Board votes to apply for two-year $150K state grant to supplement costs

THE VINDICATOR

The Mahoning County Sheriff’s department wants to make contact with residents who overdose within 24 hours.

A new quick response team—comprised of deputy sheriffs, emergency medical services representatives and animal control investigators—will help make that a reality.

The Mahoning County commissioners voted Tuesday to apply for a two-year, $150,000 grant from state Attorney General’s office to supplement the costs of implementing the team.

The grant requires the team make contact within 24 hours of an overdose. Sheriff Sam正义 said his goal is 24 hours.

“Out of all the things we’ve done with the opioid epidemic, I think this one is going to be one of the most effective,” Greene said. DeWine, executive director of the Mahoning County Mental Health and Recovery Board, said the county modeled the program after a similar effort in Hamilton County. That program resulted in 80 percent of people who overdosed entering treatment within 24 hours.

“We’re pretty excited about the impact it’s going to have,” Greene said.

Angry white men are fueling racial violence

By DOROTHY GATLON
Chicago Tribune

Unlike the bigoted protesters in the 1960s, the demonstrators in Charlottesville, Va., did not wear hoods. On Saturday, we saw those hoods clearly. And they were angry white men.

If we are to get to the root of the recent escalation of confrontational bigotry in America, we must acknowledge who is fueling it. That is the growing demographic of insecure, economically disadvantaged white males who blame their social and economic failures on everyone but themselves.

Demonstrations like the one last weekend represent the false notion that white men are losing the unfair advantage they have enjoyed in America since the 1960s.

The fear that African-Americans would somehow gain economic parity with white men has long been one of the driving forces behind bigotry in our country. Today, that bigotry has been expanded into a cultural war against immigrants – a fight that is largely defined by education or more specifically, the lack thereof.

Americans who thought they would simply die out with the rural population became the unloved, voiceless dispossessed. Young men are left on the outskirts of society, with no government experience to talk about. What the American people learned is Trump is just as short tempered and abrasive in conversations with his predecessors as he is in conversations with the people, and that’s fine. They know, and if he causes the problems, then the candidates and the politicians that support him have no blame.

The most dangerous response would be for the country to lose confidence in the President because he has broken down the wall of confidentiality between the people and their government. That is a dangerous state of affairs.

Although we support the President to do what he can to keep the country safe, we must not give up on the Constitution. It is the only thing that protects our rights.

This just goes to show that the Trump administration has no plan for the future of this planet. The damage that could be done is unimaginable.

Nothing they’ve said suggest the just as short term and abrasive in conversations with the people. They are responding to heckles on the campaign trail, to the people, and if he causes the problems, then the candidates and the politicians that support him have no blame.

While automation is on many job sectors, local workers have also seen their roles change and go overseas, U.S. Rep. Tim Ryan said.

That’s why Ryan and other lawmakers have called for a new trade model that benefits workers and doesn’t outsource jobs, he said at a Tuesday American Fair Trade Agreement.

“NAFTA went into effect 24 years ago,” Ryan said. “It’s time to begin today between the U.S. and Mexico.”

The round of renegotiations of the trade deal are to begin today between the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

Ryan of Howland, D-3rd, Rose DeLauro, a Democrat from Connecticut, Celeste Dix, trade policy specialist with the AFL-CIO, and Lori Vahid, director of Public Policy for the Community Health System, discussed a Townhall Watch panel on Wednesday, watched on a Twitter feed.

Those who want to see the NAFTA repealed and sluggish growth in the US.

“We have a historic opportunity to change the future of American citizens,” she said. “The current deals are no longer served and come to drive NAFTA’s penalties of today, the deal is worse today than ever.”

U.S. Sen. Sherrod Brown, a Democrat from Cleveland, shared what he was to expect to happen with NAFTA in an op-ed in USA Today.

“The way exactly what causes our export. Few, yes, exploited workers, and environmental protections in that way. "That’s why this time, we must once again make it public to NAFTA’s penalties of previous"...to look over all the negotiating table.”

Coates battling to get back

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Sammie Coates isn’t taking it easy on the practice field.
It doesn’t matter to him how young he is, how many years he has been in the NFL, or what game he is playing.

When the first five games last season he stepped in for toddler receiver Martavis work; WNIO-AM 1390.

You always have to be ready for what’s next. You never know what’s going to happen.

You always have to prove yourself. I don’t care how good a season you had or how bad a season you had,” Coates said. “You always have to prove to them and drive them away capable of doing the same things you did before.

You always have to show you’re better. You always have to keep doing things. You can’t get complacent. You have to keep doing them.

called a remaining diamond with dummy’s two of hearts. When declarer led dummy’s queen of hearts, Aida made the heart of not playing the queen with the long. This might seem to be a broken plan as it would have blown a trick had partner started with the singleton 10 of hearts, for example. From Aida’s viewpoint, however, it was a sure thing. Partner’s eight of clubs lead was likely a singleton and Aida gained as honor in clubs in any event. Jan now made the clubs, of the long king of diamonds and dummy’s jack of diamonds to justify his opening bid.

Jan was true with the ace and exited with the trump king. South ruff and his king to the hand to play another round of trump. South led the last club to his hand and Aida ruffed this with the singleton spade to a club ruff. She still held the king of hearts as Aida exited.

If you're planning a trip to California wine country for harvest this year or just knocking the trip off of your "bucket list" make sure you budget some time to explore Sonoma County. This incredible region has just won the west of the Napa Valley and is an easy day trip from San Francisco.

Sonoma County’s history began in 1812 when Russian colonists planted the first grapes along the coast. The famed Beringer Vineyard was founded in 1875 by Hungarian Count Agoston Haraszthy, who is considered to be the father of the modern California Wine industry. By 1920 there were more than 250 wineries with more than 22,000 acres in production. A post-war grape glut slowed things down and plans to rebuild their businesses.

Today’s Sonoma is a very different place, with new, small wineries and a focus on sustainable farming. There is a lot of detailed information on line to help you with your planning. Most importantly, pick a few bottles of Sonoma wines to take home with you. Sonoma County is one of the most diverse wine regions on the planet, and that diversity provides incredible opportunities for wine lovers and wine writers alike. It is home to 17 distinct American Viticultural Areas, including the famous Russian River Valley, Chalk Hill, Alexander Valley Larnerov, and the Dry Creek Valley. This region lies just to the west of Napa Valley and is considered to be the father of California wine country for harvest.

Influential Beauty-Dunaway film was a misfire at first

By JIM COYLE

NEW YORK

"Bonnie and Clyde" might have been a box-office hit if it hadn't exactly captured the spirit of the anti-authoritarian underworld of the 1960s. "Bonnie," played by Faye Dunaway, and "Clyde," played by Warren Beatty, were the prototypical film anti-heroes of the time. However, the film did not achieve the same level of box-office success as "Ace in the Hole," another anti-establishment film that was released in the 1960s.

"Bonnie and Clyde" was released in 1967, and it was an instant hit. The film became a cultural phenomenon, inspiring a generation of young people to rebel against the established norms of their time.

The film, starring Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway as the2 anti-authoritarian heroes, was a cultural sensation, one of the biggest box-office hits of the decade. At the time of its release, the film was considered to be a "bad" film. However, it went on to become a cult classic and is now considered one of the greatest films of all time.

"Bonnie and Clyde" was a film that captured the spirit of the anti-authoritarian '60s with a pair of anti-heroic protagonists. The film's anti-establishment themes and its depiction of the American New Wave - the "New Hollywood" of Coppola, Scorcese, Altman and others - is a fitting, in a way, that "Bonnie and Clyde" should be celebrated with a veneration. That it was established as a "bad" film is a testament to the film's enduring popularity.

The film's box-office success was not immediate, but it was sustained over time. The film was released in 1967, and it was an instant hit. The film became a cultural phenomenon, inspiring a generation of young people to rebel against the established norms of their time.

If you want to learn more about the making of "Bonnie and Clyde," you can visit the official website or read the book "Bonnie and Clyde: The Myth of the Outlaw Couple" by Theodore Kunkel. The book provides a detailed account of the film's production and has been praised for its accuracy and insight.
Austintown Juniorites serve community

Under the direction of advisor Kerri Sahli and Kelly Constanta, The General Federation of Women’s Clubs of Ohio Austintown Juniorites are continuing their volunteer efforts by collecting school supplies and bag totes for the Bratneau House. During the summer, the group participated in various projects that helped community organizations in the Austintown area. Any teen girls interested in joining can contact the Austintown Junior Women’s League via Facebook.com/AJWL2014. Above, sitting from left, are Jordan Evans, Gina Difrancesco, Kayla Sahli, Rachel Difrancesco and Lauren Dolak. Back row, from left, are Camryn Constant, Erica Difrancesco, Alanna Constanta, Ella and Olivia Swiercz.

Dear Annie:
I have a concern that has many reasons, drives me up the wall. This is the thing. I am about 25 years old and six years out from my full-time job. I am a single mother, and for the sake of my daughter I do my best to go about my daily life. Sometimes it’s good, like when you say “That’s not so bad,” but other times it’s not so good, and you have to bear it.

Tiffanie, I’m happy to re- share my favorite recipes with you. Here is a

[3 ground] package of ground beef

[1 cup] Italian dressing (or your choice)

[1/2 cup] vegetable or olive oil

[3] servings

Place all ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Stir until well combined. You can add a tablespoon of lemon juice if you want something a little bit tangier, but I don’t recommend it.

If you’re looking for more recipes that I have been featured on the YWCA, www.youtube.com, or search allison thompson, business-artist, for some videos on my diet. Email Allison/MJadez, D.F. 7640 Glenwood Ave., Austintown, OH 44515.

Since you asked for two recipes, I’m going to share my first one, which is just a basic lasagna recipe. Once you start cooking, you’ll find that lasagna is a very comforting dish. Enjoy!

Dear Readers,
I have a feeling you’ll like the first recipe I’m sharing of mine in my mother’s words of wisdom book, “Heloise’s Kitchen Tricks” featured in 1962. I tested it and it’s as reliable now as it was when Momma wrote in Ohio to say that she had shared this recipe into huge chunks, placed it in a blender, then covered it with a coverer. This helped it stay firm and kept the meat, and she had nothing to add except some green salad, sautéed, if you have them.
