic. Ian Poulter was a stroke back after a 64, the best round of the day.

SENIOR BRITISH OPEN

BRIDGEND, WALES

Bernhard Langer won the Senior British Open on Sunday in rain and wind at Royal Porthcawl for his record-extending 10th senior major title and fifth in the last 10. The 59-year-old German star closed with an even-par 72 to finish at 4-under 280 and beat American Corey Pavin by three strokes. Langer joined Jack Nicklaus as the only players to win three senior majors in a season, and won the event for the third time to match the tournament record. Langer won the Regions Tradition and Senior PGA Championship — the first two of the PGA Champions Tour's five majors — in consecutive weeks in May. Nicklaus won three of the then-four majors in 1991. Langer also won in 2010 at Carnoustie and took the 2014 event at Royal Porthcawl by 13 strokes. Tom Watson and Gary Player are the only other three-time winners, with Player's titles coming before the event was a major or part of the PGA Champions Tour. The two-time Masters champion also won the season-opening event in Hawaii in January and has 33 PGA Tour Champions titles. He's second on the career victory list, 12 behind Hale Irwin. Pavin closed with a 71. Fred Couples had a 68 to tie for third at even par with fellow American Billy Andrade (68) and Australia's Peter Lonard (71).

LADIES SCOTTISH OPEN

IRVINE, SCOTLAND

Mi Hyang Lee took advantage of Hall of Famer Karrie Webb's late double bogey to win the Ladies Scottish Open on Sunday for her second LPGA Tour title. A stroke ahead of Lee with two holes left at chilly Dundonald Links, Webb dropped a shot back with the double bogey on the par-5 17th after driving into a bunker and having to play out backward. Lee, playing in the group ahead of Webb, increased the margin to two with a birdie on the par-5 18th.

Dressel ties Phelps' record with 7th gold

Associated Press

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY

Michael Phelps, you've got company.

Caeleb Dressel won his seventh gold medal of the world championships Sunday, putting the U.S. team ahead to stay with another dominating swim in the 4x100-meter medley relay.

Twenty-four hours after becoming the first swimmer to win three golds in one night at a major international meet, Dressel joined Phelps in another elite club: seven golds at the second-biggest meet after the Olympics.

Phelps was the first to do it at the 2007 worlds in Melbourne, Australia — a prelude to his unprecedented eight golds the following year at the Beijing Olympics.

Dressel

Dressel matched the feat along the banks of the Danube, emerging as America's next swimming sensation.

"We're seeing a star being born," teammate Matt Grevers said.

The 20-year-old University of Florida student won three individual golds and was part of four winning relay teams.

"I'm pretty tired, but, you know, it's been a good season, a good year, and to put together a seven-day meet, it's a really nice feeling," Dressel said. "There's a lot more that goes into this than just the seven days that people see, so I'm very happy to be done."

It was a big night all around for the Americans.

Lilly King set her second individual world record of the meet in the 50 breaststroke, again besting Russian rival Yulia Efimova, and returned as part of the women's 4x100 medley relay that also broke the world record.

"I couldn't imagine a better finish to this meet," King said.

Chase Kalisz swept the men's individual medleys to carry on America's dominance in those races, even after Phelps' retirement and Ryan Lochte missing out on Budapest because of his shenanigans at the Rio Olympics.

"I don't think I'll ever be on the level of those guys," said Kalisz, who romped to victory in the 400 IM on the heels of his victory in the 200. "But for me to be able to continue our prior tradition of IM, that was one thing when I grew up that I knew that was our thing."

The U.S. finished with 18 golds and 38 medals overall — a huge improvement over the previous worlds two years ago in Kazan, where the Americans managed just eight golds and 23 medals.

The home crowd had no complaints, either.

Katinka Hosszu, the "Iron Lady," finished off her third straight 200-400 IM sweep at the championships, to go along with a pair of golds from Brazil last summer.

BRIDGE

Q. Neither vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠AKJ65 ♥J2 ♦AK5 ♣Q87
SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
1♠ Pass INT Pass ?

What call would you make?
A. A two no trump rebid by opener shows 18-19 points, whether or not it is a jump. Bid two no trump.

Q. North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠K♥K72 ♦KQ10843 ♣A108
SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
1♦ 1♥ Pass Pass ?

What call would you make?
A. Your heart holding suggests that partner passed because he is broke, not because he has good hearts. Your hand is worth a second bid, but two diamonds is enough.

Q. East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠64 ♥K1054 ♦AQJ102 ♣KJ

With the opponents silent, you open one diamond and partner responds one no trump. What is your rebid?

A. Should you decide to bid, your best choice is two diamonds. Better to just pass.

You're unlikely to have a game and this may be your best spot.

Q. Both vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠A983 ♥AJ73 ♦Q987 ♣6

As dealer, what call would you make?
A. Opening one diamond would not be the worst bridge crime ever committed, but we think an 11-point hand should contain a five-card or longer suit in order to open. Pass.

Q. North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠94 ♥A43 ♦AK1093 ♣973

As dealer, what call would you make?
A. This hand, with 11 prime points and a good five-card suit, is worth opening. Bid one diamond.

Q. East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠KJ1072 ♥K1072 ♦85 ♣AK

Right-hand opponent opens one diamond. What call would you make?

A. This hand is not worth a double followed by a spade bid. A better approach is to overcall one spade, planning to bid hearts at your next turn.

Filmmaker Kathryn Bigelow revisits 1967 riots

‘Detroit’ is still burning

By JAKE COYLE
AP Film Writer

NEW YORK

Kathryn Bigelow hasn't forgotten the out-of-body experience she felt when she won the best director Academy Award for her 2009 “The Hurt Locker.” At that moment, she became the first woman to win the award. None have been nominated since.

“The gender inequity that exists in the industry, I thought it would maybe be the beginning of that inequity not being quite so pronounced,” said Bigelow in a recent interview. “Sadly, that doesn't seem to be the case. And I don't know why that is. I just don't know. But I sort of feel like on behalf of all the women who might yearn to tell challenging, relevant, topical, entertaining stories – that I was standing there for them. And that emboldened me.”

Boldness is not a fleeting quality for Bigelow. Since “The Hurt Locker,” she has, with the reporter-turned-screenwriter Mark Boal, continued to craft an ambitious, intrepid kind of cinema that marries visceral big-screen immersion with deeply researched journalism. Their previous collaboration, the Osama bin Laden-hunt thriller “Zero Dark Thirty,” proved an unparalleled flashpoint in both Hollywood and Washington, prompting debates over its representation of the role torture played in the manhunt.

“I'm the messenger. I didn't invent the message,” she said. “I'm just compelled to make these challenging pieces. And I'm compelled by stories that are informational, that tell you what you didn't know going in – that I didn't know going in.”

Her latest film, “Detroit” is a no-less challenging dive into the violent soul of America, but this time, she's on the home front. The film, also from a script from Boal, is about the Algiers Motel incident, a relatively little-remembered event that took place amid the 1967 Detroit riots – an uprising sparked by a police raid of an after-hours club – and a reaction to a long history of oppression of the city's African-Americans. The riots, among the largest in U.S. history, left 43 dead and led to the deployment of thousands of national guardsman to a Detroit that raged in fire and fury.

“Detroit” seeks to show the historical context and individual reality of the riots, which many say should be called a “rebellion.” Within the chaos was the particularly heinous act at the Algiers Motel. Three unarmed black males were killed in an encounter with police and nine others (seven of them black) were beaten and terrorized. Three officers were charged with murder, as well as other crimes, but found not guilty.

Boal approached Bigelow about making a film about the incident shortly after a St. Louis County grand jury decided not to indict police officer Darren Wilson, whose fatal shooting of Michael Brown prompted the protests in Ferguson, Missouri. The relevance of the tale, Bigelow said, fueled her motivation for making it.

“There was something sadly, tragically contemporaneous about this story,” Bigelow said. “How can this conversation happen in a meaningful way, is what I walk away asking. I'm just telling this story in as authentic and truthful and honest a way as we could given the information that is out there.”

The story for Boal began with Cleveland Larry Reed. During the riots, Reed (played by Algee Smith in the film) was an 18-year-old singer in the Dramatics, an up-and-coming Motown group whose concert was canceled that night. He and another bandmate bunkered down at the Algiers, only to find themselves swept into a nightmare. Reed, who met with Boal and later with Smith, never recovered from the ordeal; he gave up professional music, singing instead in church choirs.

“In the summer of 2014, I was drawn to this story after meeting Larry Reed and hearing him recount what had happened to him 50 years ago, and then, later on, hearing from other survivors of the Algiers,” Boal wrote in an email. “My idea for the movie was driven from the start by real people.”

Gregg Allman bared soul in final album

DETROIT

Only a tight circle of family and friends knew Gregg Allman had been diagnosed with liver cancer a second time and wouldn't survive it.

With limited time, the beloved musician and co-founder of the Allman Brothers Band set a course: He would return to Muscle Shoals, Alabama, where his band began, and make a musical statement that would, according to those intimately involved in his final studio album, reach back, resolve past with present and reveal his essence.

“It really captures who Gregg is,” said Don Was, producer of the “Southern Blood” album that is set for release on Sept. 8. “I think there was a tacit understanding that this album was an attempt to tie up the loose ends of his life.”

Allman, who died May 27 at age 69, spent a dozen days in March 2016 in the legendary Fame Studios recording the 10 songs that would comprise “Southern Blood.” Allman and his solo band cut two songs daily, but because of his health, sessions lasted only a few hours, Was said.

While the sessions were quick, Was said Allman was “fully present” and “at the peak of his interpretive powers.” He co-wrote one song, the aching lead-off track titled, “My Only True Friend,” but spent years deciding what to record.

The choices were no accident: There's Bob Dylan's “Going, Going, Gone,” Tim Buckley's “Once I Was” and Jackson Browne's “Song for Adam.” The latter features the songwriter and Allman's old friend on harmony vocal. Was said the song, about a friend of Browne's who died while mountain climbing, “struck a nerve with Gregg.”

“I know it always reminded him of Duane,” said Was, referring to Allman's guitar-playing brother, who died in a motorcycle crash in 1971 as the Allmans were reaching stardom.

When it came to recording the third verse, Allman choked up at the lyric, “It seems he stopped singing in the middle of the song.”

“You can hear his voice crack ... he never got the last two lines out,” Was said. There was talk of fixing it somehow, possibly having Browne deliver the line, but the song was among the mixes Allman approved the night before he died.

“To me, it's the linchpin emotional moment of the album – that's his exit,” said Was.

The high point for Scott Sharrard, Allman's guitarist, was co-writing “My Only True Friend.” Sharrard said he was staying at Allman's home a few years ago when he “had a vivid dream where Gregg was talking to Duane.” The guitarist remembered the words and started working on a song he envisioned “as a conversation across the universe between Duane and Gregg.”

Dear Annie

Messy roomie gets on his last nerve

Dear Annie: I hope you can stand another letter about roommate problems. I'm a single guy in my late 20s. I live with one roommate, "Larry," and he's getting on my last nerve.

Larry told me when he moved in that he was a clean person, didn't leave dishes in the sink, kept the bathroom tidy, always took out the trash – pretty much none of which has turned out to be true. He cooks big meals, and then leaves all the dishes in the sink for days. He leaves toothpaste specks on the mirror and never cleans the toilet. He does take out the trash now and again, but never the recycling.

I've tried talking to him about all of these issues. Sometimes he apologizes. Sometimes he points out my own messes. I leave mail and other random things lying around, but that's just clutter, not crime.

I'm tired of coming home to a gross apartment. It really puts me in a foul mood. We've still got six months left on our lease, and even then I can't really afford to move. So I might be stuck living with him for a while. How can I make a roommate clean up?

NOT THE MAID

Dear Not the Maid: It might as well be a law of nature: Living with roommates will save you money but cost you some serenity. The secret to not losing it completely lies in compromise and humility.

Compromise often means choosing your battles. Larry's standards for cleanliness will probably never rise to the level of yours, so decide which issues you truly can't tolerate. For instance, you might want to forgo fighting over the toothpaste specks on the mirror and focus instead on the dirty dishes, which can lead to bigger problems (such as ruined flatware and cockroaches). Sit down and discuss concrete rules – write them down even – such as doing dishes immediately after using them or before going to bed. Gently call him out the moment you see him violating the rule.

The second concept to employ here is humility. Are you really the perfect roommate? We tend to have excellent vision when spotting others' shortcomings but are myopic when it comes to seeing our own. If you focus more energy on cleaning your own messes, you'll be less annoyed with Larry's.

Dear Annie: I just read your column that featured the letter from "GSP Smith," who put a small security camera in her mom's retirement apartment. I did that, too, for my mother's apartment, and I was informed by the staff that it's illegal in Florida and many other states. Isn't that outrageous?! I had to remove it. I'd love to see this discussed in your column.

CARING DAUGHTER

Dear Caring Daughter: I did some research. While the staff was correct that it's illegal in many states, it seems the laws are changing on this issue. Readers, I would encourage you all to check what the laws are in your state and voice any concerns to your local representative.

Job interview should be a solo act

Dear Readers: Today's Sound Off is about bringing another person to a job interview.

Heloise

"Dear Heloise: It should be common knowledge that you don't bring your kids, husband or boyfriend or mother to your job interview. It's one of the quickest ways to be eliminated as a candidate for the job. And yet, just today I was about to interview a young woman of 23, and when I called her name, her boyfriend got up and said he was going into the interview with her to see to it that I didn't ask any questions that he didn't like.

"When I said he was not going into the interview, he said he had a few questions he wanted to ask, such as how much vacation time she'd get and could she leave at 3 p.m. on Fridays. I asked them to leave my office. Unless you need an interpreter, which is allowed, you shouldn't bring another person with you to an interview for a job."

KAREN IN LOUISIANA

Dear Readers: Transparent tape has many uses besides wrapping gifts, such as:

- ◆ When traveling, pack a small dispenser of tape for mending a loose hem.
- ◆ In an emergency, you can tape a cut finger and prevent bacteria from getting into the wound.
- ◆ The matte tape can be applied to a number of things to allow you to write your name.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I know there must be others like me who like their soft drinks cold but find that ice melts and dilutes the drink.

I pour a bit of a soft drink into each ice-cube tray and freeze it. When I use these, as they melt, they don't dilute my drink but still keep it cold. Love your column in the San Antonio Express-News.

BILLIE M.,
New Braunfels, Texas

Dear Heloise: For beachgoers, there are some things you should always pack in your beach bag besides tanning oil and a towel:

- ◆ Sunblock – everyone should use it, but this is especially important for children and very fair-skinned people who burn rather than tan.
- ◆ Meat tenderizer – this is good to have on hand if you are near an ocean that has jellyfish. Mix a little water with the tenderizer to make a paste, and apply it to the affected area.
- ◆ Slip-on shoes or rubber thongs for the feet – by midday, sand can get extremely hot, so don't go barefoot to the beach.
- ◆ A hat (one with a wide brim is best) – shield your head in the hot sun, as well as your eyes from ultraviolet rays.
- ◆ Bottled water – stay hydrated, and I can't emphasize this enough.

ALANA S.,
Ocean Park, Maine

Dear Heloise: My son came home from school with head lice! How could he have picked up lice?

LANA F.,
Barberton, Ohio

Lana, there is no correlation between personal hygiene and contracting head lice. There are many over-the-counter remedies for head lice.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Happy Birthday! In The Next Year: Romance will be the star pursuit at the top of this solar return. Also (perhaps inspired by love), you'll succeed in creating new habits and lifestyle transformations over the next three months. Early 2018 presents fresh financial options. You won't be sorry if you choose the stable, steady climb instead of the flashy, trendy path. Pisces and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 14, 28 and 13.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Happy birthday to Harry Potter creator J.K. Rowling, who was born under an entertaining Leo sun. The predominant influence in the Leo author's chart is that of the hardworking and often-reserved Virgo. Rowling's having five luminaries in Virgo promises that she is endlessly productive, much to the delight of the literary world.

♈ARIES (March 21-April 19). Moods are like weather. They are not contained inside our body; rather, they radiate out and affect anyone nearby. The angry find irritation in every object. The amorous find love in every eye.

♉TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Though there are instances when a little competition makes things interesting, in your current cosmic position it is not advised. In fact, competition may very well be the killer of romance and friendship.

♊GEMINI (May 21-June 21). What you feel with your heart and soul may be impractical, illogical and whimsical beyond your comfort level. Regardless, your heart and soul have the wheel. They'll steer you there whether or not it makes any sense.

♋CANCER (June 22-July 22). You have a strong point of view but will not be inclined to argue it. After all, it's not that important to you that others think you're right or do it your way. What's important to you is finding a way to work together.

♌LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Embrace the entirety of who you are -- your strengths and vulnerabilities, the parts that align with the popular morals and rules, the parts that don't, the refined and the rough. There is an awesome power in deep self-acceptance.

♍VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Mastery tempered with humility -- this is the balance to strike. When you are knowledgeable and skilled yet wisely humble, you'll be able to rein in, harness and direct the power within you toward a challenging aim.

♎LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Every dalliance demands a tribute. The costs are usually not upfront and clearly marked on the menu. You learn them by weighing carefully each interaction. Let one question guide you: What's in it for them?

♏SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). A sincere desire to learn -- this is all that the teacher will ask of you. So don't worry about whether you are prepared or have the prerequisites to absorb the lesson. For the willing student, education is inevitable.

♐SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll be the first to suggest a smart, loving compromise to the problem that plagues your relationship. But it doesn't end there. This is just the start of the conversation. This is something you can handle together.

♑CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It's a principle of advertisement: More exposure equals more response. The best ad in the world won't work if no one sees it. Get your message out there as many times and to as many people as possible.

♒AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll be the winner. That doesn't necessarily mean you'll take home the top prize. The winner isn't always the victor with the trophy.

♓PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Special things are only truly special if they happen very infrequently. The rare thing is precious because it's rare. Be choosy about when and to whom you offer the special thing you give, or it will become ordinary and expected.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I'm a Pisces, and I've fallen for an Aries. This person doesn't know my feelings. We are both involved in other relationships. But something happens whenever we work together. It's a powerful click. He seems to know what I'm thinking. He answers questions I didn't even ask out loud but really wanted to know. He does silly things just to make me laugh. He says he loves hearing the sound of my laugh. No one has ever said that to me before, certainly not my current partner. When I know that I am going to see him or be near him, I get a stomachache that doesn't go away until he leaves. What does it mean? Were we meant to be together? I do love my current partner -- a Capricorn. But this Aries feels like destiny." As a Pisces, the sign of spirit, you can truly understand how humans can enjoy all kinds of energetic combinations without taking things to an inappropriate place. In other words, celebrate the special friendship, working relationship and synergy you have with this person and don't try to make it more than it is. Not everything is about running off and starting a life with someone. Sometimes it's just about enjoying a moment of connection, appropriately for the circumstance you're in.

Man beats odds of catching blue lobster, donates it to science

PORTSMOUTH, N.H.

A New Hampshire lobsterman has joined an elite club after catching a rare blue lobster.

The Portsmouth Herald reports Greg Ward initially thought he had snagged an albino lobster when he examined his catch off the coast July 17 where New Hampshire borders Maine. The Rye lobsterman quickly realized his hard-shell lobster was a unique blue and cream color.

The oft-cited odds of catching a blue lobster are 1 in 2 million. But no one knows for sure.

Ward says the lobster is unlike anything he's ever seen. He gave the rare crustacean to the Seacoast Science Center in Rye to study and put on display.

Center aquarist Rob Royer says

Ward's blue lobster would go on display in the exotic lobster tank once it acclimated to the water.

Self-described drug dealer calls 911, reports stolen cocaine

FORT WALTON BEACH, FLA.

Calling 911 to report a stolen bag of cocaine probably wasn't the best idea for a self-described Florida drug dealer.

But Okaloosa Sheriff's officials wrote on Facebook that 32-year-old David Blackmon did just that July 16.

The post says Blackmon called 911 to report a robbery in Fort Walton Beach. Blackmon told the responding deputy that someone entered his car and took $50 and about a quarter ounce of cocaine from the center console.

The report says the deputy spotted some cocaine and a crack rock on the console and a crack pipe on the floorboard by the driver's side door.

Blackmon is charged with possession of cocaine and resisting arrest without violence. He was released from jail July 18, but records don't list a lawyer.

New librarian finds live Civil War-era shells in office

CARLISLE, MASS.

A Massachusetts librarian on her first day on the job has come across live military shells from the Civil War inside a closet in her new office.

Gleason Public Library director Abby Noland tells The Boston Globe she found the shells July 20 inside a box with a label explaining they had been examined by a munitions expert and could be live. She called police, who evacuated the library in Carlisle.

The state bomb squad later arrived and determined the shells were live. It took the shells to the town transfer station to safely detonate them.

The shells turned out to be part of a Gettysburg collection that was donated to the town years ago.

Will it be 'Bye Bye' to 'Birdie' for J. Lo?

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q. I'm sorry to hear that the Jennifer Lopez version of "Bye Bye Birdie" won't be on this year. Will it ever be done? — Maria Douglas, Boynton Beach, Fla.

A. Next year, supposedly. At least that's what NBC said when they made the announcement of the musical's delay. The network remains very much in business with Lopez, having renewed both of her shows, "Shades of Blue" and "World of Dance" ... but her busy schedule was the reason given for the "Birdie" postponement. That doesn't look to get much lighter in immediate times to come, so we'll see.

Q. What happened to "Sun Records," the show that ran on Country Music Television? — Jack Heffelfinger, Reading, Pa.

A. At least for the time being, it's over. Though it was meant to run over three nights initially, it was changed to a weekly show for two months. CMT declined to order a second season, with the economics involved a likely factor, since that network made a big buy in saving "Nashville" after that series was canceled by ABC.

In a scenario similar to that one, the "Sun Records" producers were said to be seeking another home for their show — which dramatized the early careers of such music legends as Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash and Jerry Lee Lewis — though there were no developments on that front at the time of this writing.

Q. How can "Hawaii Five-0" continue without Daniel Dae Kim and Grace Park? — Chris Ross, via e-mail

A. Well, it will. The actors, executive producer all have weighed in with their takes on why the founding co-stars have left the show, and it's said that the Sept. 29 season premiere will explain the unexpected absence of their characters, cousins Chin Ho and Kono. Some other long-running shows have dealt with cast departures reasonably well, "M*A*S*H" and "Beverly Hills, 90210" being among famous examples.

If there's an upside here, it's that the circumstances give the makers of "Five-0" the chance for some creative reinvention ... though at the same time, one doesn't want to mess too much with a successful formula, particularly one that also serviced an earlier CBS version of "Five-0" that ran for 12 years. It bears mention that on that show, Chin Ho (then played by Kam Fong) left after 10 seasons and Kono (played by Zulu) after four. Even the original "Danno" (James MacArthur) didn't stay for the final year.

Q. What was the name of the "Party of Five" spinoff that starred Jennifer Love Hewitt? — Kate Fryer, Bend, Ore.

A. It was "Time of Your Life," and it had an interesting history. Lower-than-hoped-for ratings led Fox to pull it from the lineup after three months, and an attempt at a relaunch the following summer (2000) didn't work very well. It officially was canceled at that point, but six years later, TBS ran the seven episodes that hadn't been shown by Fox.

One reason may have been that by then, "Time" co-star Jennifer Garner had become a major television star in her own right with "Alias." Also prominent in the "Time" cast was another actress who also went on to a much more successful run, and one that's still going — Pauley Perrette of "NCIS."

Q. Will the new "Roseanne" be on this fall? — Robin White, Grove City, Ohio

A. ABC is planning it as a midseason entry, possibly to separate it from other fall series revivals including NBC's "Will & Grace" and The CW's "Dynasty." That's also giving the writers some extra time to figure out such things as how Dan (John Goodman) is still present, since the finale of the original series revealed that he had died.

Kellie Pickler still has enough ‘Love’ to go around for Season 3

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

As she starts the third season of her unscripted series, there's still a lot of love around Kellie Pickler.

The country-music star and “American Idol” alum and her husband — songwriter Kyle Jacobs — again let the cameras be up-close and constantly on them as “I Love Kellie Pickler” resumes with new episodes Thursday, Aug. 3, on Country Music Television. Among the couple's off-stage adventures this time: buying a house in Nashville, and making a trek to Alaska.

With each episode subtitle starting with “I Love ...,” Pickler maintains there are still plenty of things for her to adore. “We’ve had a ball,” the friendly, spirited singer says. “We’ve been able to do some pretty incredible things and travel and mark things off our bucket list. It’s been really wonderful.” Pickler notes Alaska is the only state she and Jacobs hadn’t visited: “We were planning to go regardless, but we ended up filming it for the show. It was great.”

Becoming a homeowner also is major, Pickler maintains. “Kyle and I live in the city area, which is nice for work and commuting back-and-forth, but we are ready for some land and to just get a little bit out of Nashville. It is crazy-booming now, with construction everywhere. It’s growing fast.” And did Pickler and Jacobs choose a newly built house or a rehabbed home? “You’ll have to watch the show!,” she teases.

The third round of “I Love Kellie Pickler” — reuniting the title star with fellow “American Idol” veteran Ryan Seacrest, the show’s executive producer — comes at an active time for her. Around concert dates that have included Nashville’s annual CMA Music Festival, she recently performed on the PBS special “A Capitol Fourth” (albeit on tape from the previous night’s rehearsal, since she took ill later), and she’ll soon co-host a new talk show with Ben Aaron (husband of “Good Morning America’s” Ginger Zee), executive-produced by country icon Faith Hill.

The “American Idol” alum returns in Season 3 of “I Love Kellie Pickler,” starting Thursday on Country Music Television.

Pickler also has ongoing television fame as the Season 16 winner (with pro partner Derek Hough) of ABC’s “Dancing With the Stars,” and she’s interested to see what that network does with the upcoming revival of “American Idol.” She acknowledges that show “was the rocket that launched my career and helped my dreams become reality. It does wonderful things, taking people from small towns who never would have had that opportunity and transforming their lives overnight. I’m happy to see it come back.”

Having done “I Love Kellie Pickler” for this long is a help in tackling other TV ventures, Pickler believes. “Luckily, the production crew that we work with is like family,” she reflects, “and of course, everyone at CMT. I’ve had a home there since I was 19, and they’ve always taken care of me. Most every day when we wrap up shooting, the crew ends up staying and hanging out for a little bit. You know you’re in good company and with friends when you hang out after working 20 hours a day together.”
