YSU survey: 46 percent of faculty are less optimistic

Results shed new light on climate in workplace

By AMANDA TONOLI
attonoli@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

Despite open forums and new committees formed after a 2016 climate survey that took sharp aim at leadership and communication, Youngstown State University's 2017 survey results are lower in key areas.

About 46 percent of those surveyed at YSU said they are less positive about the workplace climate improving since the 2016 survey, according to the Chronicle of Higher Education's "Great Colleges to Work For" Campus Climate Survey results.

In addition, 29 percent reported feeling less positive about senior leadership taking action based on the results of last year's data.

BOARDMAN

U.S. Sen. Rob Portman, a Cincinnati-area Republican, visited the Valley on Friday to talk about a topic that local law enforcement and health-care professionals agree is a worsening problem: human trafficking.

At a roundtable discussion at St. Elizabeth Boardman Hospital, Portman met with representatives of the Northeast Ohio Coalition Against Human Trafficking, Mercy Health officials and local law enforcement and elected officials. Youngstown Mayor John A. McNally, Maj.

TOTAL DECLINE IN ALLEGIANT PASSENGERS

Allegiant Air lines announced Friday that it would be removing their flights from Youngstown-Warren Regional Airport on Jan. 4. The company stated decline in passengers as the main reason. The January-through-July passenger figures show a decline of 39 percent in the past year.

Allieant Air told a Youngtown-Warren Regional Airport official Aug. 18 that the airline planned to end service at the airport, but that fact was kept from the public and most local government leaders until Friday.

"I'M VERY SAD TO HEAR THIS. THAT'S BEEN SOMETHING THAT WE'VE STRUGGLED WITH ... GETTING A STABLE AIRLINE IN THERE AS AN ANCHOR FOR THE AIRPORT."

ANTHONY TRAFICANTI, Mahoning commissioner

Airport Aviation Director Dan Dickten told The Vindicator he received the news last Friday from Allegiant.

He then shared that information with Western Reserve Port Authority Executive Director John Moliterno. The WRPA oversees the airport.

And for the next seven days, that's where the news of the imminent departure of the airport's only commercial airliner remained until Friday, when the Warren Tribune-Chronicle reported that Allegiant would be leaving the airport Jan. 4 because of a slowdown in service.

Aside from not informing the public, others with a direct interest in the airport were left out of the news. Two members of the Mahoning County Board of Commissioners interviewed

Harvey slams Texas coast

Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS

Hurricane Harvey smashed into Texas late Friday, lashing a wide swath of the Gulf Coast with strong winds and torrential rain from the fiercest hurricane to hit the U.S. in more than a decade.

The National Hurricane Center said the eye of the Category 4 hurricane made landfall about 10 p.m. about 30 miles northeast of Corpus Christi between Port Aransas and Port O'Connor, bringing with it 130 mph sustained winds and flooding rains.

Harvey's approach sent tens of thousands of residents fleeing the Gulf Coast, hoping to escape the wrath of an increasingly menacing storm set to slam an area of Texas that includes oil refineries, chemical plants and dangerously flood-prone Houston, the nation's fourth-largest city.

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott warned that the monster system would be "a very major disaster," and the predictions drew fearful comparisons to Hurricane Katrina, one of the deadliest ever to strike the U.S.

"We know that we've got millions of people who are going to feel the impact of this storm," said Dennis Feltgen, a spokesman and meteorologist for the National Hurricane Center. "We really pray that people are listening to their emergency managers and get out of harm's way."

Trump pardons ex-Ariz. sheriff

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

President Donald Trump spared his ally former Sheriff Joe Arpaio a possible jail sentence Friday by pardoning his conviction.

Trump's action reverses what critics saw as a long-awaited comeuppance for a lawman who escaped accountability for headline-grabbing tactics during most of his 24 years as metropolitan Phoenix's top law enforcer.

The White House said the 85-year-old ex-sheriff was a "worthy candidate" for a presidential pardon.

"Throughout his time as Sheriff, Arpaio continued his life's work of protecting the public from the scourges of crime and illegal immigration," the White House statement said.

Project at fire station to honor safety services, 9/11 victims

By JORDYN GRZELEWSKI

BOARDMAN

Township officials have plans for another project on the Market Street property where a new fire station is being built.

The township hopes to corral community support to build a memorial honoring safety-service workers.

"The thought was, we really don't have any location within the township to honor safety services – our police officers, our firefighters," said Fire Chief Mark Pitzer. "They do an extraordinary job here in the township."

The memorial also will pay tribute to the police officers and firefighters who died as a result of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Pitzer noted that Sept. 11, 2001, was a "very, very significant" day for safety-service workers, with hundreds of firefighters and paramedics

Awaiting extradition of suspect from Fla.

HUBBARD

Police are awaiting extradition of a suspect after he was found with a teenage girl who had been missing.

Madison Copley, 15, of Hubbard was found Friday in Clearwater, Fla., Hubbard City Police Chief James Taafe said.

Taafe said the girl seemed to be healthy and free from injury. Her family reported her missing Aug. 13 after she ran away from home the night before, police said.

The man who was with her, Malik Williams, 21, of Solon, faces charges through Girard Municipal Court of contributing to the delinquency of a child and unlawful sexual conduct with a minor.

Taafe said investigators are reviewing whether to file additional charges against Williams.

"We're just very happy that she was found safe and sound," Taafe said.

For the military

HOWLAND

The USO of Northern Ohio is having a supply drive for its new Care Package Distribution Facility in Howland. People are encouraged to drop off snacks and personal-care items (travel size), which will be packaged and sent to overseas-deployed military members.

The Warren Harley-Davidson Owners Group has been a partner in organizing this event, and 50-plus motorcycles will be meeting at the Care Package Distribution Facility at 1 p.m. today. With these volunteers will be members from the Ohio State Highway Patrol, Air Force Association and others providing refreshments and music for the supply drive.

The USO of Northern Ohio provides programs and support services for active military members from the 31 northernmost counties in Ohio. The Care Package Distribution Facility, 160 Clifton Drive NE, Howland, is one of two facilities in northern Ohio from which packages are shipped weekly to the military overseas.

Back to School Bash for Cardinal Mooney

YOUNGSTOWN

Cardinal Mooney High School will host its second annual Back to School Bash from 3 to 6 p.m. Sunday at Cassese's MVR, 410 N. Walnut St. The bash is a new tradition bringing students, faculty and staff together to celebrate the start of a new school year. Last year's event attracted more than 500 members of the Mooney Family. Students enjoy free admission including food, cookies and soft drinks.

Before the event, a charity cornhole tournament will take place with proceeds benefiting the Carmine L. Cassese Scholarship Fund. The bash is invite only, but the cornhole tournament is open to the public with pre-event registration required at cardinalmooney.com/cornhole.

ALLEGIANT

by The Vindicator said they were not told of Allegiant's decision last week. In 2016, Mahoning County sent $1,075,373 in hotel bed tax revenues to the WRPA.

Two members of the Trumbull County Board of Commissioners, which sends $489,389 to the WRPA in hotel bed tax revenues, also said they were not told.

The Vindicator attended the port authority's finance committee meeting Tuesday and the board meeting Wednesday this past week, and the loss of Allegiant's service was not mentioned.

When asked by The Vindicator Friday morning about the news, WRPA Executive Director John Moliterno complained that the airport and the WRPA were "blindsided" by the news.

"We were informed by the media," he said. "There was no straightforward conversation [with Allegiant]."

But after Dickten told The Vindicator Allegiant did give him a heads-up Aug. 18 and that he indeed had shared that information, Moliterno amended his story saying that while he knew of a "simple" conversation an Allegiant representative had with Dickten, he wanted it in official writing that the airline was leaving before publicly revealing the news.

Late Friday afternoon, in a news release, Moliterno made yet another effort to explain the situation, stating Allegiant "informally notified the Authority that it plans to discontinue regular air service in early January of 2018. ... Allegiant appears to have decided to pursue a new business model for their airline that de-emphasizes smaller markets like Youngstown."

Moliterno

"I can tell you they 100 percent knew well in advance of today," Krysta Levy, Allegiant spokeswoman, said Friday. "The airport was notified the same way we would notify any airport — over the phone. There is no distinction between 'informal' and 'formal.'"

Allegiant also told The Vindicator at least one airport official and one county commissioner were aware of the service ending last week. Allegiant also confirmed the Aug. 18 conversation with Dickten.

"We didn't make a public announcement about it," added Levy. "In our discussions with the airport director, we agreed on the plan to let any affected customers know first so we could discuss their options with them."

WRPA Chairman Marty Loney said there were rumblings of the loss of service, but "nothing official" was released.

"We certainly don't want to see any activity at the airport diminish," Loney said. "We have to find out what their intentions were and what we could have done better."

WRPA Board Member Ron Klinge did not want to comment on when he found out about Allegiant leaving the airport.

Mahoning County Commissioner Anthony Traficanti said he was aware of rumblings, but he first heard news of Allegiant's departure from a Vindicator reporter.

"I'm very sad to hear this," he said. "That's been something that we've struggled with ... getting a stable airline in there as an anchor for the airport."

Carol Rimedio-Righetti, another Mahoning County commissioner, said she read about the decision in the newspaper. The decision impacts Mahoning County as well as Trumbull County, she said.

"I would have hoped that they could contact both counties and tell us that this was on the way," she added. "[Dickten's] the director of the airport; he probably should have done that."

Trumbull County Commissioner Frank Fuda called the news "terrible" and said many people have complimented the service the company provided. He also learned of Allegiant's decision from a Vindicator reporter.

"We just met with the port authority last week, and nobody mentioned anything about any problem with the airline," he said. "That's kind of disappointing, really."

Trumbull County Commissioner Dan Polivka also did not receive word from the airport that Allegiant had plans to discontinue service. He said the county fought to bring the airline here, and its departure is not good news.

"Hopefully some negotiations or something could be worked out with them before they completely pull out," he said. "We're going to be reaching out to the airport manager and the port authority director to see if there's anything we can do to try to keep them here, but it doesn't look good."

Mahoning County Commissioner David Ditzler and Trumbull County Commissioner Mauro Cantalamessa could not be reached for comment.

Allegiant came to the Youngstown airport in 2006 with service to Sanford/Orlando, Fla. In 2011, Myrtle Beach, S.C., and St. Petersburg, Fla., flights were added. In 2013, the local airport received its fourth Allegiant flight to Punta Gorda, Fla.

Flights to Punta Gorda out of Youngstown were put on hiatus in August 2016.

For several years, Youngstown was the only local airport offering Allegiant flights. Today, Allegiant has flights at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport and Pittsburgh International Airport. Allegiant had flights out of Akron-Canton Airport but stopped service there when it brought service to Cleveland.

Allegiant's number of passengers at the Vienna airport dropped by 39 percent so far in comparing 2016 to 2017.

"Demand in the area was simply not high enough to continue service at this time," Levy said in a statement. "Any passengers that have booked travel in or out of Youngstown after that date will be reached out to individually to be refunded or reaccommodated."

The plan by airport officials is to get new service as soon as possible.

"The airport is still a very active viable facility," Moliterno said. "Because of the fact that we have a long runway and the facilities, we do we very much want to get a commercial airline back. We aren't going to stop."

YSU

The 2016 results concerned the YSU community to the point that open forums and new committees were devised to improve the campus climate.

The questions or statements on the survey were ranked "more" or "less positive" by employees. For example, "shared governance" and "senior leadership" were ranked as the two least-positive themes.

YSU Provost Martin Abraham said the lower scores aren't negative, but merely more accurate.

The results this year differ from the results in 2016 due to a change in survey methods, the Chronicle's report says.

"In 2016 only a sample of employees were surveyed, while in 2017 the survey included all full-time employees and a sample of part-time faculty. ... The results for 2017 reflect campus perceptions more accurately, rather than less positively, in comparison to the 2016 results," the report notes.

Abraham reasoned respondents likely felt this way because administration didn't have sufficient time to implement changes.

"We didn't really start taking action to address the 2016 survey until the spring 2017 semester," he said. "The survey went out in the first two weeks of April. ... Now, we're not going to spend a lot of time talking about what to do because we have results showing we need to address the same problems.

"We're going to get into and keep working on those issues."

Abraham's Brown Bag Lunch Series and President Jim Tressel's town-hall meetings are two actions senior leadership took in the spring in response to the 2016 survey concerns with senior leadership.

Like in 2016, "shared governance" was a recurring theme ranked lowly among respondents.

The YSU Excellence Steering (YES) Committee recently put together a discussion draft to define shared governance and hopefully establish an efficient and effective way to put it into practice, said Chet Cooper, chairman of YSU's Academic Senate.

Cooper said the YES Committee is working on getting the mere concept established.

"If we can address shared governance, we can address hopefully a lot of other issues along with mutual respect and communication," Cooper said. "Working with the board of trustees, we hope to begin to lay a foundation of shared governance and all future policies and actions based upon a clear and accountable definition of shared governance."

Both Cooper and Abraham

agree that change will not happen overnight, but YSU is being set up for success with more accurate survey practices and specific written comments.

"It's been a little bit [of] broad strokes in the past, but now we're getting a little more specific," Cooper said. "Now it's time for all of us to take a look at the survey and start implementing some plans or strategies to address the concerns."

Abraham hopes to see better results with the next survey.

"We will continue to move forward by actually doing things the survey indicated we need to do, and bettering areas that need to get better," he said. "If we have a long-term effort and continuous improvement, I am hopeful when the survey result comes out this year and we get the results back a year from now we will start to see some kind of a turnaround."

Abraham said he wants to continue doing the surveys in the meantime.

"You value what you measure," he said. "We are committed to measuring improvement, and we want to continue to invest in this campus."

The top five, most positive, themes that were the highest ranked in both surveys were "supervisors/department chairs," "job satisfaction/support," "pride," "facilities" and "professional development."

Township officials will unveil plans for the memorial Sept. 11, when township trustees will meet and the annual Battle of the Badges softball game between township police officers and firefighters will take place.

Those planning the memorial envision a reflecting pool (in the shape of a pentagon, a nod to the Sept. 11 attack at the Pentagon), behind which will stand two sloping walls – one to honor police, the other to honor firefighters.

Images of police officers and firefighters holding up flags will be laser cut onto the walls. Pitzer said that in the event that any township police officer or firefighter were to die in the line of duty, their name would be etched on to the wall.

Between the two walls will be two 8-foot-tall towers (in honor of the attacks on the World Trade Center's twin towers), one projecting red lighting and the other projecting blue lighting. Behind the walls will be flags.

Pitzer said he envisions the memorial as having a "somer" feel.

Over the next several months, officials plan to reach out to community members, police, fire and trade union members, and others to contribute to the project. Officials hope to build it while construction on the fire station is taking place. The fire station is slated to be complete early next year.

The memorial will be located in front of the fire station, which is being constructed at the corner of Market and Stadium Drive.

"You won't be able to miss it," Pitzer said.

The announcement to pardon Arpaio came three days after a rally in Phoenix at which the president signaled his willingness to absolve the misdemeanor contempt-of-court conviction. It was Trump's first pardon as president.

"So was Sheriff Joe was convicted for doing his job?" Trump asked supporters at Tuesday's rally. "I'll make a prediction. I think he's going to be just fine, OK."

The pardon marked a devastating defeat for critics who believed the lawman sowed divisions by making hundreds of arrests in crackdowns that separated immigrant families and promoted a culture of cruelty by housing inmates in outdoor tents during triple-digit heat and forcing them to wear pink underwear.

They say it removed the last chance at holding Arpaio legally accountable for what they say is a long history of misconduct, including a 2013 civil verdict in which the sheriff's officers were found to have racially profiled Latinos in his immigration patrols.

Arpaio was accused of prolonging the patrols for 17 months after a judge had ordered them stopped so that he could promote his immigration enforcement efforts in a bid to boost his ultimately successful 2012 re-election campaign. The decision to ignore the 2011 order is believed to have contributed to Arpaio's 2016 loss to little-known retired Phoenix police Sgt. Paul Penzone.

Arpaio acknowledged extending the patrols, but insisted it wasn't intentional, blaming one of his former attorneys for not properly explaining the importance of the court order and brushing off the conviction as a "petty crime."

He accused then-President Barack Obama of trying to influence the 2016 sheriff's race by announcing in court weeks before Election Day that it was willing to prosecute Arpaio.

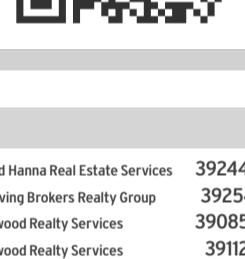

But the charge itself wasn't filed by prosecutors. It was recommended by the judge who presided over the profiling case and was filed by another judge, who later found Arpaio guilty of the charge.

Congressman Ryan reaches Youngstown teachers

By AMANDA TONOLI
atonoli@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

Practicing social-emotional learning in the classroom is what will transform schools for the better, U.S. Rep. Tim Ryan of Howland, D-13th, told Youngstown City Schools educators on Friday.

Social-emotional learning involves teachers connecting with students in order to get a better understanding of students' home lives and problems outside the classroom.

"We are teaching strategies for kids to become reflective about who they are, what choices they make, how they impact others, how to de-escalate when you're upset and how to choose another direction," explained Timothy Filipovich, Youngstown City Schools chief of academics, accountability and assessment, has said previously.

"When kids are in fight or flight mode, they're just worrying about survival and less about academics," Ryan said.

Ryan was joined by author Tim Shriver to discuss the importance of this practice – which is also a facet of school district CEO Krish Mohip's strategic plan – with Youngstown district teachers at East High.

"I love what Krish [Mohip] is doing with the district," Ryan said. "He is just one of the top leaders of this country, and it is clear he is moving the district in the right direction. ... This is the newest approach based on the latest data, and it works."

By practicing taking care of the whole child's well-being, Ryan said it takes that stress off a child worrying about survival and allows them to focus on academic success.

Ryan's visit was part of a kickoff event for teachers to start off the school year.

Ryan said he thought his message was received well.

"The enthusiasm here is truly just phenomenal," Ryan said.

Teachers attitudes mirrored what Ryan said.

"It was very inspiring," said Mary Cook, Taft Elementary third-grade teacher.

"The speech was authentic and real life and transparent. I enjoyed it."

Cook added that she thought this year's kickoff event to the school year was the best she attended in her eight years of teaching.

Taft second-grade teacher Jennifer Bednarik agreed.

"It was just motivational," she said. "It makes you want to jump in and just get started."

Independent Niles shop is all about books

By SARAH LEHR

NILES

A small storefront in Niles is a bastion of the printed word.

It lives on in the books that fill the windowsills and populate the shelves stacked to the ceiling.

Even though Paperback Shack, 6058 Youngstown-Warren Road, has been in business since 1978, owner Lisa Didiano says the store struggles with visibility.

"Our biggest challenge is people not knowing we exist," Didiano said.

The store, near Marc's Supermarket, is tucked into an office building at the corner of Youngstown-Warren Road and Niles-Cortland Road.

Didiano bought the store in July 2015. The previous owners sold books at flea markets. They also operated a second storefront, which they closed in the 1990s.

For Didiano, taking over Paperback Shack was a labor of love. She has fond memories of visiting the original store once a week with her grandfather, so he could pick out his reading material for the next seven days.

True to its name, the newly remodeled Paperback Shack specializes in paperback books, though it does sell a few hardcover editions.

The store stocks both new and used books. The used books, which sell at about half the price of books from a big-box store, are most popular. Customers can resell books to Paperback Shack in exchange for store credit. Paperback Shack will only accept used books if they are in excellent condition and if the store does not have a surplus of the title.

One day, Didiano hopes to expand the store's non-fiction section and to sell baked goods on the premises. She's worked to establish the store as a community hub, through events such as NaNoWriMo write-ins. NaNoWriMo, a reference to November as national novel-writing month, encourages amateur authors to write a 50,000-word novel by 11:50 p.m. on Nov. 30.

Didiano, who has a master of fine arts degree in creative writing, uses Paperback Shack to nurture her twin passions of writing and reading. She sells her editing services and teaches writing classes at the store. The four-week beginning creative writing class costs $100 total, the six-week intermediate creative writing class costs $150, and the novel writing class costs $300.

Cousins Gina Russo of Youngstown and Emily Russu of Poland are enrolled in the intermediate creative writing workshop. They like to browse the shelves at Paperback Shack while they wait for class to start.

"If you're a bookworm, like we are, you just kind of feel like this is where you belong," Russu said.

JOHN JOSEPH COSTELLO, 80

BROOKFIELD - There will be a funeral service held on Monday, Aug. 28, 2017, at 11 a.m. at the Rossi & Santucci Funeral Home, 4221 Market St. in Boardman (new location), for John Joseph Costello, 80, who died Monday, Aug. 21, 2017, at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown, with his family by his side.

John was born Oct. 15, 1936, in Youngstown, the son of Julius and Rachel (DiLallo) Costello and grew up on the east side of Youngstown.

He began his work career at Idora Park. He was proud to have been a part of it. He spent his 80th birthday at the Idora Park Museum and was interviewed on the evening news. In 1954, he graduated from South High School. He retired as a foreman in 1991, from Cold Metal Products, formerly Jones and Laughlin Company. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church, along with being a member of the Knights of Columbus, Father Gallagher's Council, and had achieved the honor of 4th Degree Knight.

John cherished his Italian heritage and traditions (especially Christmas Eve), the time he spent at his lake house with his family and friends, and his breakfasts at the Brookfield Diner. He also cherished the many golf leagues he belonged to with close friends and the championships won. His interests included new Cadillac cars, Friday night poker club, coin collecting, and cheering on the Cleveland Cavaliers, Indians, and The Ohio State University Buckeyes.

He is survived by his three daughters, Donna (Chris) Flauto of Poland, Cathy Brooke of Youngstown, and Julianne (William) George of Struthers; his former wife, Sophie Costello of Poland; eight grandchildren, Gary (Lauren) Flauto of Boardman, Jillian Flauto of Poland, James (Glenell) Brooke, Michael (Jolynn) Brooke, and Raymond Brooke, all of Struthers, Kelley (Ed) Ditata of Henderson, Nev., Sara (Anthony) George of New Albany, and Rachel George of Struthers; and five great-grandchildren, Christopher and Jayla Brooke and Tenley, Everly, and Wesley Ditata.

Nancy Kearns Morris blazed trail of community leadership

THOSE ATTENDING TODAY'S memorial service at St. John Episcopal Church in Youngstown for Nancy Kearns Morris recognize the gold standard of civic leadership she achieved throughout her life.

Scores and scores of others who will not attend this morning's fitting celebration of the civic activist and philanthropist never met Mrs. Kearns Morris but have benefited greatly from her lifetime of community service.

In short, Mrs. Kearns Morris of Liberty, who died recently at age 89, rose as a true results-focused leader. No, she was not a mayor, township trustee, school board member or other elected public official in the realm of politics.

Rather she channeled her talented and committed leadership acumen toward a wide variety of community, civic and civil-rights causes close to her heart. Collectively, they have made Greater Youngstown a better place for all.

Consider a few of the domains in which the New York-born woman has left her mark on the Mahoning Valley.

For many, she served as the face behind the community-minded initiatives of the Youngstown YWCA, including housing and supportive services for homeless women and victims of domestic violence. She also thrust herself into a prime mission of the national YWCA in working to achieve greater racial justice in communities across the United States.

CIVIL-RIGHTS LEGACY

Locally, that longstanding commitment to civil rights dates back to the 1960s, when she and her first husband helped to establish the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity, one of the first mainstream religious groups to take a strong and visible stand against racism and segregation.

Mrs. Kearns Morris also was a stalwart leader of the Junior League of Youngstown, an organization committed to promoting volunteerism and developing the full potential of women.

Her passion for St. John Episcopal and its community outreach was unbounded. She became the first female senior warden of its vestry, chairwoman of various commissions and co-founder of the St. John's Soup Kitchen, now known as The Red Door Cafe, which has served thousands of meals to the less fortunate for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Kearns Morris' talents also transcended community service. As a devoted watercolorist, she recently was recognized at the 35th Annual YWCA Women Artists Exhibition, which she co-founded in 1983. She also demonstrated a flair for writing as part of the Scribblers literary group in Youngstown and found time to treasure local history as a board member of the Mahoning Valley Historical Society and supported landscape enhancement and aesthetic enrichment via her work with Youngstown CityScape.

Her multidimensional talents and ability to inspire others to greatness truly brand her as a trailblazing leader. Her selfless drive to improve her community brings to mind this passage from 19th century philosopher and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson.

"Do not follow where the path may lead. Go instead where there is no path and leave a trail."

To be sure, Nancy Kearns Morris has left a long trail of good works for many to follow for years and decades to come.

Flawed Afghanistan plan

New York Times: If there is a compelling case to be made for deepening the United States military involvement in Afghanistan, where the 16-year-old war has already lasted longer than any other in American history, President Trump did not make it in his speech Monday night.

Rather than the comprehensive strategy that is called for, his plan amounted to a jumble of ideas that lacked detail and coherence and were often contradictory. Having spent years criticizing America's involvement in Afghanistan, he now appears inclined toward an open-ended commitment, but with no real ways to measure success and no hint of a timetable for withdrawal.

With this speech, Mr. Trump has taken ownership of the war, which until now he has essentially fobbed off on the Pentagon.

A case can surely be made for maintaining American troops at current levels to keep the government from being overrun by the Taliban and to offset Pakistan, Iran and Russia as they seek to enlarge their influence. But as to the future? Mr. Trump and his administration need to provide many more answers.

Soft drinks don't 'feed the world'

By JILL RICHARDSON

OtherWords

Coca-Cola has a new ad in which a young girl wishes to grow a garden for the whole world. Then, as a grown woman who works for Coca-Cola, she says that she's fulfilling that dream.

The phrase "feed the world" is one that should always be questioned, because it's often used to promote the selfish aims of corporations that want to produce and sell as much food as possible – without regard to whether that food actually reaches the hungriest and most vulnerable people on the planet.

BEVERAGE COMPANY

But, putting that aside, the sentiment is even more laughable when it's touted by a beverage company.

Coca-Cola has a long history of selling its flagship product by playing on people's emotions. Coke drinkers associate the product with America, fun, family and sports.

In perhaps its most brilliant move, the company found a way to get Coca-Cola to the U.S. military while they fought in World War II in Europe.

American servicemen and women got a precious taste of home while fighting a grueling foreign war, and Coca-Cola got their lifetime brand loyalty – and the opportunity to build up a bottling infrastructure across Europe so they could expand internationally after the war.

The new ad provides Coke drinkers with the warm and fuzzy feeling that their beverage of choice is helping the poor. There are two problems with this idea.

First, soda in particular is bad for you. Especially when one has limited or no access to medical care – the plight of many poor people here and abroad – maladies like diabetes and tooth decay can be catastrophic.

In Appalachia, dentists refer to something they (unfortunately) call "Mountain Dew mouth." In that region, a quarter of preschoolers already have tooth decay. By age 18, more than one in seven have already had a tooth extracted because of the problem.

Second, the idea of "feeding the world" is usually based on the idea that the world doesn't produce enough food to feed everyone. But that's not true. We do produce enough food – more than enough – to feed the planet's entire population. We just don't distribute it equitably.

About 40 percent of the food in the U.S. is wasted, even while people in our country go hungry.

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

But even if production were the problem, if we were to get serious about using our agricultural resources to produce as much food as possible, then one way to do so is to stop wasting agricultural resources to produce things we don't actually need: sodas, wine, beer, coffee, tea, cut flowers, and so on.

I'm not suggesting we do this. Far from it. I need my coffee, and I appreciate a good beer. There are reasons to produce items that people enjoy even if they don't technically need them. But, if that's the business you're in, don't lie and claim you're "feeding the world."

I am not saying that nobody should drink soda, or that Coca-Cola should stop producing it. Let's just be honest about what it is. It's a sugary drink that provides no nutrition, and you may drink it because you enjoy it.

Trump wearing out his welcome in many venues at home, abroad

By ALBERT R. HUNT

Bloomberg View

President Bill Clinton went to Oklahoma City after a terrorist bombed the federal office building there in 1995. President George W. Bush lifted a bullhorn at the ruins of the World Trade Center on Sept. 14, 2001. President Barack Obama sang "Amazing Grace" in Charleston, S.C., at a funeral there for a victim of the 2015 shooting spree in a black church.

President Donald Trump can't go to Charlottesville, Va.

Trump is incapable of performing what has been an important role for presidents: healer-in-chief. Presidential visits to the sites of tragedies have provided temporary catharsis for a grieving nation irrespective of party. In Oklahoma City and Charleston, Democratic presidents led the grieving in red states. New York, where Republican Bush helped start the healing process, is blue.

UNWELCOME

By sowing bigotry, pitting groups against one another and showing no interest in courting the majority of voters who cast ballots for other candidates last November, Trump is being shunned across the U.S. and the world. The places and people with whom he has worn out his welcome include:

College campuses, minority venues and many big cities. He held a political rally Tuesday in Phoenix even though the mayor asked him to stay away.

U.S.-friendly foreign countries. There was an uproar in the British Parliament over the possibility of a Trump official visit this year, as prominent politicians, including the mayor of London, expressed opposition. Canadians have complained about Trump's participation next year in a Group of Seven summit meeting in Quebec, and expressed relief that it'll be held in a small, out-of-the-way town.

ADVISORY COUNCILS

Executive suites. Business leaders, usually eager to court favor with a national administration, pulled out of White House advisory councils after Trump blamed "many sides" for deadly violence provoked by a neo-Nazi rally in Charlottesville. Trump was forced to disband two business councils.

Sports champs. Kevin Durant, the Golden State Warriors' star, said that because of Trump, he wouldn't go to any White House ceremony honoring his team's National Basketball Association title. The coach of the University of North Carolina men's college basketball champions has been conspicuously unenthusiastic about the prospect of a Washington trip to be feted by the president.

Arts venues. The White House announced last weekend that Trump will stay away from the annual Kennedy Center ceremony in December honoring top American artists, now in its 40th year. Only four times in that period have presidents missed the event, in each case citing pressing global business. Trump's excuse was that he wanted to allow the "artists to celebrate without any political distraction" after several honorees said they wouldn't attend the related White House reception because of his comments on white nationalists and Charlottesville. The Kennedy Center event is typically bipartisan. The liberal activists Robert Redford and Barbra Streisand were honored when George W. Bush was president. (At the reception, Bush gave Streisand, a harsh critic, a kiss on the cheek; afterwards she said he was "charming.") The National Rifle Association's president, the right-wing ex-actor Charlton Heston, was honored when Bill Clinton was president, as was the left-wing playwright Arthur Miller when the chief executive was Ronald Reagan, who loved these evenings.

BIRTH MOVEMENT

As the Virginia aftermath continues to rage, Trump defenders insist that the president harbors no racial prejudices. But this is the man who led the so-called birther movement, the preposterous claim that Obama, the first African-American president, wasn't born in the U.S.; who insulted a judge as unfit because his parents were from Mexico; and who has leveled numerous, often false, charges against Muslims.

That's his record, so it doesn't matter what's in his heart. Veterans of the Robert F. Kennedy Justice Department in the early 1960s drew a distinction between two segregationist governors of the time: Ross Barnett of Mississippi, a true believer in racial separation and white superiority, and Alabama's George Wallace, an opportunist.

But their real feelings made little difference; both perpetuated evil.

Tasteless mockery of trailer-park life

By BROOKE BINKOWSKI

Los Angeles Times (TNS)

A new restaurant has opened in San Diego's tony Gaslamp Quarter, one with an unsavory theme: Trailer Park After Dark. The underground restaurant and self-described "five star dive bar" features fashionably mismatched furniture, shopping carts for seating, wood wall paneling, actual trailers scattered around the room and dishes with names such as "Meat Tubes" (hot dogs) and "Twerkin' Melon" (a graham cracker and watermelon confection).

If this were merely an example of 1970s nostalgia, as one might think from the wood paneling, I'd let it go. But it has the stench of classism – so I can't.

As a kid, we were poor enough that I lived in a trailer park with my grandparents for a while. It wasn't a hardship; I loved its compactness and our neighbors. We never had a lot of money and went through some extraordinarily lean years, but we got through them as best we could. I thought my family did a good job of it, too. However, it was eventually made clear to me, through years of subtle looks and pointed comments, that trailer parks are "trashy."

I finally made it into the middle class in my 30s, after I made enough money to put myself through college. I am extremely lucky, and I know it.

And now people with too much money will be imitating my childhood milieu, eating overpriced foods that rich white people think "trailer trash" like. As if we'd have eaten canned green beans and tater tots covered with melted government cheese if we'd had a choice. Rich people can walk down Fifth Avenue avoiding eye contact with people trying to panhandle so they can buy a meal or perhaps some booze because being homeless sucks – then go into this restaurant and buy a $10 grilled cheese sandwich.

POVERTY AS ENTERTAINMENT

America has a long history of treating its impoverished as entertainment. During the Gilded Age of the 1800s, rich New Yorkers would stand in line for hours to see the way people lived in the slums, sometimes posing as charity workers so that they could push their way into people's homes and get a good look around.

Oliver Twist-style stories about the plucky poor – a media favorite – are another example of poverty-as-entertainment. The restaurant employee who walked to get to work because he couldn't afford a car. The homeless man who was a radio star before addiction claimed his career.

These "inspirational" stories, like carnivals and slum tours, have a secondary purpose: reinforcing stereotypes. The helpless poor person, who is almost always not white, is saved from an untenable situation not by pluck alone, but with the assistance of a generous, rich and usually white person who just happened on the situation, with not a single thought spared for the underlying structural forces that caused it – a dearth of available health care or addiction treatment; ever-rising housing prices; redlining; stigma attached to mental health issues.

Perhaps Trailer Park After Dark has more of a conscience than I can perceive. Perhaps the owners are doing good works out of the spotlight. I don't know, because multiple requests for comment, via phone and email, were not answered.

But even if they're doing homeless outreach, serving people for free who can't afford to eat, or building homeless shelters on their days off, they are still using my life, and the life of my family and childhood friends, as fodder for the rich-kid nightclub set.

It was an extraordinary public rebuke of the president by a senior adviser and came just as Cohn will be a key figure in the administration's fall push for sweeping tax reforms.

Meeting in Nashville, Tenn., the RNC approved a raft of resolutions, including one asserting "Nazis, the KKK, white supremacists and others are repulsive, evil and have no fruitful place in the United States."

Trump setting records for low presidential approval

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Donald Trump started as the most unpopular new president in the history of modern polling. After seven months, things have only gotten worse.

Plunging into undesirably uncharted territory, Trump is setting records with his dismally low approval ratings, including the lowest mark ever for a president in his first year. In fact, with four months left in the year, Trump has already spent more time under 40 percent than any other first-year president.

At 34 percent, his current approval rating is worse than former President Barack Obama's ever was.

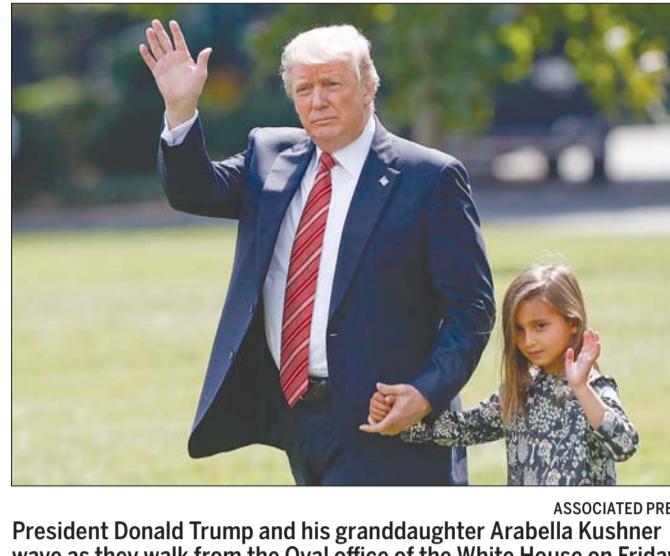

Trump's early descent in the polls defies some long-standing patterns about how Americans view their president. Such plunges are often tied to external forces that the president only partially controls, such as a sluggish economy or an all-consuming international crisis. In Trump's case, the economy is humming and the foreign crises have been kept to a minimum.

Americans also tend to be optimistic about their new leaders, typically cutting them some slack during their early days in office. Not with Trump.

"Most presidents begin with a honeymoon period and then go down from that, and Trump had no honeymoon," said Gallup editor-in-chief Frank Newport.

It's a jarring juxtaposition for the reality-TV star-turned-president who spent months on the campaign trail obsessing about his poll numbers and reading them to massive rally crowds while vowing that he'd win so much as president that Americans would get sick of it. Since he took office, the poll number recitations have stopped.

Trump is now viewed positively by only 37 percent of Americans, according to Gallup's most recent weekly estimate. (Obama's lowest weekly average never fell below 40 percent.) It's even lower – just 34 percent – in Gallup's shorter, three-day average, which includes more recent interviews but can also involve more random variation.

To be sure, approval ratings can fluctuate – sometimes dramatically. Some presidents have seen their positive reviews dip below 40 percent, only to recover strongly. Bill Clinton, whose rating fell to 37 percent in early June 1993 after policy stumbles, quickly gained ground. Later that same month, he climbed to 46 percent, and ended his eight years enjoying approval from 66 percent of the nation.

Trump has defied the trends before. But if history is a guide, his numbers don't bode well. Low approval ratings hamper a president's ability to push an agenda through Congress and make it more likely the president's party will lose seats in Congress in the midterm elections.

Since Gallup began tracking presidential approval, four presidents – Harry Truman, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and George H.W. Bush – spent significant time below 40 percent during their first four years.

N. Korea
fires three missiles;
US says
tests fail

Associated Press

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA

Three North Korea short-range ballistic missiles failed today, a temporary blow to Pyongyang's rapid nuclear and missile expansion, U.S. military officials said.

The U.S. Pacific Command said in a statement that two of the North's missiles failed in flight after an unspecified distance, and another appeared to have blown up immediately. It added that the missile posed no threat to the U.S. territory of Guam, which the North had previously warned it would fire missiles toward.

Seoul's Joint Chiefs of Staff said that the projectiles fired from the North's eastern coast flew about 155 miles, though it did not mention any failures. It said South Korea and U.S. militaries were analyzing the launch and didn't immediately provide more details.

South Korea's presidential office held a National Security Council meeting to discuss the missiles, which are the first known launches since July, when the North successfully flight tested a pair of intercontinental ballistic missiles that analysts say could reach deep into the U.S. mainland when perfected.

The rival Koreas recently saw their always testy relationship get worse after Pyongyang and President Donald Trump traded warlike threats. Trump warned that he would unleash "fire and fury" if the North continued its threats.

The latest launch comes during an annual joint military exercise between the United States and South Korea that the North condemns as an invasion rehearsal.

A man looks at a statue in New York's Central Park honoring Dr. J. Marion Sims, known as the "Father of modern gynecology." Sims developed a pioneering approach to treating physical problems women can develop after childbirth, but critics want his statue to be removed because he developed the technique through operations on enslaved black women in Alabama without anesthetic.

Historians warn against rushing to take down statues

Associated Press

NEW YORK

It's not just about Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

The national soul-searching over whether to take down monuments to the Confederacy's demigods has extended to other historical figures accused of wrongdoing, including Christopher Columbus (brutality toward Native Americans), the man for whom Boston's Faneuil Hall is named (slave trader) and former Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo (bigotry).

Historians interviewed by The Associated Press offered varying thoughts about where exactly the line should be drawn in judging someone's statue-worthiness, but they agreed on one thing: Scrapping a monument is not a decision that should be made in haste during political fervor.

"If we do this in some willy-nilly way, we will regret it," cautioned Yale University historian David Blight, an expert on slavery. "I am very wary of a rush to judgment about what we hate and what we love and what we despise and what we're offended by."

Bright and other historians say the way to determine whether to remove these monuments, Confederate or otherwise, is through discussions that weigh many factors, among them: the reason behind when and why the monument was built. Where it's placed. The subject's contribution to society weighed against the alleged wrongdoing. Historical significance. And the artistic value of the monument itself.

Some historians also say a statue in a public place can serve an important educational purpose, even if the history is ugly, that might be lost if the monument were junked or consigned to a museum.

"By taking monuments down or hiding them away, we facilitate forgetting," said Alfred Brophy, a law professor at the University of Alabama who has been studying the issue. "It purchases absolution too inexpensively. There is a value in owning our history."

Monuments to Confederate-era figures have been slowly coming down around the country since the 2015 fatal shooting of nine black parishioners at a church in Charleston, S.C., by a 23-year-old white racist. But after the violence that erupted in Charlottesville, Va., this month during a white-supremacist protest against the removal of a Lee statue, the movement picked up steam.

In New York, Democratic Mayor Bill de Blasio ordered a 90-day review of "symbols of hate" on city property, arguing that one of the first that should go is a plaque to Philippe Petain, a World War I hero later convicted of treason for heading the collaborationist Vichy government in Nazi-occupied France during World War II.

VW engineer gets prison

Associated Press

DETROIT

A Volkswagen engineer who had a key role in the company's diesel emissions scandal was sentenced Friday to more than three years in prison and a $200,000 fine, a steeper punishment than prosecutors requested.

James Robert Liang, 63, knew the German automaker was cheating and worked to cover it up, U.S. District Court Judge Sean Cox said during the sentencing hearing in Detroit. The judge imposed a 40-month prison sentence.

The conspiracy perpetrated a massive ... and stunning fraud on the American consumer that attacked and destroyed the very foundation of our economic system," Cox said.

Liang, who faces deportation to Germany upon his release from prison, declined to speak on his own behalf Friday. Prosecutors had requested a 36-month prison term and a $20,000 fine.

Prosecutors said Liang was aware that VW used software to cheat U.S. emission rules on nearly 600,000 diesel vehicles. His lawyer said he's not "greedy or immoral" but followed orders to keep his job and support his family.

Haden blocks out his critics

Cornerback says last 2 years 'rough'

By DAN LABBE
Cleveland.com

BEREA

Joe Haden has learned, at least for the most part, to block out the criticism over the years. It's something he said he wasn't good at when he was younger.

"My first three years in the league, it was probably the hardest," Haden told cleveland.com. "I was a person that just wanted everybody to be happy, just wanted to please everyone and when you realize you can't do that, everybody's not going to be happy, people don't know you."

Throughout his career, Haden has been active on social media. Because of that, you don't need to look far to find someone taking a shot at him. Even a recent picture on Instagram of Haden playing with his baby son following a training camp practice contained at least one snarky remark about his play.

"Some stuff, when you're not playing good, you're not playing good," Haden said, "so sometimes you just gotta take it on the head. But being able to go through that growing process, knowing that, don't let other people change your mood. Don't ever get too high when you're playing good, don't ever get too down when you're not playing good, just try your best, do the best you can do, give it your all and, at the end of the day, you'll be happy with yourself."

Criticism comes with the territory for a player who is among the highest paid on a team that hasn't won often. It comes with the territory of getting picked in the top ten and playing at a high enough level early in your career to create equally high expectations. It comes with the territory of playing one of the loneliest positions in the NFL — one that leaves players on an island against some of the best athletes the game has to offer.

For Haden, though, criticism has only come more often and grown louder as he has struggled to stay on the field the past two seasons, suffering multiple injuries in 2015, including two concussions, that kept him out of all but five games.

Last season he played in 13 games, but he suffered two separate groin injuries, playing the last portion of the season through the second one, something he has previously admitted hampered his ability to open up and run.

He's said it before, but he reiterated it Thursday: "The last two seasons have been rough."

The first five years of Joe Haden's career went about as smoothly as one could hope. Yes, there was the four-game

Boardman showed it was ready to dominate this season by taking down East in their opening game.

The Spartans defeated the Golden Bears, 41-7, Friday night at Rayen Stadium. Mike O'Horo and Jujuan Forte made their mark by scoring over half of the points and completing two touchdowns each for Boardman.

"It just came down to dispersing the ball really well — them not knowing who's going to take it on a certain play and making the right reads," O'Horo said.

Boardman's Domonhie Jennings got the momentum going by scoring a three-yard touchdown with 5:04 left in the first quarter.

This play gave the Spartans the confidence they needed to play hard-

Football coaches everywhere swear that the best defense is to limit the time his opponent has the ball.

Struthers took that concept to an entirely new level as the Wildcats ground down the clock through the running game and didn't allow Liberty to run a single offensive play in the third quarter in dropping the Leopards, 41-8, on Friday night at Leopard Stadium.

The Wildcats (1-0) scored on all three of their offensive possessions and recovered a pair of fumbles on Liberty kick returns in the third period in racking up their ninth straight regular-season win. Struthers forced a third fumble after its third score, but the Leopards recovered.

"I've never been part of a game where a team didn't have one possession [in a quarter]," Struthers coach Curt Kuntz said. "That's good defense when they don't get one snap. When the clock is running, good

Scappers edge Bears after wild pitch in 5th

NILES

Jonathan Laureano scored the decisive run on a wild pitch in the fifth inning, as the Mahoning Valley Scappers beat the West Virginia Black Bears 6-5 on Friday night.

Laureano scored after he reached base on an error, advanced to second on a walk by Will Benson and then went to third on a groundout.

Gian Paul Gonzalez hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Benson in the second inning to give the Scappers (25-26) a 1-0 lead. The Black Bears came back to take the lead in the fourth inning when they scored five runs, including a two-run home run by Sandy Santos.

Mahoning Valley tied it at 5 in the fourth when Gonzalez hit a two-run single.

Jesse Berardi singled three times, driving home two runs in the win.

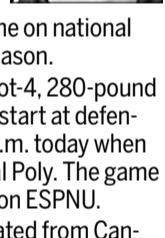

Elijah Morgan (3-1) got the win with four innings of scoreless, one-hit relief while Nicholas Economos (2-2) took the loss in the New York-Penn League game. Jonathan Teaney struck out the side for his fourth save of the season.

Mahoning Valley took advantage of some erratic West Virginia pitching, drawing a season-high 10 walks in its victory.

Santos homered and doubled, driving home two runs for the Black Bears (35-28).

Canfield's Esarco in first televised game

Canfield High School graduate Jacob Esarco will be the first Mahoning Valley product to play in a college football game on national television this season.

Esarco, a 6-foot-4, 280-pound sophomore, will start at defensive tackle at 7 p.m. today when Colgate visits Cal Poly. The game will be televised on ESPNU.

Esarco graduated from Canfield in 2016.

YSU bowling team to hold walk-on tryouts

YOUNGSTOWN

Youngstown State head bowling coach Chelsea Gilliam will host a walk-on tryout on Thursday for female YSU students interested in joining the program for the 2017-18 season.

The tryout will be held at Holiday Bowl in Struthers, the Penguins' home center, at 3 p.m. Competitors will bowl five games on a sport shot as part of the tryout.

Those interested in attending the tryout should complete the form on YSUsports.com by 5 p.m. on Wednesday. For more information, email Gilliam at cgilliam@ysu.edu.

YSU volleyball sweeps Winthrop, Morehead

MOREHEAD, KY.

The Youngstown State volleyball team began its 2017 season with a pair of sweeps, earning three-set wins over Winthrop and Morehead State on Friday at the Eagle Challenge.

While the Penguins did not drop a set in the first day of the season, they won four of the six sets by two points, and one set against each opponent went beyond 25 points. Youngstown State beat Winthrop 28-26, 25-23, 25-16, and the win over Morehead State came with set scores of 25-23, 30-28 and 25-20.

Sarah Varcola was YSU's top attacker in both matches, finishing with nine kills in 19 attempts against Winthrop and 10 kills in 26 swings versus Morehead State. She added five aces, and the Penguins were solid as a group from the service line throughout the day with 10 aces in the win over Winthrop and nine more against Morehead State.

Freshman Marketa Plesingrova matched Varcola with 10 kills against the Eagles, and she had seven kills with three aces in the opener. Sophomore Erin Kalahar had five blocks in both matches in her first career starts in the middle, and Lauren Blanco posted 24 digs on the day from the libero position.

YSU's Heather Splinter and Libbie Darling combined for 78 assists. Darling was credited with 39 of those assists, and Splinter contributed 32.

The Penguins will try to go undefeated on the weekend when they take on Delaware State at 11:30 a.m. today.

McGregor vows to stop Mayweather in second round

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS

Floyd Mayweather weighed in at a trim 149 1/2 pounds Friday for his boxing showdown with Conor McGregor, who also made weight at 153 pounds.

The undefeated boxer and the two-division UFC champion were comfortably below the 154-pound limit when they stepped on the scales before a raucous crowd at T-Mobile Arena, which will host the so-called Money Fight tonight.

The enthusiastic turnout included thousands of McGregor's vocal Irish fans, who sang and waved flags. Mayweather was the villain as usual, but his cheering section also appeared to be more robust than normal for the American antihero.

Mayweather had expressed doubt McGregor could make the weight, but the Irishman roared and flexed as he came in well within the mark. McGregor is making his professional boxing debut in Vegas.

"I'll stomp my foot in the center of that ring, and I won't go nowhere," said McGregor, who expects to weigh around 170 pounds by the first bell.

Mayweather (49-0, 26 KOs) came in remarkably light, and he is likely to have a noticeable size disadvantage. Although Mayweather had a bulging six-pack, McGregor claimed he wasn't impressed.

"He looks blown out and out of shape," McGregor said. "That's the worst shape I've ever seen him in. I'll stop him in the second round. Let's see who can take it. I see a man afraid."

Mayweather expressed no concern about his own weight disadvantage. The 40-year-old champion's game is built on speed and elusiveness, not brawn.

"Weight doesn't win fights," he said. "Fighting wins fights."

Mayweather also wasn't bothered by the crowd booing him.

"I've been here before," Mayweather said. "I know what it takes in a fight of this magnitude. He did a lot of talking. I did a lot of this. Tomorrow, it comes down to the fighters."

Not everything went perfectly for Mayweather at the weigh-in. His protege, Gervonta Davis, was stripped of his 130-pound IBF title

Bengals benefit from porous Irish D

By JOHN BASSETTI
sports@vindy.com

YOUNGSTOWN

A few bounces that went the wrong way could be blamed for Ursuline's 39-29 loss to Cleveland Benedictine at Stambaugh Stadium on Friday night, but one big play could account for a stinging touchdown that carried the visiting Bengals to victory.

The parochial school teams battled back and forth until Ursuline tied it at 27.

Then, from his 15-yard line, Benedictine's Nicholas Demchuk passed a short distance to Keith Williams, who ran the remainder of the distance to put the Bengals ahead for good, 33-27, with 1:16 left in the third quarter.

URSULINE 29

Next: Ursuline at East, Friday, 7 p.m.

The Irish were still in striking distance until a muffed punt by Ursuline and subsequent in-air recovery by Benedictine early in the fourth quarter put the Bengals in position to score a short time later to go up, 33-27.

"First thing," said Ursuline coach Larry Kempe, "is that I'm disappointed in the way we played defense. We missed way too many tackles and didn't play pass defense well. When you score 27 points, you should be in pretty good shape to win. Yes, there were some weird plays and sometimes things go your way and sometimes they don't, but, still, scoring 27 points against a very good Benedictine team, we should win if we play defense."

Joe Floyd scored twice for Ursuline and finished with 107 yards on 17 carries, while Jared Fabry connected on 9 of 16 passes for 112 yards before Bob Cavalier completed 2 of 4 for 25 yards.

James Phillips caught five for 53 yards from Fabry, including two for TDs.

A fumble recovery by cornerback Shondale Phifer set up James' first TD catch in the second quarter.

Fabry was replaced when he cramped up late in the game.

"Bobby [Cavalier] came in and they [Fabry and Cavalier] could be interchangeable parts at times," Kempe said. "Bobby made a great reception to get us down there," Kempe said of a 39-yard gain before Cavalier took over at quarterback in Ursuline's desperation moments in the end.

"We gave up close to 400 yards in offense and you can't win giving up that much yardage," Kempe said. "It's squarely on our defense and we start Saturday morning to get better."

The Ursuline-Benedictine season opener in 2016 ended with the Irish on top in double overtime, 33-32.

"We've had two good games against them two years in a row now," Kempe said.

PREP FOOTBALL roundup

Mistakes are costly for Fitch in defeat

AUSTINTOWN

The Austintown Fitch Falcons will wonder what could have been after a couple of missed opportunities cost them in a 20-7 season-opening loss to Hudson on Friday night.

"Against a good football team, you can't have missed opportunities," Fitch coach Phil Annarella said. "You have to take advantage. Unfortunately we didn't and it ended up the way it ended up."

After forcing a three-and-out, the Falcons had a good balance marching 53 yards on their opening drive only to see the drive stall and a missed field goal keep the game scoreless.

Things stayed that way as both teams punted the ball on the ensuing seven possessions.

"Defensively, they came out ready to go," Hudson coach Jeff Gough said. "That looked like a playoff defense. I don't know if we could replicate that and I don't think we did because it did take us a couple of drives to get going. Offensively, they never showed us that — lining up empty and spreading out some really skilled athletes."

Still, the Falcons never seemed to find the consistency in their drives after moving the ball the way they did to start out the game as they mustered just 18 yards for the rest of the half.

On their fifth possession, the Explorers hit on passes of 25 and 23 yards to drive deep into Falcons territory. Quarterback Colt Pallay snuck it in from a yard out to give Hudson a 7-0 lead with 3:45 left in the half.

"They hit a couple of big pass plays which just broke our backs," Annarella said.

Pallay had a few bigger pass plays in him as a 36-yard pass to Stephen Bianconi set up 27-yard field goal from Grant Gonya to make it 10-0 at the half.

Pallay finished with 197 yards passing.

Fitch missed an opportunity late in the first half after Randy Smith returned a kickoff 70 yards to the Hudson 28.

But the Falcons fumbled the ball away on next play from scrimmage.

"That was huge — to get a momentum play after you finally score, get a drive together, hit a couple of balls, and squeak it in," Gough said. "Then to watch him [Smith] start running. You have to give it up to the pursuit. Timely turnovers is something a good team needs to have."

Fitch opened the third quarter with another turnover — this time an interception — and Pallay threw a 64-yard touchdown pass to Greg Mailey.

Fitch got onto the scoreboard when quarterback Joey Zielinski capped a 16-play, 78-yard drive with a 4-yard TD run with 8:29 to play.

Zielinski led the Falcons with 80 yards rushing.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Explorers got an excellent return and started at the Fitch 42.

Fitch couldn't get a stop or turnover it needed and Hudson ran four minutes off the clock before a 33-yard Gonya field goal made it 20-7.

"I thought it would be a good football game," Annarella said. "I thought we matched up fairly well. We just couldn't make the mistakes we did. We had to capitalize on opportunities which we did not do. They did."

STRUTHERS

things happen."

The Leopards (0-1) didn't run a single offensive play while Struthers snapped the ball 23 times. Of those 23 plays, 19 were running plays on which they 4.3 yards.

"We had zero downs," Liberty coach Chet Allen said. "It's like saying we're allowed to go to the pool but we can't swim. We were in the game, down 14-0 at the half. And we never had the ball in the third quarter."

Willie Mitchell started the ball rolling to open the second half as he carried seven times for 44 yards, capping the nine-play march with a 7-yard run for a touchdown to put the Wildcats up, 20-0, with 6:36 to go in the quarter.

"It was the offensive line," Mitchell said. "There are 22 players. That's what we do. They give me blocks and I run."

After Liberty fumbled on the ensuing kick, the Wildcats took to the air for a 26-yard gain as quarterback J.D. Hall hit Nate Richards out of the backfield on a play-action pass. Keyshawn Chism carried five times for 15 yards before having to leave the game with an injury. Mitchell finished off the drive with a 2-yard run for a score to put Struthers ahead, 28-0 with 4:00 to play in the period, following Tyrese Hawkins' run for the 2-point conversion.

A second fumbled kick return by the Leopards, a 35-yard pass from Hall to Richards on the first play from scrimmage and a 3-yard plunge from Adrian Brown made it 34-0 in favor of the Wildcats with six seconds to go in the third to start the running clock.

Dylan Donnadio scored from the 3 and Alyssa Ferguson's PAT made it 41-0 for the Wildcats with 3:24 remaining in the game.

Dra Rushton answered with a 65-yard touchdown run to get the Leopards on the board with two minutes to go.

"I was happy we didn't get shut out," Allen said.

"It was a team effort," Mitchell said. "We knew we had to come out and play Struthers football [in the second half]. We wanted to pound it down the field and that's what we did. [Running hard] is just what I do. I love to run the ball."

Hall put the Struthers on the board first with a keeper for a touchdown with 9:26 remaining in the opening period. Mitchell set up the score with a run for 29 yards before scoring his first touchdown of the night on a 3-yard run with just under 10 minutes to play in the first half for a 14-0 Wildcats' advantage.

Rushton finished with 70 yards on 12 carries and was 4 of 8 for 34 yards through the air.

er in the second quarter. Forte and O'Horo scored their first touchowns in the second quarter — both from the two yardline.

"We were playing hard, we just made a bunch of mistakes," East coach Brian Marrow said.

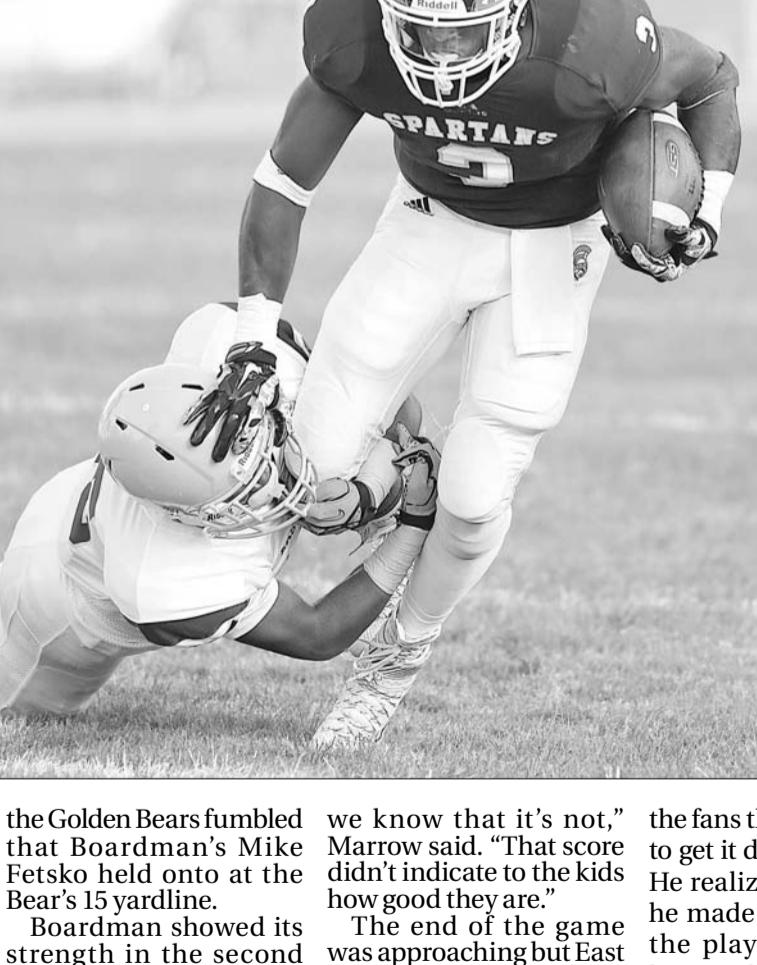

The players had a hard time keeping their hands on the ball and created turnovers and fumbles on both sides of the field. The Golden Bears had the opportunity on several occasions to create plays, but were unable to complete their passes.

"We left a couple turnovers on the field and we were shooting ourselves in the foot offensively," Boardman coach Joe Ignazio said. "We'll have to clean those things up, but I thought our energy was good."

Boardman was leading 21-0 going into the half. Both teams knew they started out slow in the first half and had to go into the second with more speed.

"In the locker room, Coach Ignazio told us we made some mistakes and we had to clean it up," Forte said. "We polished our mistakes and got right back to it in the second half."

Within the first six seconds of the third quarter, we know that it's not," Marrow said. "That score didn't indicate to the kids how good they are."

Boardman showed its strength in the second half with three touchdowns in the third quarter.

O'Horo and Forte came back and scored their second touchdowns in the third quarter.

Marrow said appreciates the support from the community and wants to make sure that the team shows the fans that they're going to get it done this season. He realizes the mistakes he made as a coach and the players know they have to keep their pride and take the season week-by-week.

"Always take away some of the positives and build on some of the mistakes that we made," Ignazio said. "Our schedule doesn't get any easier so hopefully they build some confidence going into week two, but they know we can't have any letdowns."

McDonald takes control with long march

By STEVE RUMAN
sports@vindy.com

MCDONALD

It may not go down in McDonald High football history as "The Drive."

But when the books are closed on the 2017 season, the Blue Devils' 98-yard march down the field in Friday night's opener against Brookfield may very well prove to be the most pivotal possession of the campaign.

Just when it looked like the Warriors had all the momentum in the world, the Blue Devils did what they do best — run at, over and around their opponents. As a result, the Devils ran off with a 27-14 victory at A.A. Burke Stadium.

Trailing 14-13, McDonald put together a 98-yard, 10-play drive to regain a lead they would never surrender.

Junior running back Alex Cintron made the two biggest plays of the drive. On a third-and-14 from the McDonald 11, Cintron rambled 47 yards to put the Devils inside Brookfield territory. Then on a fourth-and-2 at the Brookfield seven, Cintron went the distance.

Cintron (14 carries, 146 yards, three TDs) added a 50-yard touchdown run with 1:27 left in the game to seal the win.

"This was pretty intense, I like when the games are close," Cintron said. "[Brookfield] came out and smacked us to start the second half. Coach [Dan Williams] told us to just keep at it, just keep pushing along. We did that and things worked out."

Early on, it didn't appear McDonald would need any second-half heroics. The Blue Devils built a 13-0 lead with first-half touchdown runs by Cintron and Josh Celli (17 carries, 127 yards).

But momentum shifted just before halftime when Brookfield running back Alex Clark took a pitch from his quarterback and tossed a 34-yard touchdown strike to Gage Emery. The score came with five seconds left in the second quarter.

In addition to his touchdown throw, Clark rushed for 133 yards on 22 carries.

Brookfield then took the opening possession of the second half and marched 78 yards on 12 plays, capped by Tyler Briggs' 2-yard run, to take a 14-13 lead.

McDonald's next possession resulted in an interception. Brookfield drove all the way down the McDonald 3-yard-line, but was turned away on a fourth-and-two play to set up the Devil's long, go-ahead drive.

"[Brookfield] came out and just ran it down our throat in the second half," Williams said. "Our kids had a couple of choices. They could have either laid down or they could have kept battling. I gotta give them credit, they kept battling."

"We grew up tonight. We have a young football team with just six seniors and a lot of juniors who are inexperienced. But we matured as a team tonight."

Brookfield coach Randy Clark liked the way his team came out and took charge after halftime, but said his team "has to play all four quarters" if it is going to succeed.

"They're kids, they're learning. But they have to play better and they have to learn what it means to be a team player," Randy Clark said. "It's Week 1, and God bless, we have nine more weeks."

Brookfield will look to rebound next week when it hosts Springfield. McDonald returns to action at Columbiana.

DUSTIN LIVESAY | THE VINDICATOR
Valley Christian's Jamynk Jackson pushes through a tackle by Campbell's Malachi Bannan during the third quarter of their game Friday at Campbell Memorial High School. The Red Devils downed the Eagles, 13-7.

rolling and marched down the field and Square found Jamynk Jackson from 35 yards out to make it a one-score game. Valley Christian's defense then forced Campbell to turn the ball over on downs with 44 seconds left to play.

Starting at the Eagles' 26, Square connected with Jackson twice on two long throws to put the Eagles at Campbell's 20. His first attempt for the end zone sailed out of bounds long and Brown knocked down the second attempt.

"I had a pretty bad play where I let the corner pass go [for a touchdown]," Brown said. "We just played 10 yards back and we just couldn't let them catch the ball. We needed this win for Campbell."

The game plan for Campbell was simple: run the football, run the clock and play good defense. The Red Devils utilized a three-pronged ground attack of quarterback Darion Jones (50 yards) and running backs McMeans (37 yards) and Brandon Liggins (66 yards). It's a departure from last year, where Yianni Koullias was the lead guy.

"I try to move the ball around a bit. Our problem is right now we have so many guys going both ways," Campbell coach Ed Rozum said. "We have some young guys who are almost ready to give these guys some breaks."

Campbell's first touchdown came at the end of a 79-yard drive that took roughly 11 minutes to complete across the first and second quarters.

Jones made two critical short-yard gains. The first came on a fourth-and-1 at Valley Christian's 13 early in the second quarter. The other came when he scored on a 1-yard run.

"We just have a great line," Jones said. "We're huge and we've been lifting the whole offseason and we know we can trust them."

That drive also featured a rare forward pass, a 14-yard lob to Malachai Barnarn. That was one of three passes Jones completed Friday night for a combined 29 yards.

Square was the only player to reach triple digits in offensive yardage with 105 passing yards.

"It took a little too long to get going, but when we did, we're making some big 'ol plays," Valley Christian co-head coach Jeff Hether said. "That's what I wanted to see from the start, but this is game one. We have to get some kinks off our offense and what I do like about this team is that they keep fighting and fighting to the end."

"It came down to the last pass."

The game was the debut for the head-coaching tandem of Hether and Jomont Ware at Valley Christian. They were assistants under predecessor Albert Jennings, who ran the team last year.

"I actually think they did awesome here tonight," Hether said. "I kind of want to see this the next game and I finally want to see my offense get going in the first or second quarter instead of the fourth quarter."

After Lakeview got the ball back after the safety, the Tigers stayed on the ground again and the result was a 4-yard touchdown run by Keyshawn Busch to make 16-0 with 2:17 left in the first half.

"That was the game plan and that's what we hang our hats on," Howland head coach Dominic Menendez said. "We aren't an offense that is built to come from behind. We knew that we had to control the ball and be physical. It's never easy around here."

Lakeview responded quickly. Just 48 seconds later, Rogers connected with wide receiver Noah Olejnik on a 55-yard touchdown to cut the deficit to 16-6. Lakeview failed on a 2-point conversion and the score stayed 16-6 at the half.

Deemer rushed for 90 yards on 13 attempts. Dean had one rushing score.

Lakeview continued the passing attack as its first play was a 45-yard pass from Rogers to Evan Adair. That helped set up a 2-yard touchdown run by Tony Crish that cut Howland's lead to 16-13.

"Our protection struggled a little bit, I'm not going to deny that," Lakeview head coach Tom Pavlansky said. "Our guys battled. Zach is a talented kid and we have some weapons on the outside that were tough to defend. Howland is really good. Credit to coach Menendez and his staff but we have to keep working."

After Lakeview scored again, Howland answered with a 7-yard touchdown run by Deemer to put Howland up 23-13 with 4:42 left in the third quarter.

"Deemer had a great offseason and he continues to work," Dean said. "He can tote the rock. He's a mean runner with the ball."

Dean also said that without its defensive front seven, Howland may not have won the game. Lakeview ran the ball 19 times for just 39 yards.

"Our front guys are our strength on both sides of the ball," Menendez said. "We ran through the ball and tackled well. We are young in the back end and we will have to grow up quick. It could be the thorn in our side."

when he weighed in at 132 pounds for his co-feature undercard bout against Francisco Fonseca.

The 22-year-old Davis, who fights for Mayweather Promotions, was due to defend the belt for the second time in front of a vast pay-per-view audience. But Davis also had trouble making the limit for his first title defense against Liam Walsh in May, needing three tries to hit it. Davis and Fonseca will still fight, but only Fonseca can win the belt.

"My fans and supporters, I apologize," Davis wrote on Twitter. "I will make it up!"

Tickets were free for the event, and fans got a show from hip-hop star YG beforehand. The building appeared to be essentially full, but that might not be the case on fight night: Ticket prices for Saturday's show are trending down, with many below the original list price.

Some tickets at the T-Mobile arena could be had for as little as $1,100, while seats closer to the action were being listed on secondary markets for less than they originally cost. A day before the fight, there were also hundreds of tickets left at the box office.

Jesse Lawrence of Tick- etIQ, a reseller and market analysis site, said promoters misjudged their market when they priced the arena from $2,500 in the upper sections to $10,000 at ring-side. He said roughly 10 percent of the 20,000-seat arena remained for sale.

There were also plenty of closed circuit seats available at hotels owned by MGM Resorts at $150 each.

While ticket sales have been spotty, the fight is still expected to do huge numbers on pay-per-view. Up to 50 million people are expected to watch the bout in the United States alone.

A cool time of year

As though televised football games aren't evidence enough, when I reached for a hoodie Thursday evening, it hit me smack in the face that Summer 2017 is on the home stretch.

Our first chilly evening in months is more than a blip on the August calendar. It's a sign that we anglers are dealing with a seasonal transition. Soon the fish that have been in slow motion during the heat of our summer will shift into high gear.

This, of course, is great news for anglers who live and fish in and around the Youngstown area.

Walleyes and crappies are two favorites among area anglers. Opportunities to stay in touch with schools of active walleyes and crappies dwindle during the hot days of July and early August, but water temperatures at our local reservoirs have started to cool from their summer peak.

This summer has not been as hot as recent years, so the highest temps were typically in the low 80s, which is fine for largemouth bass. While the largemouth fishing has stayed consistently fair to good this season around Youngstown, it will get decidedly better as the cool nights outnumber the muggy ones.

For smallmouth bass anglers, the cooler weather is very much welcome. The smallies don't much like 80-degree water, so daytime fishing in July and August can be challenging. But from now through Halloween and on toward Thanksgiving, the fishing will steadily improve.

For a growing corps of anglers, the cool-down is front-page banner headline news. They are the steelhead anglers who live for the months when 8- and 10-pound steelhead trout migrate out of the Lake Erie depths into the streams that run to the lake from Vermillion to Conneaut.

Steelheaders work the breakwalls around the harbors and river mouths with spoons, spinners and crankbaits that mimic Lake Erie baitfish. Anglers also work the upstream pools and runs, wading and casting flyrods, centerpin outfits and spinning gear.

All in all, the best of 2017 is yet to come for anglers looking forward to fast action before the snow flies.

This is not to say, however, that this year has been a bust so far.

Based on my own experience, plus the stories of fishing friends and the myriad of social media posts and online discussion groups, angling success has been high this year.

Mosquito Creek Reservoir has been a consistent producer of quality catches of largemouth bass, walleyes and crappies.

West Branch and Milton have been cranking out musky catches at their typical productive pace. And Lake Erie this year is as hot for walleyes and smallmouth bass as it always is.

Shenango Reservoir near Sharon has been kind to the bass crowd, while up north on the Ohio-Pennsylvania border, Pymatuning has lived up to its reputation as one of the top largemouth and smallmouth lakes ranked by Bassmaster magazine in 2016. It's great for crappies, too.

Going into the third quarter of the year, I would expect all of our favorite waters will be even better as temperatures cool and the fish eat hardy to build reserves to survive another winter.

I'll be out there every weekend until it gets too cold to launch the boat. Even then, I'll add a few trips on foot to stockpile my reserve of fishing experiences to carry through to the day in 2018 when I'll be back in the boat.

I won't be the only one out there. If you see me, please wave your hat. I'll be the fellow with an ear-to-ear grin because fall fishing is so much fun.

Trails to rails for birders, hunters

It's impossible to prove a negative, but not finding something does not prove it is absent. For example, at least one species of rail (an elusive group of marsh birds that are notoriously difficult to find) can probably be found in large cattail marshes. But good luck finding one.

Rails, gallinules and coots live amid the dense vegetation that surrounds lakes, swamps and marshes. Most species are seldom noticed. We know they are there because in most states, a rail hunting season opens next month. Can't have a hunting season on something that doesn't exist.

Perhaps it's the difficulty of finding these birds that appeals to rail hunters. I've never met a rail hunter (they seem to be about as rare as rails), so I don't know what motivates them. I have read, however, that in the bayous of Louisiana rails are considered quite tasty. (But then, in the bayous of Louisiana, anything that breathes is considered a delicacy.)

In most parts of the country, rails are more frequently a target of birders than hunters. The same qualities that make rails elusive targets make them just as difficult to nail with binoculars. Back in 2007, for example, a tiny rare black rail weighing about one ounce created an internet sensation when birders found one in an Ohio marsh.

Of the nine species of U.S. rails, I've seen six. Walk along the Anhinga Trail in the Florida Everglades, and purple and common gallinules and American coots are hard to miss.

Coots frequent larger marshes with open water just about anywhere. They may be walking in the mud along the water's edge or swimming like ducks. But a quick glimpse of the coot's chickenlike bill readily distinguishes it from ducks.

Of all the rails, coots are the most common and widespread. They are perhaps best known as the mascot of Corporal Klinger's beloved Toledo Mud Hens on television's "M*A*S*H." Their charcoal bodies and white bills make them easy to recognize. And while swimming they often dive to feed on submerged vegetation. Fleshy lobes on their toes give coots the paddle power they need for diving.

The remaining six species of rails are elusive denizens of the marsh. Cryptically colored and streaked with earth tone markings, these true rails rarely leave the protective cover of dense marsh vegetation. Their bodies are compressed from side to side, making it easier for them to pass through the grasses, cattails, and reeds that characterize most wetlands. (Hence the expression, "Thin as a rail.") And their long, skinny toes enable them to walk on soft, muddy bottoms.

King, yellow and black rails are the most difficult to see because they are uncommon as well as elusive. Not coincidentally, these are the three rails that I've never seen. The major reasons these rails are uncommon are habitat destruction and water pollution. Rails are just one more reason conservationists fight to protect and conserve the nation's shrinking wetlands. It's an old refrain, but wetlands support myriad forms of life.

The remaining three species – sora, clapper and Virginia rails – offer birders an exciting challenge. Clapper rails live in coastal salt marshes and are rarely seen inland. Virginia rails and soras are widespread inhabitants of both fresh and salt water marshes.

To see rails, expect to get your feet wet unless there's a boardwalk passing through the marsh. As you explore a marsh or wetland, stop, look and listen often. The best times to look for them are early and late in the day. Scan the marsh's edge with binoculars or, better yet, a spotting scope. Watch for movement along the zone where water meets vegetation.

Virginia rails are about 9 inches long, have long bills and rich chestnut-colored wing patches. Soras are about an inch smaller, but they have a short, thick, yellow bill. Both have harsh calls that do not lend themselves to written description. Once heard, however, these calls will be forever remembered as the unforgettable sounds of the marsh.

Dr. Shalaway can be heard on Birds & Nature from 3 to 4 p.m. Sundays on 620 KHB Radio, Pittsburgh or live online anywhere at www.khbradio.com. Admission is $22. Gate opens at 3 p.m., and dinner will be served at 6. For more information, call 330-542-2382.

Youth shooting

NILES

The coaches for the Western Reserve Fish & Game Association's Junior Marksmanship Program announced the fall Shooting and Safety Program for students age 10 to 18.

The cost for the program is $10 per week. Classes will take place at the club's facility, 1058 W. Third Street. The first class is set for Sept. 11 at 5:30 p.m.

The program is an eight-week course that covers rifle safety, proper gun handling, basic marksmanship, gun maintenance and Ohio wildlife rules.

Participants will work four weeks with competition-level air rifles and four weeks with competition-level small-bore .22 rifles.

All equipment will be provided, including eye and ear protection, shooting jackets, ammunition and more. Parents or guardians must accompany participants to the first session. Candidates with an interest in competitive Olympic-style target shooting may be invited to join the Western Reserve Eagles Jr. Rifle Team.

For more information, call Coach Stevens at 330-442-2514, Coach Calladine at 330-646-8761 or Coach Nudo at 330-980-8289.

NRA Youth Sportsfest

VIENNA

The Trumbull County 4-H Shooting Sports Pioneers Club will host a free NRA Youth Sportsfest at the Fish & Game Club of Vienna from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 23.

The event will teach basic gun and archery safety by providing hands-on experience to youths age 9 to 18. A picnic lunch will be provided. No guns owned by the participants are to be brought to the event.

Preregistration is required before Sept. 16 by calling 330-898-4486 or emailing larry-beard@aol.com. Parents must sign a release. For more information, call 330-898-4486.

Military shoot

NILES

The Western Reserve Fish & Game Association, 1058 W. Third St., will have a military shoot on its 100-yard outdoor range on the third Saturday of each month until late fall.

The cost is $5 per shooter, and participants must provide their own ammunition. AR shooters are encouraged to participate.

Murry is chairman of committee against racism

YOUNGSTOWN

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops announced the establishment of an ad hoc committee against racism.

Initiated by Cardinal Daniel N. DiNardo of Galveston-Houston, president of the USCCB, the committee will focus on addressing the sin of racism in our society, and even in our Church, and the urgent need to come together as a society to find solutions.

Bishop George V. Murry of the Catholic Diocese of Youngstown has been appointed by Cardinal DiNardo as chairman of the committee. The committee membership will be finalized in the coming days and its mandate will be confirmed at the first meeting.

Cortland Trinity to host documentary's showing

CORTLAND

Cortland Trinity Baptist Church, 2576 McCleary Jacoby Road, will host the showing of "It's Only Cookie Dough" at 2 p.m. Sunday. The documentary is about Lynch, Ky., a town where 10,000 people once gathered from around the world to extract high-quality coal that fueled wartime steel production.

After the war, Appalachia was devastated, putting thousands of men out of work. Over time, the population shrank to less than 1,000. Facing a bleak future, a handful of desperate prayer warriors began praying and God graciously answered.

Lynch is now experiencing an economic revival. Many see Lynch's devastating downturn paralleling what we've experienced here in the Mahoning Valley.

This is a free event. A love offering for the Sentinel Group, producers of the documentary, will be received.

Pope Francis inspires Iowa church to use solar energy

Associated Press

NORWALK, IOWA

Church leaders in central Iowa are turning to solar power for their buildings in an effort to aid the environment and save money.

The St. John the Apostle Catholic Church in Norwalk has more than 200 solar panels that the Rev. John Ludwig said saves them about $2,000 a year, The Des Moines Register reported.

Church member Terry Dvorak founded Red Lion Renewables, a solar development firm, after seeing heavy pollution in China in 2010. Dvorak gathered investors who contributed about $200,000 to purchase the panels.

The company then sells the energy generated to the church at a low rate. The array is estimated to produce enough energy to power 10 homes, Dvorak said.

"Our kids deserve to have clean air and sunshine," Dvorak said, "and so does the rest of the world."

Bishop Robert Pates said Pope Francis' campaign combating climate change inspired the move toward solar. The pope called for changes in political ac-

"It's exciting to me because I feel like they're sort of walking the walk," said the Rev. Susan Hendershot Guy, executive director of Iowa Interfaith Power & Light, a religious group aimed at responding to global warming.

"These situations have caused sister Earth, along with all the abandoned of our world, to cry out, pleading that we take another course," Francis wrote. "Never have we so hurt and mistreated our common home as we have in the last 200 years."

Leaders from various faith traditions across the state are pushing toward becoming more energy-efficient, Guy said.

Is it time to say those 3 words?

Dear Annie: I've got three little words caught in my throat. I can't decide whether or not to tell my girlfriend I love her. We've been dating for three months. She's one of the kindest people I've ever met. She's beautiful. She makes me laugh. I have never felt so happy to be with someone. It's cloud nine all the time.

I know she really likes me – maybe even loves me. I really want to tell her that I love her, but I'm afraid it would scare her off. Is three months too soon? What do you think?

LOVESICK

Dear Lovesick: It's not so much about the timeline as it is about the truth. Three weeks into a relationship would be too soon because it's too soon to know someone. But you've had some time to get to know her character, and it sounds as if you treasure her heart more than her beauty. So if you love her, tell her. I hope she reciprocates, but if not, you'll be better off knowing now.

Dear Annie: According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 24 children are killed in school bus accidents in an average year. One-third of those children are killed by the school bus when getting on or off the bus. One-third are killed by motorists who fail to stop for the school bus. And the rest are killed as they approach or leave the bus stop. All educators talk about bus safety, but they don't act on it enough. In our state, the law is that children from kindergarten through grade eight can walk up to a half-mile to the bus stop even if there are no sidewalks. Snow, snowplow trucks, ice, etc. – how safe is that? Sometimes very young children are even made to cross the street to catch the bus. Is that safe? Last year, when all school districts in the United States reported how many people ran the buses' stop signs, there were 78,000 violations – just in one day! How can this be safe? Children catch the bus five times a week. Yes, it saves the school buses fuel to just go up or down one side of the street or to have kids walk a half-mile to the bus stop. But the same people who are fine with this would flip out if a mayor said that to conserve fuel, we'll all need to take our garbage cans a half-mile down the road to the nearest corner so the truck can make fewer stops.

Is your child between kindergarten and eighth grade? Will he or she be one of the 24? School districts should really rethink their school bus safety.

BOB

Dear Bob: You raise some compelling points, and I'm sure I'll hear from school administrators on this subject. But I'd like to take this opportunity to remind motorists just how vital it is to obey those blinking red "stop" signs that extend from school buses – and to use caution when passing stopped school buses even when they don't have those signs out. Be safe.

Melissa Moss ♦ Eric Gelsomino

VIENNA

Melissa Moss and Eric Gelsomino, both of Akron, were united in marriage during an outdoor ceremony May 13 at Avalon Golf and Country Club at Squaw Creek in Vienna, where a cocktail hour and reception followed. The couple traveled to Montego Bay, Jamaica, for their honeymoon.

The bride is the daughter of Kim Moss of Girard and Mark and Linda Moss of Niles. Mr. Gelsomino is the son of Mary Gelsomino of Niles and Eric and Trish Gelsomino of Mineral Ridge.

Sarah Mohn was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Gina Gelsomino, sister of the groom, and Ashlyn Vanoverbeke, cousin of the bride. Molly Moss, the bride's niece, was the flower girl.

Best man was Robert Drsek, and groomsmen were Dominick Pissini, cousin of the groom, and Brandon Ferguson. Milo Moss, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Mrs. Gelsomino graduated from the University of Akron with bachelor's degrees in psychology and nursing. She is pursuing a master's degree in nursing with a specialty as a family nurse practitioner. She is a registered nurse at University Hospital in Cleveland.

Mr. Gelsomino also graduated from UA with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering. He is a civil engineer with G. Stephens Inc. in Akron.

Kathryn Callow ♦ Kyle Bruns

DELAWARE, OHIO

Kathryn V. Callow and Kyle J. Bruns, both of Coldwater, exchanged wedding vows during a May 13 ceremony at Brookshire in Delaware, where a reception followed. The Rev. Jeff Kneice officiated. The couple took a wedding trip to Hocking Hills.

The bride is a daughter of Veliko and Karen Callow of Girard and the groom is a son of James and Marg Bruns of Coldwater.

The new Mrs. Bruns wore an ivory dolce satin fit-and-flare dress with a sweetheart neckline and beaded lace bodice with silver beaded straps. Her cathedral train was of oyster lace.

The bride's sister, Laura Eilerman, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Holli Foster and Mary Liakaris. The bride's niece, Maria Eilerman, was the flower girl. The attendants wore Wedgewood blue gowns.

Best man was Greg Bruns, brother of the groom. The groomsmen were Brent Selhorst and Jacob Eilerman, the bride's brother-in-law. Landon Foster was the ringbearer.

The bride graduated from Kent State University with a bachelor's degree in nursing. She earned a master's degree in nursing from Youngstown State University. She is a family nurse practitioner at Lima Memorial Hospital in Lima.

Mr. Bruns is a production machinist at Randall Bearings Inc. in Coldwater.

BOARDMAN

William and Monica Ripple are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Amanda Ripple, to George Phillabaum Jr., all of Boardman. He is the son of Tina Skubish of Hermitage, Pa., and George Phillabaum Sr. of Spencer, W.Va.

The couple plan to marry Sept. 23 during a 2 p.m. ceremony at Infant Jesus of Prague Byzantine Church, Boardman. Invitations will be extended for the wedding and a reception that will take place that evening at Drake's Landing in Boardman.

Miss Ripple graduated from Kent State University with a bachelor's degree in hospitality management. She is employed as a revenue auditor at Hollywood Gaming at Mahoning Valley Race Course in Austin Valley.

The prospective groom is the parts manager at Leppo Rents – Bobcat of Youngstown in Girard.

DeBartolos celebrate 71st anniversary

BOARDMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo DeBartolo were honored July 6 with a family dinner at Nicollini's Ristorante in Boardman in celebration of their 71st wedding anniversary.

Mr. DeBartolo and the former Loretta Buccilli were married July 6, 1946, at Christian Assembly of Youngstown.

The couple's children are Karen L. (Bill) Fisher of Boardman and Cosmo K. DeBartolo of Houston, Texas. They have two grandchildren Tamara DeBartolo Fator (Charles) of Houston and Jordan Cosmo Fisher (Jennifer) of Poland; and two great-grandchildren, Caleb and Brityn Fator.

Mrs. DeBartolo attended Youngstown College and Penn-Ohio Institute. She was employed in the billing and accounting department at Ohio Edison until 1946. She later worked at her husband's firms as a secretary until retiring in 1993. She served as a teacher and superintendent of Sunday school and as president of the Women's Missionary Council at Calvary Assembly of God.

Mr. DeBartolo is a WWII veteran of the 882nd Airborne Engineers Aviation Battalion. He was a first sergeant and served in the Pacific Theater. He was self-employed as a general contractor, builder and developer in Youngstown, retiring in 1995.

He brought the organization of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International to Youngstown, serving as chapter president, and also was an international director of FGMBFI for 28 years. He earned a diploma in Biblical Studies at Liberty University in Lynchburg, Va., in 1996.

The couple were members of Calvary Assembly of God (now Bridge of Hope) for 35 years where Mr. DeBartolo served as a Bible and Sunday school teacher as well as worship leader. The are now members of Highway Tabernacle.

No shoes in house may be a good idea

Dear Readers: Wearing shoes in the house? Maybe you shouldn't. Here are some reasons:

- ◆ Shoes you wear out of the house can get really dirty! They may pick up germs and dirt from streets, office buildings, elevators or public restrooms.

- ◆ Hardwood floors can be damaged from high heels!

- ◆ Feet need to "rest" and relax – you know, when you take off work shoes, heels or boots and say, "AHHHHHHHHHHHHH-HHH!"

Consider your lifestyle: Your feet should be happy and healthy, and if so, you will feel better. Barefoot gal in Texas!

HELOISE

Dear Heloise: I've discovered a delicious way to infuse fruit flavors into my iced tea. I skewer blueberries, strawberries or raspberries (sometimes all of them) and set them in the teapot when I brew tea for my iced tea. This adds a little bit of flavor.

M.M. IN TEXAS

Well, as a Southern gal who drinks lot of "home-brewed" iced and hot tea, I love this! I take a peek in the refrigerator to see what fresh fruit is there. I'll rinse and cut up strawberries, blackberries, peaches and even apples to drop into the teapot. This makes delicious tea for a cup of hot tea or a glass of iced tea! I brew it strong, so when poured into a glass filled with ice, the tea still has that wonderful quenching effect.

If you would like to learn a little more about tea and coffee, I put together a pamphlet filled with my favorite tea and coffee hints. Visit www.Heloise.com to order it, or send a long, stamped (70 cents), self-addressed envelope, along with $3, to: Heloise/Coffee and Teas, P.O. ## Victorian Players changes name, announces season

Staff report

The Victorian Players has announced that the theatre group is changing its name to Hopewell Theatre because interest in Victorian-era plays has declined.

The Hopewell Theater group plans to offer a wider perspective and scope for its plays. Its new mission statement is "to present high-quality, family-friendly theater, both classics and plays rarely produced locally."

The Victorian Players was founded in 1992 by Dr. Jean McClure Kelty, a repertory company producing Victorian-era plays.

Recently, the theater had broadened its scope to produce plays lying outside the Victorian theme, as well as plays by local writers.

Hopewell also announced "Fences," the 1987 Pulitzer Prize winning play by August Wilson as the 2017-18 season opener Sept. 1.

This play has won Drama Desk Awards and Tony Awards and has most recently been produced as an Academy Award-winning film.

"Fences" explores the life of Troy Maxson, who struggles to reconcile his life of bad decisions, failed dreams and rejections, while grasping to maintain relationships with his wife and children.

Directed by seasoned veteran actress and director Carla D. Gipson, the play also boasts a mix of experienced and new talented actors and actresses from the Youngstown/Warren area, including John McCants, Jaietta Jackson, DC Colvin, Duane Davis, Daniel Colvin, Kevin Stringer and Keyirra LaBooth with a set designed by Martin Charles Moore.

Taylor Swift releases new song

By MESFIN FEKADU
AP Music Writer

NEW YORK

You can finally shake it off: Taylor Swift has released her new single.

The 27-year-old singer dropped the upbeat song "Look What You Made Me Do" – which uses an interpolation from Right Said Fred's 1991 hit "I'm Too Sexy" – late Thursday to streaming platforms and iTunes. The song, featuring elements of pop, dance and house, includes sharp lyrics like: "Honey, I rose up from the dead I do it all the time/I got a list of names and yours is in red, underlined I check it once/Then I check it twice."

The track ends with a voice message of Swift saying, "I'm sorry, but the old Taylor can't come to the phone right now. Why? Oh, 'cause she's dead."

The video will premiere Sunday night on the MTV Video Music Awards. A clip of the video aired Friday on "Good Morning America."

Some felt the song was a diss toward Kanye West, whom Swift has had issues with in the past. Last year their feud hit a new height when West's wife, Kim Kardashian, released audio recordings that she said proved Swift gave West the go ahead for a Swift reference in the song "Famous."

Swift's voice message on her new song could be a reference to the audio Kardashian leaked. Others felt the opening lines of "Look What You Made Me Do" – "I don't like your little games/Don't like your tilted stage" – was a reference to West's recent tour, which featured a floating stage.

The anticipation of "Look What You Made Me Do" helped Swift trend heavily on social media. The song is the first single from her sixth album, "reputation," to be released Nov. 10.

Swift wiped her social media pages clean last week and caused a frenzy online with video snippets of slithery snake parts. Fans dissected the clues in hopes it would reveal details about her new music, and the pop star finally announced Wednesday that a new song would come this week followed by an album three months later.

"Reputation" is the follow-up to 2014's "1989," Swift's first official pop album after years of dominating in country music. "1989" launched seven hit singles, from "Shake It Off" to "Bad Blood," and won three Grammys, including album of the year.

'RuPaul's Drag Race'

By JOSEPH LONGO
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP)

A deafening, auto-tuned voice screeches "Gentlemen, start your engines," while a lipstick, a rearview mirror and a crown speed by illuminated in pink and blue hues. Just as the intensity becomes all too much, it abruptly stops. Suddenly, a blonde beauty arrives carrying a racing flag in each hand. The voice now has a face, and the screech turns soothing, aspirational even, "May the best woman win."

This dazzling intro signals just one thing: "RuPaul's Drag Race" is on.

The reality TV competition's color and energy are hard to ignore and impossible to forget. It's why "Drag Race," in its ninth season, is nominated for seven Emmy Awards, including best reality competition. It's the most nominations for a show that was once a DIY favorite on a little-known network, but is now competing against heavyweights "Top Chef" and "Project Runway."

RuPaul kicked off the show's breakthrough year last September, winning his first Emmy in the best reality show host category. He's up for the award again in a few weeks.

This year's batch of Emmy nods is the latest success for the show, which follows drag artists with vibrant personalities, heart-wrenching backstories and witty retorts competing to become "America's Next Drag Superstar." Since March, "Drag Race" received a highly-coveted "SNL" parody, found a bigger stage on VH1 and garnered its best ratings yet.

The impact is apparent in the LGBT community. During the season, gay bars in West Hollywood are packed at 8 p.m. sharp on Fridays for "Drag Race" viewing parties, often hosted by past contestants. Kelsey Jacobsen is a devoted fan who routinely attends viewings at Micky's West Hollywood. Like many fans at gay bars and nightclubs throughout the country, Jacobsen comes for the sense of community.

"It's one of the biggest gay, iconic things of our generation," Jacobsen said. "RuPaul has done so much to move the gay movement forward."

He's also become a springboard for drag queens' careers. Past contestants have hosted their own TV comedy specials, sold out international tours and released albums. Viceland announced last week it will air a talk show by "Drag Race" alums Trixie Mattel and Katya Zamolodchikova.

Yet for all the cultural fanfare, RuPaul said in a recent interview that "Drag Race" has never tried to effect change or impart knowledge.

"Our goal is first and foremost to do a show that celebrates drag," he said.

Politics and history are inherent to telling drag artists' stories, often ones of courage and learning how to shine in darkness, he said.

However, not everyone is on board with the stories being told. Drag performer Landon Cider doesn't see her community of drag kings on screen. She said that's problematic as the show champions LGBT "herstory."

"When you tell people, 'This is our 'herstory,' how about you really talk about the biological her as well and not just the male version of her, which is another iteration of sexism," Cider said.

Cider is "Drag Race"-adjacent, often performing alongside former contestants and occasionally appearing in online videos for the show's production company World of Wonder. However, she's never been on "Drag Race," despite having applied three times. No drag king has ever been a contestant.

"Drag Race" executive producer Randy Barbato said the show's casting comes down to talent and authenticity.

"The crack cocaine of 'RuPaul's Drag Race' is the heart of these contestants connecting with these people," Barbato said.

Cider said talent is why she thought she'd never been cast. Then she read a 2016 interview in "The Advocate" in which RuPaul said drag queens and drag kings just don't mix.

"To say that made me feel like you just divided us more instead of uniting our community that we have worked together so many years," Cider said of RuPaul's comments.

RuPaul maintains there's an important distinction between drag queens and kings.

"Drag is very nuanced in its expression of rebellion against the male-dominated culture," he said. "For boys to denounce masculinity is a true act of rebellion."

When explaining the show's intentions, RuPaul often references the 1970s sitcom "Good Times." Criticism about the show's stereotypical depiction of black families led to the equally influential spinoff, "The Jeffersons."

"Our show is not meant to be representing everybody," RuPaul said. "'Good Times' is not meant to represent all black people."

Season nine winner and LGBT activist Sasha Velour said it's not fair to expect the show to embody an activist agenda. He called it an introductory course to the art form, not a true act of rebellion.

historical document.

"'Drag Race' shows people exceeding because of their weirdness, their difference, their queerness or their giant wigs, grotesque makeup and over-the-top fashions," he said.

Controversies about representation aren't new for "Drag Race." The show faced backlash in 2014 for a mini-challenge titled "Female or Shemale."

Model and former contestant Carmen Carrera criticized the segment as transphobic at the time. She competed in the third season as male, subsequently coming out as a transgender woman after taping the season.

She's happy the show removed the controversial language and began embracing transgender contestants.

Season nine runner-up Peppermint is the show's first openly transgender contestant.

"Drag has always been an open space where anyone within the LGBT community can express their creativity," Carrera said. "That's the way it should remain."

Fenton Bailey, one of the show's executive producers who runs World of Wonder with Barbato, said it was important for "Drag Race" to address changes in language and sensitivities. He noted the illusion of drag is pointed and serious.

"There's a misapprehension because it's a wig and heels that there's no gravitas or intent behind it," Bailey said.

Fashion and pop culture bloggers Tom Fitzgerald and Lorenzo Marquez, affectionately known as Tom and Lorenzo, have diligently covered "Drag Race" since its 2009 debut. They've seen the show go from an underground favorite to having a beloved fandom of teenage girls who mull over everything from rumored casts to contestants' politics on social media.

Fitzgerald credited much of the host's success to RuPaul's 30-plus years as a celebrity. He remembers watching RuPaul with Kurt Cobain at the 1993 MTV Video Music Awards, captivated by his stature.

"The gay community politically, culturally has almost never had a singular voice leading it," he said. "It's probably a good thing that we have this 7-foot black man as the voice of the LGBT community right now."

As for RuPaul, he doesn't want to be the leader, instead suggesting individuals should look to themselves for a hero.

"Our goal solely is to have fun and celebrate drag," he said. "What happens after that, it ain't none of my damn business."

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Happy Birthday! In The Next Year: The word that describes your spirit this solar return is decisiveness. You stop asking questions and decide. The energy of life will carry you spontaneously to new places. Money comes to your family in November and May. You'll close deals, support causes and love deeply. March brings a bright star to your personal life. Ariens and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 30, 2, 28 and 40.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Mellisa McCarthy started out as a stand-up comic before charming fans as Sookie St. James of "Gilmore Girls." Now this Virgo is an A-list Hollywood superstar. McCarthy was born when Mars was in entertaining Leo and has her natal moon in caring Cancer. Look for her in the soon-to-be-released comedy "Life of the Party," a film she also co-wrote and produced.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You've built up an idea of what you can accomplish and, frankly, so have they. Now you're both expecting that you'll meet it, which you won't. With invisible forces at your back, you'll surpass it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). An eager tourist can get to know a city better than those who call it home. Thinking you know is the enemy of actually finding out. Go to a place where you're new, or be new in an old place.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Reasonable fluctuations of income, affection, mood, etc., are a natural part of life. You'll be unflappable in the face of such fluctuations, which is impressive. And those with similar strong characters will take notice.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It's said that you shouldn't sell yourself on someone based on potential alone. This applies to yourself as well. Believe that you're capable of more, but demand proof, too. It's time to get a little tough on yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Steer clear of the slippery slope. It comes in the form of a person who is irresistibly needy. One small thing will lead to another until you've sunk deep into the drama. The whole thing can be avoided from the get-go.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The sun in your sign is like a gas card handed from doting parents to children in college. It's assistance. It's fuel. It will help out. It can't be used for much else than the intended purpose and that's the beauty of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Don't be more concerned with upholding an image of yourself than you are with growing. How you look to the world will change with the times. So go on and risk appearing foolish. Dare to be a newbie for the sake of learning.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You've different standards, hopes, dreams and expectations than anyone else around you. It's why you really won't be happy if you conform to the norm. Go your own way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're in charge of making time for all those special things you like you to do. Don't let others pressure you into scheduling what suits them but not you. Put yourself on the books first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your personal energy is high and your creative wheels are turning. You will give off yourself and let others need you rather than needing them or concerning yourself with their approval.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Fear keeps you safe. It's your friend. You can feel balanced, alive, in love, productive and at the same time fearful, because nothing in life is certain. The fear is a healthy sign that this is real and you're not delusional.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Emotion that flows naturally out of a situation is the stuff of life. However, beware of those who use emotion as a tool to attract attention or make themselves more important.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I have an inappropriate crush on the teacher of one of my children. I'm single; he's not. No one knows how I feel. The problem is that I just can't seem to shake the thought of him. I cyberstalk him by going on a social-networking sites and looking at the pictures he's uploaded. I'm so intrigued by him, and every little bit of information I find makes me want to know more. How do I stop this silliness? He's a Sagittarius, and I'm a Virgo." Sagittarius is worldly, friendly, curious and sophisticated. Consider all of the ways he's captured your imagination and make a list of the qualities you find attractive in him. Consider your list, and then ask yourself how you can embody those characteristics yourself, because that is what this is really about. In time, your feelings will fade and you'll be over your crush, happy that you never acted on it. Practical Virgos usually don't have a problem staying vigilant and self-restrained, because they are so good at taking care of themselves and doing what it takes to support a healthy life and reasonable aims."

21 NEWS*WEEKNIGHTS*6 & 11PM*wfmj.com*ODDLY ENOUGH*16-year-old is running for Kansas governor seat*TOPEKA, KAN.

He won't even be able to vote, but a 16-year-old Wichita high-school student says he's serious about his bid to run for governor of Kansas.

Jack Bergerson has filed to run as a Democrat in the 2018 race for governor of Kansas, saying he wanted to give people another option, The Kansas City Star reported. And it doesn't faze him that he won't even be old enough to vote in the election.

"Under Kansas law, there is no law governing the qualifications for governor, not one," said Bryan Caskey, director of elections at the Kansas secretary of state's office. "So there's seriously nothing on the books that lays out anything, no age, no residency, no experience. Nothing."

When Bergeson, a junior at The Independent School in Wichita, found out about the lack of requirements, he thought, "Oh, I could do that."

"I thought, you know, let's give the people of Kansas a chance," Bergeson said. "Let's try something new that has never really been tried anywhere else before."

The teenager said he wants to "radically change" the health care system and would support legalizing marijuana for medical purposes, while being willing to explore legalization for recreational use. But he is conservative on gun rights and supports laws that allow people to openly carry their weapons.

"I think if you offer the people of Kansas something radical, something new so then that shows that we can move in a new direction, I think that will put the Democratic Party in a good position to win the seat next year," Bergeson said.

A classmate, 17-year-old Alexander Cline, will be his lieutenant governor. Cline will be able to vote in the election, since he will be 18 by then.

Other Democratic candidates running for the seat include former state Secretary of Agriculture Josh Svaty, former Wichita Mayor Carl Brewer and Arden Andersen, an Olathe doctor.

Manning is the man — and could be again soon

Q. I was surprised how relaxed Peyton Manning seemed as the host of the ESPYs this year. Has he hosted many events? — Beth Main, Bend, Ore.

A. Other than a 2007 episode of NBC's "Saturday Night Live," not really, though his laid-back persona has been evident from his being a guest on numerous programs over the course of his NFL career. After his well-received ESPYs stint, plus his acting appearance on ABC's "Modern Family" last season, don't be surprised to see him get more television opportunities that showcase him in the near future.

Q. Do you think they ever will re-release the show "Taxi," like they are doing with "M*A*S*H"? — Ronald Riikonen, via e-mail

A. Actually, the classic cab-driver comedy has been in the library of nostalgia network MeTV for some time, and it still runs there late on Sunday nights — and sometimes more frequently, based on how that channel switches up its schedule with each major change of season of the year.

Q. I heard WGN's "Outsiders" got canceled not due to low ratings, but to a station ownership change. The final episode left many cliffhangers. Any chance that the show will be picked up by another network, or that a wrap-up episode might be produced? — James Vollinger, Ormond Beach, Fla.

A. We never like to say "Never," so we'll merely say that the chance for a conclusive finale seems pretty slim. WGN America already is out of the "Outsiders" business, and originating studio Sony Pictures Television was unable to place it elsewhere. It's unlikely that all the relevant parties would be reassembled, though again, one never knows for sure. Don't give up hope for it, but at the same time, don't bank on it.

Q. I am a big fan of "Blue Bloods," and I've noticed that during the opening credits, Amy Carlson's picture does not accompany her name. I wondered if she's leaving the show. — Benjamin Broussard, Aiken, S.C.

A. That doesn't necessarily indicate that she's exiting the CBS police-family drama, and there's been no hint of that as we write this. It's more a matter of contractual billing, which had to have been renegotiated the last time that situation arose. Carlson had been billed in earlier seasons as a "guest star," though she clearly was a series regular as the wife of Donnie Wahlberg's Danny.

The same situation applied to young actress Sami Gayle, alias Nicky, the daughter of prosecutor Erin Reagan (Bridget Moynahan). While not in every episode, she also was a "guest star" when she appeared, until she attained opening-credit billing at the same time Carlson did. Sometimes, it's a matter of the producers seeing how often a character will be used in the show, then dealing with the matter appropriately at the time of the performer's next contract signing.

Q. I know there's another season of "Stranger Things" coming. When does it start? — Kim Neill, Pottstown, Pa.

A. It starts and — if you watch the whole thing in one shot — finishes on Oct. 27, since that's the day Netflix begins streaming all nine episodes of the widely acclaimed drama's sophomore round. And when you think about it, it couldn't be more appropriate that the outlet has chosen the Friday before Halloween for the second season's debut. Hopefully, its servers will be ready for the considerable traffic they're bound to get that first day.

Q. I suddenly keep seeing a lot of mention of "Everwood." Is it coming back? — Natalie Hogan, via e-mail

A. In a manner of speaking, it already has come back. The CW's streaming service CW Seed has the four seasons of the drama series, which prompted a very emotional reunion of its principal players for a panel at the recent Television Critics Association summer press convention. They maintained that they'd also embrace getting back together for an on-camera reunion, but for now, the entire run of the original show can be enjoyed again.

Dressed for success, 'Suits' hits its 100-episode milestone

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Attorney Mike Ross's (Patrick J. Adams) pro-bono case against a private prison corporation comes to a head as "Suits" airs its 100th episode Wednesday, Aug. 30, on USA Network.

Continuing a story line that has dominated Season 7, the lawsuit in question has sharply divided the team at Pearson Specter Litt, the law firm where "Suits" is set. The corporation Mike is going after has ties to a major construction-company client of Alex Williams (Dule Hill), a recent addition to the PSL roster and a close friend of senior partner Harvey Specter (Gabriel Macht).

Among many complicating factors that are coming to light, Mike's case, if he pursues it, could spell disaster for Alex, who has a major skeleton in his professional closet, in the same way that Mike once hid the fact that he didn't have a license to practice law.

"Mike cares about people and empathizes with them, so he can empathize with someone who is caught in a situation that seems to have no way out, after having his own secret burden him for so long," explains executive producer Rick Muirragui, who wrote this episode, entitled "100."

"When we were writing the 100th episode, we wanted something special," he adds. "There are a lot of emotions, and some of our favorite guest characters are back. There's also another emotional story going on as we find out how Donna (Sarah Rafferty) is affected by Harvey's being with Paula (recurring guest star Christina Cole). And Louis (Rick Hoffman) has a story line with a character from the elong past, and he's forced to make a decision about what kind of person he is."

With Pablo Escobar gone, the DEA turns its attentions to the Cali Cartel and its four godfathers as Season 3 of "Narcos" gets going Friday on Netflix. Watch it at www.netflix.com/title/80025172

The 100th episode of "Suits" airs Wednesday on USA Network.

A recent on-set party for cast and crew, many of whom have been with the series since its move to Toronto after the pilot was picked up, comes at a time when "Suits" is undergoing something of a reboot, after clearing two daunting hurdles in Season 6: sending Mike to prison to address and bury the ongoing problem of Mike's big professional secret, and dealing with leading lady Gina Torres' off-camera decision not to continue as a series regular in her role as senior partner Jessica Pearson.

The writers very briefly considered just doing a time jump to skip over Mike's incarceration, but instead found a way to connect it to the firm by having Mike wind up in prison with a bitter inmate whom Harvey had sent away.

"In a way our characters were reacting in the way we were reacting: Everything is scattered. The world order has been turned upside-down. How do we pull everything back together?" Muirragui says. "What we've tried to do over the past season and a half is sort of earn our way back to the firm being at full strength after being fractured and broken when Mike went to prison and Jessica left."

No wonder spirits were high at that recent company party.

"There was just this really warm feeling in the air," Muirragui says. "Everybody was so aware of how fortunate we are to be on a show that's been going this long, and to be with people that they like."
